POLITICAL PARTIES

All political parties were dissolved in March 1967. The following were the principal parties then active:

Sierra Leone People's Party (S.L.P.P.): Freetown; f. 1951; forms the government party (in alliance with United Progressive and People's National Parties); Leader Sir ALBERT MARGAI, P.C.

All Peoples' Congress Party: disagreed with the decisions of the 1960 constitutional conference, and sought a general election before independence; the United People's Party merged with this party in 1966; Leader SIAKA PROBYN STEVENS.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

The Common Law of England and the doctrines of equity and Statutory Law which were applicable in 1880 are in force in Sierra Leone; and certain English Statutes after 1780 have from time to time been brought into force by Ordinance.

The Court of Appeal: Consists of a President, Justice of Appeal and the Judges of the superior courts of the Territories. Appeals lie to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council.

President: Sir SAMUEL BANKOLE JONES.

Justices of Appeal: G. DOVE EDWIN, J. B. MARCUS-JONES.

The Supreme Court has the same jurisdiction as the High Court of Justice in the United Kingdom, except in certain minor cases arising exclusively between natives, where native law or custom is decisive. It is the Court of Appeal for all subordinate courts; and appeal against its own decisions may be made to the Sierra Leone Court of Appeal.

SIERRA LEONE—(POLITICAL PARTIES, JUDICIAL SYSTEM, RELIGION, ETC.)

Magistrates' Courts have jurisdiction in civil cases:

(a) in the Freetown District "on any cause or matter which may lawfully be brought before them", and

(b) in the Provinces, in any matter (except libel or slander) between or involving non-natives or between a native and the holder of a trading licence (whether a native or not).

In criminal cases the jurisdiction of the Magistrates' Courts is limited to summary cases and to preliminary investigations to determine whether a person charged with an offence triable by the Supreme Court shall be committed for trial.

Native Courts have jurisdiction, according to native law and custom, in all matters between natives which are not triable by any other court (see above).

In some cases, e.g. in trading cases which involve more than £50 or in land disputes involving two or more Chiefdoms, or cases which are of particular importance, the District Commissioner has the right to inquire and to decide whether the case shall go before the Supreme Court.

Chief Justice: BANJA TEJAN-SIE,

Puisne Judges: R. B. MARKE, C.B.E., R. W. BEOKU-BETTS, S. C. W. BETTS, C. A. HARDING, A. J. MASSALAY, P. R. DAVIES, S. J. FORSTER.

Attorney-General: A. A. KOROMA (a.i.).

SINGAPORE

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Singapore is a small island at the southernmost tip of the Malayan peninsula, to which it is connected by a causeway. The climate is hot and humid throughout the year with an average temperature varying between 75° and 80°F (24°-27°C). The national language is Malay, written with the Roman script, and there are four official languages—Malay, Mandarin Chinese, Tamil and English. The large Chinese community contains a number of Christians, but many Chinese are Buddhists, Confucians or Taoists. Most Indians are Hindus. All Malays and nearly all Pakistanis are Muslims. The flag is red and white, divided horizontally, with a white crescent moon and five stars in a circle on the red upper half. The capital is the City of Singapore.

Recent History

Singapore was liberated from Japanese rule by British forces in September 1945 and reverted to Crown Colony status in April 1946. In 1955 a new constitution introduced a large measure of self-government and in 1959 the state achieved complete internal self-government. At a referendum in September 1962 over 70 per cent of the population of Singapore voted to accept the proposed terms to establish the Federation of Malaysia (see chapter on Malaysia above). The association proved politically unworkable and in August 1965 Singapore withdrew from the Federation and formed a separate Republic.

Government

Singapore is a Republic within the Commonwealth. The Head of State is the President, formerly the Yang di Pertuan Negara, who must be a citizen of Singapore. The legislature comprises a Parliament elected by universal adult suffrage and there is a Cabinet presided over by the Prime Minister.

Defence

The United Kingdom maintains army, naval and air force bases. Singapore Government Forces consist of a part-time volunteer naval force and two regular battalions of the Singapore Infantry Regiment, with part-time supporting Defence Force units of volunteers and National Servicemen.

Economic Affairs

Singapore is an entrepôt for Malaya and other south-east Asian states. It handles most of Malaya's external trade and is the world centre of the rubber and tin markets. Singapore's banking and mercantile houses have branches all over the Far East. Singapore processes primary produce and has a rapidly growing industrial centre at Jurong with two oil refineries and many factories.

Transport and Communications

Singapore is the fifth largest port in the world and is used by more than one hundred major shipping lines as well as by local coastal services. The airport is also a great international junction. The Malayan Railways cross the causeway into Singapore.

Social Welfare

The Social Welfare Department, aided by local voluntary bodies, cares for the destitute, sick, aged and handicapped. There are no state social insurance systems but there is a Central Provident Fund into which contributions must be paid by employers and employees.

Education

Education is provided by Government, Government-aided, and private schools. Government schools are divided into Malay, Chinese, Tamil, English and Integrated English/Chinese, English/Malay schools. There are twenty-three Government and Government-aided vocational-technical schools, 23 private commercial schools, an independent Chinese college, a polytechnic and two universities, one using English and one Chinese.

Tourism

Singapore's tourist trade depends mainly on passengers in transit, by air and sea. The diverse population of the city offers opportunities to see a number of Asian cultures.

Visas are not required to visit Singapore by nationals of Belgium, Denmark, Finland, France, Iceland, Ireland, Liechtenstein, Luxembourg, Monaco, Netherlands, Norway, Sweden, San Marino, Sweden, Switzerland, United Kingdom and Commonwealth; also United States citizens making only a temporary visit.

Sport

Facilities exist for all types of sport.

Public Holidays

1967: May 1 (Labour Day), May 23 (Vesak Day), June 19 (Mohamed's Birthday), August 9 (National Day), November 1 (Deepavali), December 25 (Christmas Day).

1968: January 1 (New Year's Day), January 2 (Hari Raya Puasa), January 26 (Thaipusam), February 7-8 (Chinese New Year), March 10 (Hari Raya Haji), April 12 (Good Friday), April 15 (Easter Monday).

Weights and Measures

In addition to Imperial weights and measures, the following are in use:

Weight: 16 Tahils=1 Kati=1½ lb.
100 Katis=1 Picul=133½ lb.
40 Piculs=1 Koyan=5,333½ lb.
Capacity: 1 Chupak=1 Quart.
1 Gantang=1 Gallon.

Currency and Exchange Rates

The currency unit is the Malaysian dollar (M$), divided into 100 cents.

As from June 12th, 1967, the currency unit will be the Singapore dollar (S$). Information is not yet available about the denominations of the currency to be issued (May 1967).

Coins: 1, 5, 10, 20, 50 cents.

Notes: $1, $5, $10, $50, $100, $1,000.

Exchange rate: 8.57 M$ = £1 sterling
2.96 M$ = $1 U.S.

Singapore People's Alliance: 5 Short Street, Singapore 7; f. 1958; associated with the Alliance Party of Malaya.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

The civil procedure of Singapore is governed by Rules of Court which were formerly made under the Courts Ordinance and are now to be made under the Courts of Judicature Act, and criminal procedure is governed by the Criminal Procedure Code. The Courts Ordinance also provides for the constitution of the subordinate courts, whereas the constitution of the High Court of Singapore is now contained in the Courts of Judicature Act.

There are two Civil District Courts, four Criminal District Courts, ten Magistrate's Courts, two Traffic Magistrate's Courts, a Shariah Magistrate's Court, a Magistrate's (Maintenance) Court and a Juvenile Court. District Courts are presided over by District Judges, who are empowered to try civil cases in which the amount in dispute does not exceed M$1,000, and a criminal case which is punishable by not more than seven years' imprisonment, or by fine only. A District Judge may impose a sentence of not more than three years' imprisonment, or of a fine not exceeding M$5,000, or of up to twelve strokes with the cane, or any combination of these. Under certain circumstances he may impose the maximum sentence of seven years' imprisonment. Magistrate's Courts are presided over by Magistrates, who are empowered to try criminal cases which are punishable by not more than three years' imprisonment, or by fine only. A Magistrate may impose a sentence of not more than one years' imprisonment, or of a fine not exceeding M$2,000, or of up to six strokes with the cane, or any combination of these. Under certain circumstances he may impose the maximum sentence of three years' imprisonment. The Shariah Magistrate's Court deals with actions in which all the parties are Muslims, and which involve disputes relating to Muslim marriages.

All other civil cases are heard in the High Court, which has unlimited jurisdiction and which is presided over by the Chief Justice or a Puisne Judge sitting alone. Grave criminal offences are tried in the High Court, presided over by a Judge sitting alone. For the trial of capital offences, the Judge is assisted by a jury of seven. An appeal lies from the High Court to the Federal Court of Malaysia and thence to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council.

There are also two Industrial Arbitration Courts. The Court has the powers of a High Court and is intended to regulate labour relations.

Chief Justice: Mr. Justice WEE CHONG JIN.

Federal Judge: Mr. Justice TAN AH TAH.

Puisne Judges: Mr. Justice M. BUTTROSE, Mr. Justice F. A. CHUA, Mr. Justice J. W. D. AMBROSE, Mr. Justice A. V. WINSLOW, Mr. Justice T. KULASEKARAM, Mr. Justice CHOOR SINGH.

SOMALIA

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Somalia, the Horn of Africa, lies on the east coast of Africa with Ethiopia to the north-west, and Kenya to the west. There is a short frontier with French Somaliland by the Gulf of Aden. The climate is dry and hot with a mean temperature of 80°F (20°C) rising to 108°F (42°C) inland. The national language is Somali, but the official written languages are English and Italian. Arabic is spoken throughout the country. The population is mainly Moslem but there is a small Christian community, mostly Roman Catholic. The flag is a white five-pointed star on a blue background. The capital is Mogadishu.

Recent History

After the defeat of the Italian forces in 1941, the Somali territories now forming the Republic were placed under British military administration. The Somaliland Protectorate reverted to British Colonial Office rule in 1948 and the former Italian Somaliland was placed under United Nations trusteeship with Italy as the administering authority in 1950. The two territories united to form the independent Republic of Somalia in July 1960. The frontier dispute between Britain and Somalia over the Kenya Northern Frontier District resulted in the breaking off of diplomatic relations by Somalia in March 1963. A further dispute over frontiers with Ethiopia led to fighting in 1964.

Government

The Somali Republic has an elected President as Head of the Executive assisted by a Prime Minister and Council of Ministers. The National Assembly is elected by universal adult suffrage. The country is divided into eight regions each administered by a Regional Governor appointed by the Minister of the Interior.

Defence

There is a Regular Army of about 8,000, supplemented by 6,000 police. The Soviet Union is helping to enlarge and modernize the army and to form an Air Force and Navy.

Economic Affairs

The economy is mainly pastoral. Seventy-five per cent of the inhabitants are nomadic, dependent on their flocks of sheep, goats and camels. Settled agriculture, which is limited to the irrigable river valleys is now being developed. There has been a gradual increase in the cultivable areas along the Scebeli and Juba rivers, as well as in dry areas. There are two large state farms, financed by the U.S.S.R. Cash crops are grown where rainfall permits, and where irrigation is possible. The economy has been supported by aid from Russia, Italy, the Federal Republic of Germany, the United Arab Republic and the United States.

Transport and Communications

There are no railways, and roads, though generally poor, provide the principal means of transport. There is an extensive road development programme designed to link north and south and all the main towns and villages. Nomads rely on pack transport. The ports of Mogadishu and Chisimaio are connected by regular services with ports of Eastern Africa and Italy. There are airfields at Mogadishu, Hargeisa, Chisimaio, Baidoa, Belet-Uen, Galcaio, Bosaso and Burao.

Social Welfare

There is no state system of social insurance but plans are under way for improving social welfare facilities. Medical treatment is free at Government hospitals and dispensaries.

Education

Elementary education and some intermediate education are free for all children able to secure places in Government schools. The illiteracy rate is high. There are 233 elementary schools, 26 intermediate schools, 6 technical and vocational schools and 8 secondary schools. In addition there are a number of private schools. A Somali University Institute caters for students of law, economics and public administration. Some students go to China and the Soviet Union.

Tourism

Tourism in Somalia is relatively undeveloped. There are many places of historical interest including: Merca, Old Amoud, Taleh, Zeila, Mait, and Endisha. There are also good beaches and in the south good shooting grounds.

Sport

Football is the most popular game. Hockey is played in the north only, but basket ball, volley ball and boxing are growing in importance. Shooting and swimming also have their followers.

Public Holidays

1967: June 20 (Birth of the Prophet), June 26 (Independence Day), July 1 (Foundation of the Republic), October 24 (UN Day).

1968: January 1 (Id ul Fitr).

Weights and Measures

The Metric System is in force in six provinces and the Imperial System in the two northern provinces.

Currency and Exchange Rates

The currency unit is the Somalo which is divided into 100 Centesimi.

Coins: 1, 5, 10 Centesimi; $\frac{1}{2}$, 1 Somalo

Notes: 5, 10, 20, 100 Somalos

Exchange rate: 20 Somalos = £1 sterling

7.14 Somalos = $1 U.S.

(REPUBLIEK VAN SUID AFRIKA)

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The Republic of South Africa occupies the southern extremity of the African continent. To the north-west lies the mandated territory of South West Africa, with Botswana and Rhodesia to the north, Mozambique to the north-east, and Swaziland to the east. Within South Africa is the independent state of Lesotho. The climate is warm and sunny, with average temperatures about 63°F (17°C). The official languages are Afrikaans and English; the principal Bantu languages are Xhosa, Zulu and Sotho. The population is mainly Christian. The Dutch Reformed Church embraces 55 per cent of the white population. About a fifth of the Bantu Christians belong to Bantu Separatist Churches and others are Methodists and Anglicans. Most Asians are Hindus. The flag is a horizontal tricolour of orange, white and blue, charged in the centre of the white stripe with the Union Jack, the old Orange Free State flag, and the old Transvaal Vierkleur. The Transkei flag consists of three equal horizontal stripes of ochre, white and green. The administrative capital is Pretoria and the legislative capital is Cape Town; the administrative capital of South West Africa is Windhoek.

Recent History

Following the proclamation of a Republic in May 1961, South Africa withdrew from the British Commonwealth. The country follows a policy of "apartheid", the separate development of racial groups and in 1959 the Promotion of Bantu Self-Government Bill was passed under which Bantu territories are to be developed as self-governing states within the Republic. In January 1962 the Transkei was declared to be the first of the Bantu Homelands to qualify for self-government and in December 1963 a measure was passed to give Transkei considerable internal freedom. In November 1963 the first Transkei parliament was elected. In January 1965 the Bantu Labour Act came into force, furnishing District Labour Bureaux with extensive powers over Africans working in urban areas. On September 6th, 1966, Dr. H. F. Verwoerd, the Prime Minister and National Party leader, was assassinated in the House of Assembly. He was succeeded by B. J. Vorster. Dr. T. E. Dönges was elected to succeed President Swart in May 1967.

Government

The State President of the Republic is elected by the members of the Senate and House of Assembly. Executive power is carried out by an Executive Council (Cabinet) appointed by the State President. The Senate (54 members) includes representatives of each Province and one representative of the Cape Province Coloured people. Members of the Senate must be white. The House of Assembly (170 members) includes six members representing South West Africa and four members representing the Cape Province Coloured people. Members of the House of Assembly must be white. The franchise is open to all whites over the age of eighteen. Coloured males over the age of twenty-one and resident in the Cape Province also have the vote. Bantu and Asians are not eligible to vote. It is planned to introduce a separate Parliament and Cabinet with limited powers for the Cape Coloured people by 1969.

The country is divided into four Provinces each having an Administrator appointed by the State President and a unicameral Provincial Council elected by whites. South West Africa is governed by an Administrator appointed by the State President aided by an Executive of four chosen from an elected Assembly of 18 members. In 1963 the first Transkei Parliament was elected as the representative body of the Xhosa people. The Xhosa cabinet of six has responsibility for all affairs of state except defence, foreign affairs and some aspects of security and transport.

Defence

All male white citizens from sixteen to sixty-five are liable to military service. Those between seventeen and twenty-five may have to serve up to three years in the part-time Citizen Force. The South African Defence Force consists of Regular units of the Army, Navy and Air Force and units of the Citizen Force attached to each arm. The Citizen Force consists of volunteer, part-time officers and non-commissioned officers and ballotees. However it is planned to introduce compulsory military service in 1967. The Citizen Force may be employed on combat duty or in aid of the civil power. A second territorial unit, the Commandos, are voluntary infantry for internal security duties. In the 1965/66 Budget 20.1 per cent of expenditure was for defence.

Economic Affairs

South Africa has successfully diversified its economy and about one-third of the national income is now derived from manufacturing. The establishment of the South African Iron and Steel Industrial Corporation (ISCOR) and the South African Coal, Oil and Gas Corporation (SASOL) laid the foundations of the heavy engineering, chemical and petroleum industries. The textile and food processing industries are also growing. Mining still contributes largely to the economy and gold is the most profitable export. Industrial development is dependent on the white population for capital, management and higher technical skill, with the non-whites providing the labour force. The Bantu are now being encouraged to develop industry within the new Bantu Homelands. Much livestock is reared in South Africa and there are valuable fruit, wine and fishing industries. The export of wool, maize, sugar and karakul pelts is important.

Transport and Communications

Railways, ports, airways and harbours are administered by the state. Private omnibus services are regulated to dovetail with the railways. Roads are good and a national highway system is being built. There are many internal and international air services and much ocean shipping traffic.

SOUTH AFRICA—(INTRODUCTORY SURVEY)

Social Welfare

Social welfare services protect the old, the blind, the war disabled, the unemployed and those injured at work. Medical services are administered by the Provinces.

Education

For Whites, schooling is compulsory from seven to sixteen; for Coloureds it is compulsory from seven to sixteen in Natal and seven to fourteen in the Cape Province where possible; for Indians provision has been made for compulsory school attendance where possible since April 1966. Schooling is not compulsory for the Bantu although four out of five attend school for varying periods. Bantu primary education is in their own languages, e.g. Zulu, Xhosa, Tswana, Sotho, Venda, Tsonga.

Tourism

Tourism is an important industry. South Africa's attractions are the climate, the scenery and wild life. The great game reserves, of which the Kruger National Park is the largest, attract thousands of visitors from Europe, America and Africa. There is big game hunting and fishing and native dances and ceremonies.

Visas are not required to visit South Africa by White nationals of Australia, Canada, Ireland, Malawi, Rhodesia, United Kingdom and Colonies and Zambia, or by nationals of Liechtenstein and Switzerland.

Sport

Sport is very popular. Rugby football is the national game but many games are played, such as soccer, tennis, cricket, bowls, golf and baseball.

Public Holidays

1967: May 4 (Ascension Day), May 31 (Republic Day), July 10 (Family Day), September 4 (Settlers' Day), October 10 (Kruger Day), December 16 (Day of the Covenant), December 25 and 26 (Christmas).

1968: January 1 (New Year's Day), April 6 (Van Riebeeck Day), April 12-15 (Easter).

Weights and Measures

Length: 1 yard = 3 feet = 36 inches = 0.9144 metres

1 mile = 1.609 kilometres

Area: 1 square mile = 640 acres; 1 acre = 0.404686 hectares

Weight: 1 ton = 20 centals = 2,000 pounds (lb.) = 907.18474 kilogrammes

Capacity: 1 Imperial gallon = 8 pints = 4.5459 litres

In 1966 the Government decided in principle to accept the metric system.

Currency and Exchange Rates

The principal unit of currency is the Rand (R), which is divided into 100 cents.

Coins: 1, 2, 5, 10, 20, 50 cents; R1.

Notes: R1, R5, R10, R20.

Exchange rate: 2.00 Rand = £1 sterling

.72 Rand = $1 U.S.

THE CONSTITUTION

THE REPUBLIC OF SOUTH AFRICA was established on May 31st, 1961. In October 1960 a referendum was held, in which only the white population voted, when a majority of 849,176 (52 per cent) out of a total of 1,633,772 voted for the establishment of a Republic. In March 1961, at the Commonwealth Prime Ministers' Conference, South Africa decided not to apply for re-admission to the Commonwealth after becoming a Republic.

Executive Power

Executive power is vested in a State President, acting on the advice of Ministers of State or the Cabinet, composed of a Prime Minister and 17 other Ministers. The President is elected by an electoral college of members of the Senate and House of Assembly, presided over by the Chief Justice or a Judge of Appeal. He holds office for a seven-year term and is not eligible for re-election unless "it is otherwise decided" by the electoral college. He is Head of State and Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces. The Ministers are members of the Executive Council and they are appointed to administer such departments of State as are established by the State President-in-Council. Deputy Ministers, not exceeding eight in number, may be appointed by the State President to assist Ministers in the administration of departments of State. Deputy Ministers are not members of the Executive Council.

Parliament

The Parliament of the Republic consists of the State President, a Senate and a House of Assembly. The State President has power to summon, prorogue and dissolve Parliament, either both Houses simultaneously or the House of Assembly alone. There must be a session of Parliament at least every twelve months.

The Senate

Senators must be nationals of European descent, at least 30 years of age, qualified as voters, and resident at least five years within the Republic.

The Senate, as constituted in December 1965, consists of 54 white members: 41 elected by the electoral colleges of the four provinces (14 for the Transvaal, 11 for the Cape Province, 8 each for the Orange Free State and Natal) and two similarly elected for South West Africa. Eleven members are nominated by the State President, two for each of the four provinces and South West Africa (of whom half are chosen for their thorough knowledge of the reasonable wants and wishes of the non-White people) and one special representative of the interests of the Cape Coloured people.

The House of Assembly

Members of the House of Assembly must be nationals of European descent, must be registered voters and resident for at least five years in the Republic. The House of Assembly continues for five years unless previously dissolved.

All White persons over the age of 18 are entitled to vote, except those who have been convicted of treason, murder, or any other offence punishable by a term of imprisonment without option of a fine.

The House consists of 170 White members; 160 directly elected by White citizens, aged 18 years or over, to represent the electoral divisions of the Republic, 6 similarly elected to represent the electoral divisions of South West Africa and 4 elected by qualified Coloured voters of the Cape Province.

Representation of Coloureds

By the Separate Representation of Voters Amendment Act 1956 the Coloured people of the Cape were placed on a separate Voters' List to elect four members to the House of Assembly and two members to the Cape Provincial Council. The Act also allows for the nomination of a Senator, on the ground of his thorough acquaintance with the reasonable wants and wishes of the Coloured people of the Cape Province.

The Act further established a Union Council for Coloured Affairs whose function is to advise the Government in regard to matters affecting the interests of the Coloured people of the Republic. This Council is to become a self-governing body for the Coloured people.

Representation of Bantu

Five of eleven nominated Senators are selected for their thorough acquaintance with the reasonable wants and wishes of the Bantu peoples.

The Native Affairs Act, 1920, made provisions for the establishment in Bantu areas of local and general councils with minor powers of local self-government somewhat on the lines of the Glen Grey District Council (established in 1894) and the district and general councils then functioning in the Transkeian Territories.

The Representation of Natives Act, 1936, transferred Cape Bantu from the same voters' lists as Whites to the Cape Native Voters' Roll and, as a quid pro quo for their rights to participate in ordinary elections, empowered them to elect three members of the House of Assembly and two members of the Cape Provincial Council. Special representation for the Bantu population of the Republic as a whole was provided for in that, through electoral colleges, Bantu could elect four Senators to represent their interests in Parliament, and could also elect some members of the Natives Representative Council, established by the Act.

The Natives Representative Council, which had since 1949 refused to meet, was disestablished by the Bantu Authorities Act, 1951. This created in the Bantu homelands tribal, regional and territorial authorities which have administrative, executive and judicial functions and which form the basis for political development to full autonomy. The council system in the Transkeian Territories was, on request of the people themselves, in 1956 also converted into the authority system provided for by the Bantu Authorities Act.

BANTU HOMELANDS

The Bantu Self-Government Act, 1959, repealed the Representation of Natives Act, 1936, thus abolishing direct representation of Natives in Parliament and in the Cape Provincial Council. The Act accepts the natural division of the Bantu population into eight national units in the Republic and its vicinity, which, starting from the system of tribal, regional and territorial authorities may eventually become self-governing in their respective areas, although this does not necessarily mean that there will be eight territorial authorities or regional parliaments. It also provides for appointment of Commissioners-General to represent the Government at each of these national units and to aid the Bantu rulers in achieving this end. The Transkei Territorial Authority was set up in 1960 and those for people of the Ciskei and the Tswanas (Western Transvaal and Northern Cape) were established in 1961. In January 1962 it was announced that the Xhosa nation of the Transkei would be the first of the Bantu peoples to qualify for self-government—the next step to independence. The new Transkei Constitution was agreed to in March 1962. (See below, The Transkei).

SOUTH AFRICA—(THE CONSTITUTION, THE GOVERNMENT)

In January 1967 it was announced that the North Sotho people, living in the northern Transvaal, would have five departments of government to control the affairs of their Homeland. Matters passing from the control of the Republic Government were education, finance, justice, public works, agriculture, forestry and community development.

Procedure

Money Bills must originate in the House of Assembly, which may not pass a Bill for taxation or appropriation unless it has been recommended by message from the State President during the session. The amendment of money Bills by the Senate is restricted and such Bills, when passed by the House of Assembly in any session, may become law even if the Senate in the same session fails to pass them or passes them with amendments to which the House of Assembly cannot agree. Other Bills, with the exception of those which alter or repeal the provisions of sections 108 and 118 of the Republic of South Africa Constitution Act, may in the event of disagreement between the two Houses, become law after rejection by the Senate in two successive sessions. The provisions of sections 108 and 118 of the Republic of South Africa Constitution Act, relating to the equality of the two official languages of the Republic and the amendment of that Act, may not be altered or repealed unless the Bill embodying the alteration or repeal is passed by both Houses of Parliament sitting together, and at the third reading is agreed to by not less than two-thirds of the total number of members of both Houses.

The State President may assent to, or withhold assent from, a Bill. Two copies of every law, one in English and one in Afrikaans, are to be enrolled on record in the office of the Registrar of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of South Africa. In case of conflict between the two copies, that signed by the State President shall prevail.

Each member of each House must make Oath or Affirmation of Allegiance. A member of one House cannot be elected to the other, but a Minister and a Deputy-Minister may sit and speak, but not vote, in the House of which he is not a member.

Provincial Government

Provision is made for the appointment of an administrator in each province, who holds office for a term of five years. In each province there is also a provincial council consisting of the same number of members as are elected in the province for the House of Assembly, but in no case is the membership to be less than 25. A member of a provincial council ceases to be a member on being elected to either House of the Central Parliament. The powers of the provinces, which relate chiefly to the administration of local affairs (mainly roads, hospitals and education) are subordinate to the powers of the Central Parliament and all provincial ordinances require the consent of the State President-in-Council.

An executive committee of four persons, not necessarily members of the council, together with the administrator as chairman, is elected by the provincial council at its first meeting after each general election. This committee carries on the administration of affairs on behalf of the provincial council. The administrator may, and when required to do so must, act on behalf of the State President-in-Council in regard to all matters in respect of which no powers are reserved or delegated to the provincial council.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY (First Election, November, 1963)

Elected Members: 45.
 Non-Elected Members: Four Paramount Chiefs, 60 office-holding Chiefs in nine Regions.

CONSTITUTION

The Constitution of the Transkei was promulgated in the South African Parliament in May 1963, and came into force in December of the same year. The main provisions are:

Legislative Assembly: Consists of the four Paramount chiefs of the Transkei, the 60 chiefs holding office in the nine regional authority areas, and 45 members who are elected by all Transkeian subjects whether resident in the territory or in South Africa or South West Africa. The Chief Minister and the five Ministers are elected by secret ballot by the members of the Legislative Assembly.

The Legislative Assembly has the power to make laws in connection with the various government functions it controls. The laws then go to the Commissioner-General for submission, through the Minister for Bantu Administration and Development, to the State President. The State President may either give his assent or refer the bill back to the Legislative Assembly.

The Legislative Assembly meets at least once every year, and subject to the provisions of the act granting the Transkei self-government, "there will be freedom of speech and debate in the assembly". Subject to standing rules and orders, debates are to be conducted in public.

Powers: The Transkei Government has control over its own affairs apart from foreign affairs, defence, internal security, part of the administration of justice and economic development. There are ministries of finance, justice, the interior, education, agriculture and forestry, roads and works.

Under the section listing the "classes of matters" over which the Transkei Government has no power are: "The control, organisation, administration, powers of entry into and presence in the Transkei of any police force of the Republic charged with the maintenance of public peace and order and the preservation of internal security and the safety of the Transkei and the Republic".

Personnel: Some white employees of the Republican Government have been placed at the disposal of the Transkeian Government but they will remain on the establishment of the Republican Government. They will be progressively replaced by suitable Bantu employees of the Transkei Government (of a Civil Service of 2,500 posts, more than 1,900 were filled by Bantu in March 1964).

Zoning of Areas: The Constitution provides for the zoning of towns and villages in the Transkei under the jurisdiction of municipalities, village management boards, or local boards, for occupation and ownership by the Bantu. This provision was put into effect in 23 Transkei towns and villages, or in certain parts of them, in January 1966.

SOUTH AFRICA—(POLITICAL PARTIES, JUDICIAL SYSTEM)

Justice: An elaborate system of courts provides for the administration of justice in the Transkei. It includes courts under the jurisdiction of the Republican Government. The jurisdiction of any court transferred to the Transkei does not include jurisdiction over anybody who is not a Transkei citizen.

The State President may constitute a high court of the Transkei similar in function, constitution and jurisdiction to the Supreme Court of South Africa. Appeals go from the High Court of the Transkei to the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of South Africa. The Transkei High Court is to take over the functions of the Bantu appeal and divorce courts. It is also involved in matters of Bantu law and custom

Finance: The Transkei Government is financed by various forms of revenue including taxation of all Xhosa, both inside the Transkei and outside. In addition to this, the Republican Government grants the Transkei enough money (about R13 million a year) to cover the administration of all departments handed over to the Transkei.

POLITICAL PARTIES

Transkei National Independence Party: f. 1964; accepts policy of apartheid; aims at Transkeian independence; Leader Chief KAIZER MATANZIMA.

Democratic Party: f. 1964; rejects apartheid in favour of the Transkei's status as a province within South Africa, with equal rights for both races in the Republic; Leader KNOWLEDGE GUZANA.

Transkei People's Freedom Party: Umtata; f. 1966; aims at immediate independence from the Republic; Leader S. M. SINABA.

POLITICAL PARTIES

National Party: P.O. Box 245, Pretoria; f. 1912; aims: (1) to safeguard the White nation in their South African homelands; (2) to lead the Bantu nations to effective self-government in their homelands; (3) to give all nations equal opportunity to develop the social and political organisations best suited to their own particular characteristics and aspirations; (4) to raise living standards in White and Bantu homelands alike. Leader: B. J. VORSTER.

United Party: 40 Burg Street, Cape Town; f. 1934; seeks a solution of racial problems through the creation of a Federation of Races governed by a Central Parliament in which all racial groups will be represented. The United Party believes in the necessity to maintain overall white political control for the foreseeable future. Leader: Sir DE VILLIERS GRAAFF.

Progressive Party: f. 1959; aim: a new Constitution based on the principles of maintenance of western civilization and protection of fundamental human rights, irrespective of race, colour or creed; one representative in Parliament and two in the Cape Provincial Council, representing the Coloured voters. Leader Dr. JAN STEYTLER; Nat. Chair. H. G. LAWRENCE; Chair. Nat. Exec. C. W. EGLIN.

Liberal Party of South Africa: 268 Longmarket Street, Pietermaritzburg, Natal; f. 1953; advocates equal rights of all citizens irrespective of race, colour or creed. Chair. Dr. E. H. BROOKES; publ. Liberal Opinion

African National Congress: f. 1912; aims to establish a multi-racial democratic society in co-operation with left-wing and liberal organisations of other races; banned April 1960; Pres. ALBERT LUTHULI; Vice-Pres. OLIVER TAMBO; Sec.-Gen. DUMA NOKWE.

Pan-African Congress: f. 1958; splinter group from the African National Congress; believes that a democratic society can only come through African and not multi-racial organisations; banned April 1960; Pres. ROBERT SOBUKWE.

Labour Party: Johannesburg; f. 1908; advocates economic equality between the races and the gradual extension of political rights to all non-Whites; is not represented in the 1961 Parliament. Chair. Mrs. JESSIE MACPHERSON; Sec.-Gen. C. CLINKHAM.

Coloured People's Congress: P.O.B. 15, Cape Town; Coloured People's Party.

Indian National Congress of South Africa: Indian organisation working with the African National Congress; Leaders Dr. DAIDOO, Y. CACHALIA.

The following three right-wing parties are opposed to any advancement of the non-White population: Republican Party: Pretoria (Leader Prof. C. F. VAN DER MERVE), Conservative Party: Westonia (Leader J. J. H. TER-BLANCHE), Conservative National Party: Pretoria (Leader W. GROBLER). The Front: Pietermaritzburg, is a splinter group in favour of the retention of the Republican Constitution and of the residential, social and educational separation of the various racial groups.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

The common law of the Republic of South Africa is the Roman-Dutch law, the uncoded law of Holland as it was at the time of the cession of the Cape in 1806. The law of England is not recognised as authoritative, though the principles of English law have been introduced in relation to civil and criminal procedure, evidence and mercantile matters. In all other matters, however, Roman Dutch law prevails.

The Supreme Court consists of an Appellate Division; two Provincial and one Local Division in the Cape Province, one Provincial and one Local Division in each of the provinces of Transvaal and Natal and one Provincial Division in the Orange Free State and South West Africa. Except for the fact that the local divisions in the Transvaal and Natal have no jurisdiction to hear appeals they exercise within limited areas the same jurisdiction as Provincial Divisions.

The provinces are further divided into districts and regions with Magistrates' Courts, whose criminal and civil jurisdiction is clearly defined. From these courts appeals may be taken to the Provincial and Local Divisions of the Supreme Court, and thence to the Appellate Division.

TRADE UNIONS

The Industrial Conciliation Act of 1937 provides for the registration of Trade Unions and Employers' Organisations and for the establishment of Industrial Councils on which employers and employees have equal representation. The Industrial Conciliation Act of 1956 provides for the setting up of racially separate Trade Unions. In cases where separate Unions cannot be formed the mixed Unions must divide into separate branches for each race, while the Union Executive must be composed of white members only. Of approximately 200 Trade Unions, about 60 are racially mixed and in about 25 of these, non-whites are dominant. The same act also prohibits the affiliation of Trade Unions with political parties.

TRANSPORT RAILWAYS

South African Railways and Harbours Board: Union Buildings, Pretoria; Minister Hon. B. J. SCHOEMAN; Railway Commissioners Dr. J. H. BOTHA, P. J. C. DU PLESSIS, C. V. DE VILLIERS, Gen. Man. J. P. HUGO; Dep. Gen. Mans. P. G. JOUBERT and J. A. KRUGER.

With a few minor exceptions the South African Railways and Harbours Administration owns and operates all the railways in the Republic and in the Mandated Territory of South-West Africa. The Administration also operates an extensive network of road transport services, which serves primarily to develop rural areas, but also acts as feeder to the railways. The fleet consists of some 40 vessels, mainly tugs and dredgers, but it also carries on cargo services to Union ports. The Administration spent approximately R.260 million on railway improvements during the two years ending March 31st, 1963. This is part of the modernisation programme which started just after the war. The World Bank contributed R.8m. during 1961 towards this programme.

TRACK MILEAGE:

Owned and operated by South African Railways:

1. In Republic, 13,671 miles.
2. In Mandated Territory of South-West Africa, 1,453 miles.

Privately-owned lines operated by South African Railways, 32 miles.

TERRITORY OF SOUTH WEST AFRICA

South West Africa is a mandated territory administered by South Africa. In 1966 the UN General Assembly terminated the League of Nations mandate and set up a committee to recommend means by which the territory should be administered. The South African Government has offered to establish a Bantustan, similar to the Transkei, for the Orambo people of South West Africa.

ADMINISTRATION

The administration of South West Africa is vested by Mandate of the League of Nations, dated December 17th, 1920, in the Government of South Africa. The Territory was granted a constitution in 1925. The government consists of an Administrator appointed by the State President of the Republic, a Legislative Assembly of eighteen elected members and an Executive of four members chosen by the Assembly from its own ranks. The Parliament of the Republic is the supreme legislative authority and the Republic government is the chief executive authority. The South West Africa Legislative Assembly has wide powers except in matters of defence, railways and harbours, civil aviation, native affairs and certain legal affairs.

In 1949 the South African Parliament passed the South West African Affairs Amendment Act by which South West Africa was authorised to elect six members to the South African House of Assembly, and two members to the South African Senate. Two further senators are appointed by the State President. Non-Whites are not part of the Electorate for the South West Africa Legislative Assembly.

The United Nations have made annual recommendations that, as a former League of Nations Mandate, South West Africa should be placed under United Nations Trusteeship.

In 1950 the International Court of Justice advised that the terms of the mandate were still valid and that South Africa was obliged to report to the UN on its administration of the territory. The Court is again hearing the issue and in May 1966 the subject remained sub judice. A final ruling is expected later in 1966.

In summer (December-January) the Administration moves from Windhoek to Swakopmund.

EQUATORIAL GUINEA

Equatorial Guinea (known until 1963 as Spanish Guinea or the Spanish Equatorial Region) consists of the two Provinces of Rio Muni and Fernando Póo. Rio Muni is a small enclave on the mainland between Cameroon and Gabon. The Province includes the islands of Elobey Grande, Elobey Chico and Corisco in the Gulf of Guinea. Fernando Póo is an island off the coast of Cameroon. The Province includes the much smaller island of Annobón far to the south. Santa Isabel is the capital of Fernando Póo and the administrative seat for the whole of Equatorial Guinea. Bata is the capital of Rio Muni.

STATISTICS

Area: 28,051 square km. (mainland 26,000 square km.).
Population (1960): Rio Muni 183,377 (2,864 Europeans), Fernando Póo 61,557 (4,170 Europeans), Annobón 1,403, Santa Isabel (capital) 37,185, Bata 27,024.
Agriculture (1964): Coffee 8,237 tons, Cacao 35,620 tons.

THE SUDAN

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The Republic of the Sudan is the largest country in Africa. Its border with the United Arab Republic to the north is the second cataract of the Nile; Khartoum is at the junction of the Blue Nile and White Nile. To the east is Ethiopia and the Red Sea, to the west the Central African Republic and Chad, and to the south Kenya, Uganda and the Congo Democratic Republic. The climate shows a marked transition from the desert of the north to the rainy equatorial south. Temperatures vary with height and latitude. The overall average is about 70°F (21°C). Arabic is the main language but English is widely understood. Most Sudanese are Moslems with animists as the next largest group. There is a Christian community of about 270,000. The flag consists of three horizontal bands of blue, yellow and green. The capital is Khartoum.

Recent History

The Sudan became an independent republic with a parliamentary system in 1956. Following a coup d'état in 1958 the Army took control of the state, suspending the use of Parliament and abolishing political parties. A Supreme Council of the Armed Forces was set up and ruled until October 1964, when it was overthrown by a civilian revolution. The Southern Sudan was opened to foreign visitors in September 1963 but unrest in the south has led to conflict and periodical violence and bloodshed. Following elections in May 1965, Muhammad Ahmed Mahgoub was elected Prime Minister but in July 1966 he was replaced by the leader of the Umma Party, Saddik el Mahdi. A new Constitution was placed before the National Assembly early in 1967. Mr. Mahgoub again Prime Minister in May 1967.

Government

Powers of Head of State are vested in a five-man Supreme Council of State appointed by the Provisional Government. Until a new Constitution is accepted the 1955 Constitution is in force.

Defence

The armed forces comprise the Army, Air Force and Navy and total about 20,000. Sudan has a defence agreement with the Arab League Unified Military Command. It has contributed troops to the United Nations Operations in the Congo. In 1966 Yugoslavia agreed to supply men and materials to assist in building a Sudanese navy.

Economic Affairs

Long-staple cotton, grown under irrigation, is overwhelmingly Sudan's most valuable export. The principal food crop is millet. Nomadic tribes breed cattle, sheep, goats and camels. The vast forest areas provide timber and 80 per cent of the world's supply of gum arabic (an important export). Industry is confined mainly to the manufacture of food and vegetable oils. A £S 512 million economic plan launched in 1963 aims to develop industry, mining, agriculture and transport.

Transport and Communications

There are 2,750 miles of railways owned by the state. Generally roads are only cleared tracks impassable immediately after rain. Hard-surfaced roads are no longer confined to urban areas. Highways from the capital to the provinces are under construction and plans have been drawn up for a network of highways in the Western Sudan. Sudan Railways operate passenger and freight steamer services on navigable reaches of the Nile. These are linked to the railway services of the United Arab Republic, Uganda and Kenya. Sudan Airways, the Government airline, maintain internal and external services.

Social Welfare

The Ministry of Health organises the public health services. In 1964 there were 70 hospitals, 1,075 dispensaries and 545 doctors. Three more specialized hospitals are to be built in Khartoum during 1967.

Education

The Government provides elementary education from the ages of seven to eleven, intermediate from ages eleven to fifteen and secondary from fifteen upwards. Pupils from secondary schools are accepted at the University of Khartoum, subject to their reaching the necessary standards. Cairo University also has a Khartoum Branch.

Tourism

The rain forests in the south teem with wild game and attract hunters and observers from all over the world. In the north are the sites of several temples and pyramids of ancient Sudanese civilizations.

Sport

Football is the most popular game. Sudanese athletes have competed at the Olympic and the Pan Arab and African Games.

Public Holidays

1967: June 20 (Birth of the Prophet), October 21 (Anniversary of the Revolution), December 25 (Christmas).

1968: January 1 (Independence), January 1-4 (Ramadan Bairam), March 9-13 (Kurban Bairam), March 19 (Sham el Nassim), March 31 (Muslim New Year).

Weights and Measures

The Metric System is gradually replacing traditional weights and measures.

Currency and Exchange Rates

The monetary unit is the Sudanese Pound = 100 Piastres = 1,000 Milliemes.

Coins: 2, 5, 10 Piastres; 1, 5, 10 Milliemes

Notes: 1, 5, 10 Sudanese Pounds; 25, 50 Piastres

Exchange rate: 0.975 Sudanese Pounds = £1 sterling 0.35 Sudanese Pounds = $1 U.S.

THE CONSTITUTION

In December 1955 a Transitional Constitution was adopted, under which the highest authority was vested in a Supreme Commission of five members, who were responsible for appointing the Prime Minister and his Cabinet from amongst the members of Parliament.

This Transitional Constitution was suspended following the military coup d'état of 1958, but the provisional Government which took office after the overthrow of the military régime in October 1964, announced its intention of governing under the terms of the 1955 Constitution.

It is proposed to establish a Permanent Constitution as soon as possible (May 1967).

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

The administration of justice is the function of the judiciary, as a separate and independent department of state. The general administrative supervision and control of the Judiciary is vested in the Chief Justice.

Civil Justice: is administered by the Courts constituted under the Civil Justice Ordinance, namely the High Court of Justice—consisting of the Court of Appeal and Judges of the High Court, sitting as Courts of original jurisdiction—and Provincial Courts—consisting of the Courts of Province and District Judges.

Criminal Justice: is administered by the Courts constituted under the Code of Criminal Procedure, namely Major Courts, Minor Courts and Magistrate's Courts. Serious crimes are tried by Major Courts which are composed of a President and two members and have power to pass the death sentence. Major Courts are as a rule presided over by a Judge of the High Court appointed to a Provincial Circuit, or a Province Judge. There is a right of appeal to the Chief Justice against any decision or order of a Major

Court and all findings and sentences of a Major Court are subject to confirmation by him.

Lesser crimes are tried by Minor Courts consisting of three Magistrates and presided over by a Second Class Magistrate and by Magistrates' Courts consisting of a single Magistrate, or a bench of lay Magistrates.

Local Courts: try a substantial portion of the Criminal and Civil cases in the Sudan and work in parallel to some extent with the State Courts.

Chief Justice: BABIKIR AWADALLAH.

MOHAMMEDAN LAW COURTS

Justice in personal matters for the Muslim population is administered by the Mohammedan Law Courts, which form the Sharia Division of the Judiciary. These Courts consist of the Court of Appeal, High Courts and Kadis' Courts, and President of the Sharia Division is the Grand Kadi. The religious Law of Islam is administered by these Courts in matters of inheritance, marriage, divorce, family relationships and charitable trusts.

Grand Kadi: Sheikh YAHYA ABDEL GASIM.

RELIGION

The majority of Sudanese are vigorous followers of Islam—it will be remembered that the Mahdi of 1896 was a religious leader—but some communities in the south remain untouched by Islam and practise animism or fertility worship. The cultural contrast between the Mohammedan north and centre, and the non-Muslim south, with differences in race, language, religion and outlook, gives rise to one principal political problem of the Sudan. According to recent estimates the religious adherence of the population was as follows:

Muslim	6,474,453
Animist	2,428,793
Catholic	162,745
Protestant	94,981
Orthodox	12,525
Jewish	380

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

COTTON

Sudan Gezira Board: Barakat, Blue Nile Province; Chair. ABDEL HAFIZ ABDEL MONEIM; Managing Dir. MIRGHANI EL AMIN EL HAG; Gen. Man. SALIH MOHAMED SALIH; Asst. Gen. Manager (Administration) OMER MOHAMMED ABDALLA; Agricultural Manager NUR MOHAMMED NUR EL HUDA; Sales Manager MOHAMMED HUSNI AHMED; Sec. AMIN EL TAYEB.

The Sudan Gezira Board is Sudan's main cotton producing body. Starting in 1911 as a company enterprise, it was nationalised in 1950 and has since then been run by a Board of Directors, consisting of 8 to 11 members.

The Board represents a partnership between the Government, the tenants and itself. The Government, which provides the land and is responsible for irrigation receives 42 per cent of the net proceeds; the tenants (who numbered 66,553 in June 1962 and who do the actual cultivation) receive 44 per cent. The Board receives 10 per cent and the balance is shared between the Local Government Councils in the Scheme area and the Social Development Fund set up to provide social services to the inhabitants of the Scheme.

The total cultivable area of the Gezira Scheme is over 11 million acres and the total area under systematic irrigation is over 1,700,000 acres.

TRANSPORT

RAILWAYS

Sudan Railways: Atbara; Gen. Manager ABU BAKR ALI
RIDA, M.I.C.E., M.I.STRUCT.E.

The total length of railway in operation is about 4,655 route-kilometres. The main line runs from Wadi Halfa, on the Egyptian border to El Obeid, via Khartoum. Lines from Atbara and Sennar connect with Port Sudan on the coast. Since independence two new lines have been built, one from Sennar to Roseires on the Blue Nile (225 km.), opened in 1954 and one from Aradeiba to Nyala, in the south-western province of Darfur (689 km.), opened in 1959. A railway branching from this line, at Babanousa, to Wau in Bahr el Ghazal province (445 km.), has now been completed.

The construction of the Egyptian High Dam has flooded the Wadi Halfa area and future through communications are under consideration.

ROADS

Ministry of Public Works: P.O. Box 300, Khartoum; Director of Works IBRAHIM MOHD IBRAHIM.

Roads in the Northern Sudan, other than town roads, are only cleared tracks and often impassable immediately after rain. Motor traffic on roads in the Upper Nile Province is limited to the drier months of January-May. There are several good gravelled roads in the Equatoria and Bahr-el-

Ghazal Provinces which are passable all the year round, but in these districts some of the minor roads become impassable after rain.

The through route from Juba to Khartoum is open from mid-November to mid-April.

In 1962 there were about 30,000 miles of motorable tracks in the Sudan.

INLAND WATERWAYS

Ministry of Communications: Khartoum.

The total length of navigable waterways served by passenger and freight services is 4,068 km. From the Egyptian border to Wadi Halfa and Khartoum navigation is limited by cataracts to short stretches but the White Nile from Khartoum to Juba is navigable at almost all seasons.
The Blue Nile is not navigable.

The Sudan Railways operate 3,700 km. of steamer services on the navigable reaches of the Nile, touching Juba, Gambeila, Wau, Shellal (in Egyptian territory), and Dongola. These services connect with the Egyptian main railway services and the Nile river services of Kenya

SHIPPING

Sudan Railways: Atbara; responsible for operating Port Sudan.

Port Sudan, on the Red Sea, 490 miles from Khartoum, is the only seaport. There are eleven fully equipped berths,

SWAZILAND

INTRODUCTION

Swaziland is the smallest of the three former High Commission Territories. It is bounded by South Africa on three sides, with Portuguese East Africa (Mozambique) to the east. There are four geographic divisions: the mountainous western Highveld, the farming country of the Middleveld, the Lowveld which is hot woodland, and in the east the Lubombo mountains, through which the main rivers pass. The biggest town is the capital, Mbabane. The flag has red, blue and yellow bands with a superimposed Swazi shield.

Swaziland is less advanced constitutionally than either of her two former sister territories (Botswana, formerly Bechuanaland, and Lesotho, formerly Basutoland) which attained independence towards the end of 1966. In October 1966, the British Government published a White Paper on a constitution which gives Swaziland internal self-government. The White Paper included a draft agreement for changing the territory's status to that of a Protected State with the Ngwenyama (Paramount Chief) recognized as King of Swaziland. Britain's protection will continue until Swaziland attains complete independence not later than the end of 1969. The new constitution came into operation following general elections in April 1967.

STATISTICS

Area: 6,704 sq. miles; of which more than 56 per cent is reserved for occupation by the Swazi.

Population (Census April-May 1962): European 8,040, Eurafrikan 2,260; African 270,000 (estimate 1963). (Census May 1966): Total 390,000; African employment (1965): Agriculture 11,226, Forestry 3,277, Mining 1,949 (6,458 were recruited for mines in South Africa in 1965), Food and Drink Manufacture 1,768, Wood and Wood Products Manufacturing 1,179, Pulp Manufacturing 936, Construction 1,370, Trade 1,159, Transport 351, Government Services 4,992, Electricity Services 154, Communications 178, Community Services 442.

Agriculture (1965): Sugar £4,856,000, Cotton £491,700, Citrus Fruit 444,500, Rice £296,000. Livestock: Cattle 510,085. Forestry: Established Plantations 263,500 acres.

Mining (1965—short tons): Asbestos 40,883, Barytes 504, Iron Ores 1,124,310, Coal 33,032, Tin 1.72, Pyrophyllite 1,014, Kaolin 829, Gold 1,619 fine ozs., Silver 130 fine ozs.

Currency: South African Rand. R.1=100 cents=10s sterling=U.S. $1.40.

Finance (1967-68 estimate): Revenue R.7.026m., Grant-in-Aid R.1.8m.; Expenditure R.8.95m.

External Trade (1965): Imports £13,235,500, Exports £15,182,750 (Chief exports: Asbestos £2,896,750, Iron Ore £2,213,350, Sugar £4,381,500, Wood Pulp and Forest Products £3,902,300).

Education: Schools in Swaziland were, up to 1962,

Sugar is the principal item in the economy and the 1966/67 crop is expected to be in the region of 160,000 short tons. The marketing arrangement with South Africa was terminated on December 31st, 1964, and Swaziland became a member of the Commonwealth Sugar Agreement with an Overall Quota of 123,000 tons and, within that, a Negotiated Price Quota of 95,200 tons. Cattle form the main wealth of the Swazi people, while wood pulp, citrus, cotton, rice and maize are important agricultural products. There are considerable mineral reserves, especially asbestos, iron ore and coal. Manufacturing industries are concerned mainly with processing agricultural, livestock and forestry products. In 1964 the territory's first industrial estate was opened at Matsapha and several secondary industries have become established there.

The trans-territorial highway is tarred for about 70 miles, the remaining 37 miles being of high-standard gravel. Other main roads have good gravel surfaces. The country's rail link with the Mozambique coast, opened in November 1964, makes possible the export of iron ore to Japan from the rich deposits north of Mbabane. The line is being increasingly used for the export of agricultural products and manufactures.

classified as African, European or Eurafrikan. The policy of integration was put into practice in January 1963, and while the original race will predominate in the respective schools for some years, it is inappropriate to describe them as African, European or Eurafrikan.

There were in 1965, 364 schools with over 52,000 pupils. Of the total enrolment, 49,513 were in primary classes, 2,930 in secondary classes, 159 training as teachers, and 106 in technical and vocational training classes.

CONSTITUTION

A new constitution giving Swaziland internal self-government was brought into operation in April 1967. The constitution recognizes the Ngwenyama (Paramount Chief) as King of Swaziland and Head of State. It provides for a Parliament consisting of a House of Assembly with 24 elected and six nominated members, and the Attorney-General who would have no vote, and a Senate comprising 12 members, six elected by the House of Assembly and six appointed by the King. The franchise is universal adult suffrage. The post of Her Majesty's Commissioner is retained. He is also the British Government representative and has special responsibilities for external affairs, defence and internal security, and finance and the public service. Subject to the powers conferred on Her Majesty's Commissioner, the executive authority for Swaziland is vested in the King and exercised through a Cabinet presided over by the Prime Minister and consisting of the Prime Minister, the Deputy Prime Minister and up to six other Ministers.

The elections for the first House of Assembly took place in April 1967.

GOVERNMENT

Ngwenyama (King) of Swaziland: H.M. SOBUZA II, K.B.E.
Her Majesty's Commissioner: Sir FRANCIS LOYD, K.C.M.G., O.B.E.

Fair road connections exist with Lourenço Marques, Piet Retief, Carolina, Breyten and Ermelo. There are about 800 miles of main roads and 400 miles of branch roads.

CIVIL AVIATION

The main airport, Matsapha, has a 4,800 ft. tar-primed gravel runway and can take twin-engined and some four-engined aircraft. Scheduled flights are in operation between Johannesburg, Durban and Lourenço Marques. There are about 20 privately owned grass landing strips distributed throughout the country, used by light aircraft.

SYRIAN ARAB REPUBLIC

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The Middle Eastern state of the Syrian Arab Republic lies on the Mediterranean Sea with Turkey to the north, Iraq to the east and Jordan to the south. The Lebanon and Israel are to the south-west. Much of the country is mountainous and semi-desert. The coastal climate is hot in summer with mild winters. The inland plateau and plains are hot and dry but cold in winter. The national language is Arabic, with Kurdish a minority language. More than 80 per cent of the population are Moslems but there is an important Christian minority of various sects. The flag is a horizontal tricolour, red, white, black, the central stripe being charged with three five-pointed green stars. The capital is Damascus.

Recent History

In February 1958 Syria united with Egypt to form the United Arab Republic but following an army coup d'état in September 1961 Syria seceded and formed the independent Syrian Arab Republic. After a short period of civil rule a further army coup took place in March 1962 followed by a third in March 1963. Further changes of government in 1963 brought the army leader General El-Hafez to the Presidency of the National Revolutionary Council, with a predominantly Baath party cabinet under his own premiership. Since that time the economy has been centralised. In February 1966, after a number of cabinet changes, the army, in a violent coup d'état instigated by Baathist extremists, deposed the government of President Hafez, replacing him by Dr. Noureddine el Atassi. In December 1966 the Syrian Government closed the oil pipeline to Banias and seized all other properties of the Iraq Petroleum Company as a result of a disagreement over increased royalties and back payments. The pipeline was reopened in March 1967 after the Oil Company agreed to pay additional royalties, and the Government suspended its demand for back payment pending further talks.

Government

Syria has a Republican form of Government with an appointed President. A Council of Ministers conducts the day-to-day running of the country.

Defence

Syria has an army, navy and air force. National service is compulsory, and lasts for two years except for persons with special qualifications, who serve for one and a half years. Syria is a member of the Arab League Unified Military Command.

Economic Affairs

Seventy-four per cent of the population are engaged in agriculture, which in 1961 provided about 35 per cent of the national income. Wheat and cotton, quantities of which are exported, are the chief crops. There are oil and minerals resources, not yet fully exploited. Textiles and food processing are the most important industries. Aleppo and Damascus are thriving commercial centres, and revenue from the transit trade to Iraq, Jordan and the Lebanon, and from the oil pipelines which pass through Syria help to cover the trade deficit. Rationing of supplies was introduced in 1963 to combat hoarding and monopolies. Many foreign companies and private businesses have been nationalised. Agreement was reached with a German consortium in 1965 for the construction of a dam across the Euphrates, a high-water relief plant and a power station and a £509 million loan was granted by the U.S.S.R. in 1966.

Transport and Communications

Railways run from Damascus to Homs, Hama and Aleppo and to Beirut in the Lebanon and Amman in Jordan. There is a line from Homs to Tripoli in the Lebanon, and lines from Aleppo to Turkey and Iraq. There is a network of 3,603 miles of main roads and all the principal towns are connected by road. The chief ports are Banias, the oil terminal, and Latakia. The Iraq Petroleum Company's oil pipeline from Iraq crosses Syria to Banias. The Arabian American Oil Co. pipeline (TAPLINE) from Saudi Arabia crosses Syria to Sidon in the Lebanon. International services to Damascus and Aleppo are provided by Syrian Airways and major foreign companies. In 1964 contracts were awarded to a French company for construction of a major international airport near Damascus.

Social Welfare

State hospitals provide free medical care for persons unable to afford private medical attention. Old age pensions, and other benefits, are provided by law.

Education

The government aims to provide sufficient schools to ensure universal primary education. In 1965, 665,805 children received primary education and 161,079 secondary education. There are universities at Damascus and Aleppo.

Tourism

Syria's tourist attractions include an attractive Mediterranean coastline, the mountains, the town bazaars and the antiquities of Damascus and Palmyra.

Visas are not required to visit Syria by nationals of the following countries: Arab League states, Aden and the South Arabian Federation states, Bahrain, Chad, Cyprus, Mauritania, Muscat and Oman, Qatar, Somalia, Trucial States and U.S.S.R.

Sport

The principal sports are football, basketball, volleyball, tennis and swimming.

Public Holidays

1967: June 22 (Birth of the Prophet), December 25 (Christmas Day).

1968: January 1 (New Year's Day), January 2 (Id ul Fitr), February 22 (Unity Day), March 8 (National Day), March 10 (Id ul Adha), March 31 (Muslim New Year), April 14 (Easter), April 17 (Evacuation Day).

PROVISIONAL CONSTITUTION

The following is a summary of a Provisional Constitution issued on April 25th, 1964:

CHAPTER I

Syrian Arab Republic

The Syrian Region is a sovereign democratic popular socialist republic forming part of the Arab Homeland. Islamic law is a main source of legislation. The religion of the chief of state is Islam. Arabic is the official language of the country. Damascus is its capital. The country's flag will be rectangular with three equal horizontal stripes—red, white and black. The white section shall bear three five-point green stars in a straight row.

CHAPTER II

Basic Principles

All citizens are equal before the law as regards rights and obligations. The state guarantees citizens freedom, security, and equal opportunities. The freedom of the individual is sacred. Every person is innocent until proven otherwise. Investigation or arrest of anyone is not allowed except in accordance with the law. The law guarantees the right of defence. No act shall be considered as crime and no penalty inflicted unless defined by law. Laws apply to acts subsequent to their going into force. They shall have no retroactive effect, but text to the contrary may be included in a law on matters not of a penal nature. Homes are inviolable and may not be entered or searched except under conditions and circumstances specified by the law. Public freedoms are guaranteed and a law shall organise their practice. Deporting citizens from the homeland is not allowed. Each citizen shall enjoy the right of residence and movement in Syrian territory unless he is prevented from doing so by a court judgement issued in execution of health laws or general safety. Political Refugees may not be extradited because of their political opinions or for defending liberty. Freedom of belief is secure and the state respects all religions, guarantees practice of all rites, provided this does not conflict with public order.

Every national has a right to education. The state shall endeavour to form a generation strong in body, mind and character, confident in its spiritual heritage and proud of its Arab virtues. Work is the right of all citizens and a duty dictated by honour. The state shall provide work for all and guarantee same by building a nationalist, socialist economy capable of raising citizens to a respectable standard. The state protects labour and guarantees fair wages for workers, defines working hours, guarantees social insurance and organisation of rest and leaves. The formation of trade unions is guaranteed on basis of independence of trade unions and their responsibilities recognised in building the national economy on a socialist basis, all this to be defined by law. The state guarantees help to all nationals and their families in cases of emergency, sickness, incapacity, orphanage and old age. The state protects the national's health and allows him medical treatment. The Family is the basic cell of society and is under the protection of the state. Defence of the homeland is a sacred duty of all nationals. Military service is obligatory and shall be defined by a special law. Nationals shall exercise their rights and enjoy their freedoms guaranteed by law provided this does not jeopardise state security, national unity, the Republic's establishments, and the popular objectives of the revolution and socialism.

CHAPTER III

Property, Production, Inheritance

The state places all the resources and potentials of the country at the disposal of the people in accordance with a plan excluding exploitation and which aims at developing national income and distributing it justly and in accordance with producers' efforts. The natural wealth is the property of the people. Collective ownership of means of production is the basis of socialist society. Collective ownership of the means of production shall be as follows:

- (a) State Ownership represented in the public sector, shouldering all major responsibilities of development schemes, as well as public utilities, major communication systems, and production facilities having to do with basic needs of the people.
- (b) Co-operative or Producers' Ownership.
- (c) Private or individual ownership to participate in development on condition it does not conflict with growth of public sector and building of a socialist economy.

Private ownership is guaranteed. A law shall define its social function. Private property may not be appropriated save in the public interest and for adequate compensation according to law. The law shall define the maximum ceiling of ownership. The state encourages the principle of co-operatives and works for protection and support of all co-operative establishments. The state may nationalise, by law, any establishment or project bearing on public interest against payment of adequate compensation. The right of inheritance is guaranteed according to law.

CHAPTER IV

Legislative and Executive Powers

The National Revolutionary Council will exercise legislative powers and control operation of the executive authority. The National Revolutionary Council shall perform the following functions:

- (a) Elect the President of the Presidency Council, the Vice-President, and members.
- (b) Revise the provisional constitution and draft a permanent constitution.
- (c) Conduct referendum.
- (d) Determine number of ministries, define their functions, merge or cancel them and change their designations.
- (e) Lay down a general state policy programme and formulate scheme for transition period.
- (f) Approve state budget, impose taxes, reduce or cancel and exempt from them or in part.
- (g) Decide on matters of peace or war.
- (h) Grant confidence to or withdraw confidence from the cabinet or from any minister.

The National Revolutionary Council shall be composed of its present members and of representatives of the people's sectors whose number and manner of representation shall be defined by decree. The Council shall, at its first meeting, elect its President and members of his office. The Council shall meet three times annually, the first time at the beginning of October, the other two to be fixed by decree later in accordance with the Council's by-laws. The Revolutionary Council shall convene at request of its President for extraordinary meetings either per request of Council or on written demand of one fourth of its members. Members of the Council shall enjoy immunity during Council sessions. They may not be prosecuted penally or any penal judgement enforced against them except after approval of the National Revolutionary Council. They may not be arrested unless caught red-handed, in which case the Council must be immediately advised. Before assuming his duties each member of the Council shall take the following oath before the members of the National Revolutionary Council:

"I swear by Almighty God to be faithful to the Country's constitution, protect it and the homeland's independence and the public interests. I further swear to abide by the laws of the country and honourably perform my duty for the attainment of the revolution objectives in Unity, Freedom and Socialism."

Compensation and expenses of members of the National Revolutionary Council shall be defined by decree. A member of the N.R.C. may not use his office to further personal interests in any business or other activity. The N.R.C. has the right to grant amnesty, by its absolute majority, for crimes committed prior to the proposed pardon. The N.R.C. has the right to appoint committees or delegate one or more of its members to conduct specific investigations, in which case all Ministers and government employees are under obligation to submit any documents, certificates or statements required of them. Meetings of the N.R.C. shall not be valid unless attended by an absolute majority. The N.R.C. and each member thereof has the right to propose laws for adoption. If the N.R.C. approves a law, the Presidency Council shall promulgate it within fifteen days from date of approval. In case the Council approves the law as "urgent" by absolute majority, the law must be promulgated within the period specified, and if the Presidency Council does not issue it in time, the N.R.C. President himself shall immediately do so.

Executive powers are to be exercised by the Presidency Council and the Council of Ministers within the limits prescribed by the constitution. The Presidency Council is to be composed of a President, a Vice-President and three members chosen by the N.R.C. from amongst its members. The Presidency Council shall be responsible to the N.R.C. in all its activities. The Presidency Council has the right to appoint and dismiss ministers, issue special pardon, allocate medals and nominate diplomatic envoys and dismiss them. The Presidency Council has the right to take decisions in matters relevant to functions of the National Revolutionary Council when the latter is absent, but if, on its return, the N.R.C. rules against same with a two-thirds majority, then decisions taken by the Presidency Council would be null and void. After approval by Council of Ministers, the Presidency Council may conclude treaties and agreements and advise the N.R.C. of same, these agreements and treaties acquiring the force of law after conclusion, approval, and promulgation according to law. In so far as concerns treaties of peace and of alliance, however, having to do with national sovereignty, or agreements granting concessionary rights to form companies and establishments, these will be valid only after approval by the National Revolutionary Council. The Presidency Council may declare a state of emergency or partial mobilisation, by decree, on condition that this is submitted to the N.R.C. at its first meeting. The Presidency Council may declare total mobilisation in the event of attack on the country or on any other Arab country on condition that it calls the N.R.C. to an extraordinary meeting to ratify its decision.

The Presidency Council shall lay down internal and external policy and direct the Council of Ministers which, in turn, will supervise the ministers and their work. The Presidency Council has the right to cancel decisions of the Council of Ministers or Ministers, or modify them in case they contravene the constitution or the law, or if it deems them harmful to the public interest. The Presidency Council has the right to appoint civil servants and military personnel as well as dismiss them, within the limits of the law. The Head of the Presidency Council shall receive accredited members of foreign diplomatic missions and represent the country at international conferences. The President of the Council will sign laws and decrees issued by the Presidency Council as well as the organisational and ordinary decrees submitted to him. The President of the Council shall exercise the functions of Chief of State as applied to laws and regulations not conflicting with the terms of this provisional constitution.

No member of the Presidency Council may become minister or deputy minister. The Cabinet shall consist of a Prime Minister, and ministers. One or more Vice-Premiers may be appointed, likewise ministers without portfolios and under-secretaries of state, all of whom to be governed by the considerations applying to ministers. The Prime Minister shall be a member of the National Revolutionary Council. The cabinet is jointly responsible to the National Council for execution of general policy and each minister is responsible for his respective ministry. The Council of Ministers shall convene under the chairmanship of its Premier or whomsoever is appointed by him to consider the following matters:

(a) Draft bills; (b) Organisational decrees; (c) Draft state or other budgets; (d) Internal or external policy; (e) Matters the Prime Minister may suggest be submitted to it, or any minister, with approval of Premier, may submit; (f) Other matters specified by the law.

The Premier shall conduct meetings he presides at; Co-ordinate work of different ministers; Has sole right of asking for vote of confidence in his cabinet at National Assembly; May delegate some of his powers to other Ministers.

On resignation of a cabinet or withholding of confidence from it, the ministers will remain at their posts until a new cabinet is formed.

CHAPTER V Judicial Powers

The judges are independent and subject to no domination other than that of the law. No authority is allowed to interfere with matters concerning justice. The law shall organise the judicial machinery and define its functions. Judges may not be dismissed as specified in the law. Prosecution is a judicial establishment headed by the Minister of Justice.

The law shall define the situation of extraordinary tribunals, their functions and requirements on its judges.

CHAPTER VI Financial Matters

The government shall prepare the general state budget. The National Revolutionary Council is solely empowered to ratify it. The beginning of the fiscal year shall be determined by a law. In the event the N.R.C. is unable to approve the draft budget at the beginning of the fiscal year specified, provisional monthly credits shall be opened, by ministerial decree, on the basis of one-twelfth of the annual estimates. Final accounts for the year shall be submitted to the N.R.C. Closing of these accounts shall be effected by decree. Imposition, modification or cancellation of taxes is allowed only by law. Present legislation shall remain in force provisionally until modified to conform with stipulations of this constitution.

SYRIAN ARAB REPUBLIC—(THE GOVERNMENT, DIPLOMATIC REPRESENTATION)

This provisional constitution shall remain operative until announcement of the permanent constitution approved by the people. This provisional constitution can be revised if revision is proposed by the Presidency Council or any one-fourth of members of the N.R.C. Revision is effected if approved by two-thirds of members of the N.R.C.

Military Order No. 1, March 8th, 1963, and Legislative Decree No. 68 dated June 9th, 1963, are hereby cancelled.

RAILWAYS

Syrian Railways: Registered Office: B.P. 182, Aleppo; Pres. of the Board of Administration SAMIH ATTYEH; Gen. Manager ABDULKERIM EL CHAMI.

The present railway system is composed of the following network:

Meydan Ekbez (Turkish frontier) - Aleppo; Çobanbey (Turkish frontier) - Aleppo; Qamishliya (Turkish frontier) - Jaroubich (Iraq frontier); Aleppo-Homs; Homs-Koussair (Lebanese frontier); Homs-Akkar; (Lebanese frontier); there were (1965) 543 km. of railway lines, 41 steam-engines, 4 diesel rail-cars, 28 passenger carriages, 22 luggage vans and 1,092 goods wagons. A line from Latakia to Aleppo and Djezira is under construction.

Syrian Railways:

Northern Lines: 248 km.

Southern Lines: 295 km.

Hejaz Railways:

(narrow gauge): 301 km.

ROADS

Syrian roads may be divided into three main categories; the arterial roads, the secondary roads and the minor roads or tracks.

Arterial roads run across the country linking the north to the south and the Mediterranean to the eastern frontier. The main arterial networks are as follows: Sidon (Lebanon) - Quneitra-Swieda-Salkhad - Jordan border; Beirut (Lebanon) - Damascus - Khan Abu Chamat - Iraqi border - Baghdad; Tartouss - Tell Kalakh - Homs; Banias - Hama - Salemie; Latakia - Aleppo - Rakka - Deirzozor - Abou Kemal - Iraq border; Tripoli (Lebanon) - Tartouss - Banias - Latakia - Turkish border - Antakya; Amman (Jordan) - Dera'a - Damascus-Homs-Hama-Aleppo-Azaz (Turkish border); Haifa (Palestine) - Kuneitra-Damascus-Palmyra-Deirzozor-Hassetche-Kamechlie; Tripoli (Lebanon) - Homs-Palmyra.

Asphalted roads: 4,500 kms.

Macadam roads: 2,500 kms.

Earth roads: 6,000 kms.

PIPELINES

The three pipelines which cross Syrian territory are of great importance to the national economy, representing a considerable source of foreign exchange. One of the pipelines runs from the Iraq Petroleum Company's installations in Kirkuk to Tripoli in the Lebanon, cutting through approximately 300 miles of Syrian territory. Another line also crosses Syria en route to Sidon (Lebanon). The third line runs from Kirkuk through Homs to the port of Banias. In 1962 total exports through the Iraq Petroleum Company's Mediterranean pipelines was 53,205,000 tons. Exports from Banias terminal were 23,378,000 tons and exports from Tripoli terminal were 13,335,000 tons.

SYRIAN ARAB REPUBLIC—(TRANSPORT AND TOURISM, UNIVERSITIES)

SHIPPING

The port of Latakia has developed and the construction of a deep water harbour, which began in 1953, was completed in 1959.

The Iraq Petroleum Company has built a harbour at Banias to handle the oil transported in underground pipelines from Kirkuk.

TANZANIA*

(UNITED REPUBLIC OF TANZANIA)

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The United Republic of Tanzania consists of Tanganyika and the islands of Zanzibar and Pemba. Tanganyika lies on the east coast of Africa with Uganda and Kenya to the north, Congo Democratic Republic to the west and Zambia, Malawi and Mozambique to the south. Parts of Lake Victoria and Lake Tanganyika are within Tanzanian Territory. Zanzibar and its sister island Pemba are situated in the Indian Ocean about 25 miles off the coast north of Dar es Salaam. The climate varies with altitude, ranging from tropical in Zanzibar and on the coast and plains to semi-temperate in the highlands. The official languages are Swahili and English and there are a number of tribal languages. There are Christian, Hindu and Muslim communities. Many Africans follow traditional beliefs. The flag is a diagonal tricolour of green, black and blue, the stripes being separated by gold bands. The capital is Dar es Salaam.

Recent History

Formerly a United Nations Trusteeship Territory under British administration, Tanganyika became independent in 1961. The first general election was held in 1958, and in 1960 Julius Nyerere became Chief Minister when his party, the Tanganyika African National Union (TANU), won 70 of the 71 seats in the National Assembly. In 1962 Tanganyika became a Republic and Mr. Nyerere the first President. Zanzibar, a British Protectorate since 1890, became independent in 1963. Following an armed uprising by the African Afro-Shirazi Party in January 1964, the Zanzibar Government signed an Act of Union with Tanganyika in April 1964, thus creating the United Republic. Tanzania remains within the British Commonwealth and continues, with Uganda and Kenya, to be a member of the East African Common Services Organization. At General Elections in October 1965 President Nyerere was returned to power and in each constituency one of two TANU members was chosen by voters.

Government

An Interim Constitution, making the mainland a one-party state, was introduced in 1964. Executive power is in the hands of a President, who is elected by universal suffrage. The legislative organ is the unicameral National Assembly of up to 204 members. A Presidential election must be held whenever the Assembly is dissolved and new Assembly elections held. The country is divided into 17 Regions each with a Commissioner. Chiefs wishing to hold official posts must relinquish their tribal authority. There are no reserved seats for Europeans and Asians under the new Constitution.

Defence

The People's Defence Forces of Tanzania were formed in 1961 and consist of units of the former King's African Rifles and the People's Liberation Army of Zanzibar. There is no conscription. Total armed forces were estimated at 1,800 in 1966.

Economic Affairs

The economy is agricultural and most of the farming is at subsistence level. The chief cash crops are sisal, sugar, cotton and coffee. Cloves are grown on the islands, chiefly on Pemba. Livestock is extensively raised but cattle are subject to the disease-carrying tsetse fly. Diamonds are an important export and other minerals include gold, tin and salt. Textiles, food processing and other industries have been established. The Five-Year Development Plan, 1964-69, involves an expenditure of about £246 million. Tourism is a valuable source of revenue. In 1967 all banks were nationalized.

Transport and Communications

Railways and harbours are administered jointly with Uganda and Kenya and the services include lake shipping. There are 1,850 miles of railways and about 30,000 miles of roads. The three main sea ports are Dar es Salaam, Tanga and Mtwara and the chief port on Lake Victoria is Mwanza. Air services link the towns and international air transport is provided by East African Airways Corporation (operated jointly by Tanzania, Uganda and Kenya) and foreign lines. There are also private and charter services and the larger farms and plantations have their own aircraft.

Social Welfare

The state-sponsored Community Development Division exists to improve educational, labour and health conditions in small communities. The state operates hospitals and health centres and Christian Missions also provide medical care.

Education

Most schools receive state aid, the remainder being organised by missions and other voluntary agencies. There are not yet enough schools to provide universal primary education. The University College of Dar es Salaam forms part of the University of East Africa.

Visas are not required to visit Tanzania by nationals of the United Kingdom and Commonwealth or U.S.A.

Tourism

The principal tourist attractions are the scenery and wild life. The famous Serengeti National Park contains a great variety of game, and hunters and safari-parties come from all over the world. Mount Kilimanjaro (19,340 ft.) is the highest mountain in Africa.

Sport

Organised sports include football, cricket, athletics and tennis. There is big game hunting, fishing and swimming.

THE CONSTITUTION

Tanganyika became a Republic, within the Commonwealth, on 9th December, 1962, with an executive President, elected by universal suffrage, who is both the Head of State and Head of the Government. A presidential election will be held whenever Parliament is dissolved. Tanganyika is governed as a democratic society in which the Government is responsible to a freely-elected Parliament, representative of the people, and in which the courts of law are independent and impartial.

The structure of the legislative, executive and judicial organs of the Government are set out in the Interim Constitution of 1964.

The legislative powers are exercised by a Parliament of the United Republic, which is vested by the Constitution with complete sovereign powers, and of which the present National Assembly is the legislative house.

The National Assembly comprises 107 Elected Members, 20 ex-officio Members (the Regional Commissioners), 47 Appointed Members (41 from Zanzibar) and 15 National Members elected by statutory bodies. Provision is made for the total to reach 204 members.

The President has no power to legislate without recourse to Parliament. The assent of the President is required before any Bill passed by the National Assembly becomes law. Should the President withhold his assent and the Bill be re-passed by the National Assembly by a two-thirds majority, the President is required by law to give his assent within 21 days unless, before that time, he has dissolved the National Assembly.

To assist him in carrying out his functions the President appoints two Vice-Presidents from the elected members of the National Assembly and one of whom is usually resident in Zanzibar. The Second Vice-President is the leader of Government business in the Assembly. The Vice-Presidents and ministers comprise the Cabinet, which is presided over by the President.

The independence of the judges is secured by provisions which prevent their removal, except on account of misbehaviour or incapacity, after investigation by a judicial tribunal.

The Constitution also makes provision for the attainment of citizenship in accordance with the principles already approved by the National Assembly.

The Constitution can be amended by an act of the Parliament of the United Republic, when the proposed amendment is supported by the votes of not less than two thirds of all the members of the Assembly.

Until a Constituent Assembly adopts a new Constitution the United Republic will be governed according to the Tanganyika Constitution, modified to provide for Zanzibar a separate legislature and executive with competence over certain internal matters. The Central Government is responsible for external affairs, defence, police, emergency powers, citizenship, the public service, immigration, external trade and borrowing, income and other taxes, customs and excise, harbours, civil aviation, posts and telegraphs.

THAILAND

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Thailand is situated in South-East Asia and extends far south down the narrow Kra peninsula to Malaya. It is bordered to the west and north by Burma, to the north-east by Laos and to the south-east by Cambodia. The climate is tropical and humid with an average temperature of 85°F (29°C). The language is Thai. Hinayana Buddhism is the predominant religion and there are a number of Muslim Malays in the south. There is a Christian minority, mainly in Bangkok and the north. The flag consists of horizontal stripes of red, white, blue, white and red, the central blue stripe being twice the width of the others. The capital is Bangkok.

Recent History

Formerly known as Siam, Thailand took its present name in 1948. Marshal Pibulsonggram assumed power after a coup in 1947 but was himself overthrown in 1957. A further coup a year later established a military junta under Marshal Sarit Thanarat; martial law was declared and all political parties dissolved. Following the death of Field-Marshal Sarit in 1963 General Thanom Kittikachorn became Prime Minister. In 1961 Thailand joined with Malaya and the Philippines to form the Association of South East Asia (ASA). It is also a member of the United Nations, the Colombo Plan and the South East Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO), and in 1966 helped to establish the Asia-Pacific Council (ASPAC).

Government

Under the interim Constitution of 1959, the King is Head of State and exercises legislative power with the advice and consent of the National Assembly of 240 members. (A new Constitution is being drafted by the Assembly to replace that of 1959.) Executive power is vested in a Council of Ministers of which the Prime Minister is head. The country is divided into 71 Changwats or Provinces, each under a Governor.

Defence

The Armed Forces total 131,500; Army 85,000, Navy 23,000, Air Force 20,000, Reserves 3,500. Military service lasts two years between the ages of twenty-one and thirty. About 35,000 United States troops are stationed in the country.

Economic Affairs

The economy is agricultural with about 85 per cent of the working population employed on the land. The most important crop is rice, which is the staple food and the chief export. Other crops include sugar cane, coconuts and maize. More than half the country is forest territory, and heavy timbers are a valuable export. Tin is the most important mineral and there are deposits of lead and iron. Industry is being developed but does not yet cover a wide range of manufactures.

Transport and Communications

There are 2,246 miles of state railways which are being extended and modernised with the help of a World Bank loan of U.S.$22 million. There were approximately 9,500 miles of roads in 1965 and a seven-year improvement and construction plan, covering 6,000 km. of highways, was announced in 1965. The port of Bangkok is an important ocean junction in South East Asia and also serves Laos. Air transport is provided by Thai Airways, Thai Air International and numerous foreign lines.

Social Welfare

Government employees enjoy pension rights and sickness benefits. It is proposed to introduce a wider scheme under the Development Plans.

Education

Education between the ages of eight and fifteen is compulsory, wherever possible. In 1965, there were approximately 28,000 schools, five million students and 160,000 teachers. There are six universities and there are plans for a Southern University.

Tourism

Thailand is noted for its temples, palaces, and pagodas. The Royal Palaces in Bangkok have a world fame. The traditional dancing is very attractive.

Visas are not required to visit Thailand by nationals of the U.S.A.

Sport

Football, golf, badminton, Thai boxing (in which the feet are also used) and kite-flying are the most popular sports.

Public Holidays

1967: May 5 (Coronation Day), July 22 (Buddhist Lent), August 12 (Queen's Birthday), October 23 (Chullalongkorn Day), October 24 (United Nations Day), December 5 (King's Birthday), December 10 (Constitution Day), December 31 (New Year's Eve).

1968: January 1 (New Year's Day), February 24 (Makha Buja), April 6 (Chakri Day), April 13 (Songkran).

Weights and Measures

The Metric System is in force, but a number of traditional measures are also used.

Currency and Exchange Rates

The unit of currency is the baht of 100 satang.

Coins: 1, 5, 10, 25, 50 satang.

Notes: 1, 5, 10, 20, 100 baht.

Exchange rate: 57.730 baht = £1 sterling

20.745 baht = $1 U.S.

THE CONSTITUTION

Martial law was declared in Thailand on October 20th, 1958. Under a military junta, headed by the late Field-Marshal Sarit Thanarat, the Supreme Commander, all political parties of the National Assembly were banned. On January 28th, 1959, an interim constitution was promulgated and enforced by the King. It provided for the appointment of a Constituent Assembly of 240 members with power to draft a permanent constitution. This Constituent Assembly would, during the period of drafting, be empowered to act as the Legislative Assembly.

The interim Constitution provides that:

The sovereign power emanates from the whole Thai people; Thailand is a Kingdom, one and indivisible with the King as Head of State and of the Armed Forces of the Kingdom, and the person of the King is in a position that is sacred and inviolable.

There shall be a Privy Council consisting of not more than nine persons who shall be appointed and relieved of their duties at the King's pleasure.

The King shall enact laws by and with the advice and consent of the National Assembly; the Council of Ministers exercises the executive power and the Courts of Law exercise the judicial power in the name of the King.

During the enforcement of this interim Constitution, the Prime Minister is also empowered, by resolution of the Council of Ministers, to issue orders or take steps in repressing or suppressing either internal or external actions which may jeopardize the national security or that of the Throne or subvert or threaten law and order.

REPUBLIC OF TOGO

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The Republic of Togo lies on the coast of West Africa forming a narrow strip stretching north to Upper Volta with Ghana to the west and Dahomey to the east. The climate is hot and humid, temperatures averaging 80°F (27°C) on the coast and 97°F (30°C) in the drier north. The official language is French and there are a number of native tongues. The majority of the population follow animist beliefs; there are about 300,000 Christians and 75,000 Muslims. The flag consists of five stripes of alternate green and yellow, with a red section in the upper hoist charged with a white star. The capital is Lomé.

Recent History

Formerly a United Nations Trust Territory administered by France, Togo became an autonomous republic within the French Union in 1956 and achieved independence in 1960.

The leading political figure and first President of Togo, Sylvanus Olympio, was assassinated by military insurgents early in 1963 and Nicolas Grunitzky returned from exile to become President. In May 1963 a popular referendum approved his appointment and elected a new National Assembly from a single list of candidates. Togo is a member of the United Nations and of the Organization for African Unity. In March 1965 Togo joined the Conseil de l'Entente. An army coup d'état took place in January 1967. A new government under Colonel Dadjo was appointed after the voluntary withdrawal from office of President Nicolas Grunitzky. In April 1967 Lt.-Col. Etienne Eyadema took over the Presidency.

Government

Following the army coup d'état of January 1967, the 1961 constitution was suspended. Executive power is in the hands of a President and a Cabinet, and elections to a new Parliament were promised as soon as possible. The country is divided into four Regions each administered by an Inspector assisted by an elected council.

Defence

Togo's Armed Forces total about 1,000, including an Infantry Battalion and a small naval force. Under military agreements with France, Togo is helped with training and equipment.

Economic Affairs

Togo's considerable natural resources are still largely undeveloped. The economy is agricultural, the chief crops being manioc, maize and yams. Much of the forests and mineral reserves still have to be surveyed, but phosphates are being mined in increasing quantities. It is intended to set up industries, mainly for food processing. In 1961, Togo agreed with Dahomey to establish a customs union and make agreements on commodity prices.

Transport and Communications

There are 275 miles of railways, including three lines running inland from Lomé and a coastal line which joins with the Dahomey system. There are 3,200 miles of roads, of which about a quarter are all-weather roads. Three airports are in use and air transport is provided by four airlines.

Social Welfare

Medical services are provided by the Government and there is a General Hospital and 13 auxiliary hospitals.

Education

About half the schools provide free education and there are places for 40 per cent of children of school age. Mission schools are important and educate about half of the pupils. Scholarships are available to French universities.

Tourism

Big game hunting and fishing are the main attractions. There are a number of picturesque waterfalls.

Visas are not required to visit Togo by nationals of Cameroon, Central African Republic, Chad, Congo Democratic Republic, Congo Republic, Dahomey, Gabon, German Federal Republic, Israel, Italy, Ivory Coast, Madagascar, Mauritania, Niger, Nigeria, Senegal and Upper Volta.

Sport

There is little organised sport but football and lawn tennis are popular.

Public Holidays

1967: May 1 (Labour Day), August 15 (Assumption Day), November 1 (Memorial Day), December 25 (Christmas).

1968: January 1 (New Year's Day), April 27 (Independence Day).

THE CONSTITUTION

The Constitution of Tonga is based on that granted in 1875 by King George Tupou I. It provides for a government consisting of the Sovereign, a Privy Council and Cabinet, a Legislative Assembly and a Judiciary. Limited law-making power is vested in the Privy Council and any legislation passed by the Executive is subject to review by the Legislature. Tonga's relations with the United Kingdom are governed by the Treaty of Friendship, first signed in 1897 and revised in 1958.

The Cabinet consists of the Premier and the Privy Councillors.

The Legislative Assembly consists of the Speaker (President), the Privy Councillors and Cabinet Ministers who sit as Nobles, the Representatives of the Nobles and the Representatives of the People. Privy Councillors and Cabinet Ministers are ex-officio members. There are no nominated members. Franchise is open to all male literate Tongans of 21 and over who pay taxes, and all female literate Tongans aged 21 or more. There are elections every three years, and the Assembly must meet at least once every year.

Tongan Ministers control all departments of State.

TRINIDAD AND TOBAGO

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Trinidad, the southernmost of the Caribbean islands, lies within sight of the Venezuelan coast. The much smaller companion island of Tobago is 20 miles to the north-east. The climate is tropical with a dry season from January to May. Average annual temperature is 84°F (29°C). The language is English. Most of the population are Christians with Roman Catholics as the largest single group. There are Hindu and Moslem communities. The flag consists of three diagonal bands of white and black on a red background. The capital is Port of Spain.

Recent History

Trinidad and Tobago, formerly a British colonial possession, became a member in 1958 of the newly established Federation of the West Indies and in the following year achieved full internal self-government. With the secession of Jamaica from the Federation in 1961, Trinidad and Tobago withdrew and the Federation collapsed. In 1962 Trinidad and Tobago became an independent state within the Commonwealth, and in 1967 became a member of the Organization of American States.

Government

Legislative power is vested in a Parliament consisting of the Senate and the House of Representatives. Representatives are elected for a five-year term by universal adult suffrage. Members of the Senate are nominated by the Governor-General in consultation with the Prime Minister. The Governor-General is appointed by the Queen on the advice of the Prime Minister.

Defence

There is a small militia of enlisted troops.

Economic Affairs

Crude oil is of paramount importance, Trinidad being the second largest oil producer in the Commonwealth. It is also a major world supplier of natural asphalt. The chief crops are sugar, citrus fruits, bananas, coconuts, cocoa and rice. Important industries are oil refining and the manufacture of sugar, molasses, rum, fruit juices and cotton textiles. A new Development Plan was drawn up in 1963 following extensive damage caused by Hurricane "Flora".

Further diversification of the economy is planned, and the Government is studying economic co-operation with Puerto Rico and the Netherlands Antilles.

Transport

There is a state-owned railway but its functions are being taken over by road services, which are good with many buses and lorries. Port of Spain has a deep-water wharf and there are regular sailings to all parts of the world. Numerous airlines use Piarco airport.

Social Welfare

Old age pensions are paid, and there is unemployment relief. State medical services are free. A new National Social Security Scheme is to provide benefits for industrial injury, sickness, maternity and old age.

Education

Education is compulsory from the sixth to the fifteenth year. Many schools are run jointly by the state and religious bodies. The Faculties of Agriculture and Engineering and the College of Arts and Sciences of the University of the West Indies are at St. Augustine, Trinidad.

Tourism

The climate and coastline of Trinidad attract tourists and Tobago is also receiving a growing number of visitors. There are plans to construct a luxury resort on the north-west coast of Trinidad.

Visas are not required to visit Trinidad and Tobago by nationals of Belgium, Denmark, Finland, France, Iceland, Ireland, Italy, Liechtenstein, Luxembourg, Netherlands, Norway, San Marino, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, South Africa, Turkey, United Kingdom and Commonwealth and United States.

Sport

Cricket and football are the most popular games.

Public Holidays

1967: May 1 (May Day), May 15 (Whit Monday), May 25 (Corpus Christi), August 1 (Discovery Day), August 31 (Independence Day), December 25, 26 (Christmas).

1968: January 1 (New Year's Day), April 12 (Good Friday), April 15 (Easter Monday).

Weights and Measures

The Imperial System of weights and measures is in force.

Currency and Exchange Rates

The monetary unit is the Trinidad and Tobago Dollar (introduced in 1965).

Notes: 1, 5, 10, 20 Dollars.

Exchange rate: $4.80 Trinidad and Tobago = £1 sterling.
$1.68 Trinidad and Tobago = $1 U.S.

THE CONSTITUTION

Trinidad and Tobago attained independence on 31st August, 1962. The Constitution provides for a Parliament consisting of Her Majesty, a Senate and a House of Representatives.

The Senate consists of 24 members appointed by the Governor-General; thirteen on the advice of the Prime Minister, four on the advice of the Leader of the Opposition and seven on the advice of the Prime Minister after the Prime Minister has consulted those religious, economic or social bodies or associations from which the Prime Minister considers that such Senators should be elected.

The House of Representatives consists of 36 members elected by universal adult suffrage. The duration of a Parliament is five years.

The Cabinet, presided over by the Prime Minister, is responsible for the general direction and control of the Government. It is collectively responsible to Parliament. No more than two members of the Cabinet, apart from the Attorney-General, can be drawn from the Senate. The Cabinet must include the Attorney-General.

TUNISIA

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Tunisia lies on the Mediterranean between Algeria and Libya. The climate is temperate on the coast with winter rain and hot and dry in the southern desert. Arabic is the official language and French is widely used. Islam is the state religion and embraces the vast majority of the population. There are Jewish, Roman Catholic, Greek Orthodox and Protestant minorities. The flag consists of a red field charged with a white disc containing a red crescent surrounding a red star. The capital is Tunis.

Recent History

Formerly a French Protectorate, Tunisia became autonomous in 1955 and achieved independence the following year. In 1957 the monarchy was abolished and Habib Bourguiba became the first President. In 1961, following repeated demands by President Bourguiba that France should withdraw its troops from the naval base at Bizertia, a blockade was set up. French reinforcements were sent and heavy fighting broke out. After discussion in the United Nations a cease-fire was arranged and French evacuation negotiated in October 1963. In May 1964 Tunisia appropriated all foreign-owned lands, and France in retaliation withdrew most of her economic aid. Economic aid from France was recommenced after a cultural agreement was signed in 1966. Relations with the other Maghreb countries have been improved with the establishment of an Economic Council which will work for closer economic co-operation among the four North African states.

Government

Executive power is vested in the President, elected for a five-year term by direct suffrage, and a Cabinet of thirteen Secretaries of State and three Under-Secretaries. The legislative organ is the unicameral National Assembly of 90 members, which is elected by universal suffrage for five years at the same time as the Presidential elections. All citizens of twenty or over are entitled to vote.

Defence

The National Army numbers about 20,000 men. Officer-training is carried out in the U.S.A. and France as well as in Tunisia. The Navy and Air Force have only recently been brought into existence and consist of training cadres.

Economic Affairs

Agriculture and mining are the basis of the economy. The chief agricultural products are wheat, olive oil, wine and fruits. Phosphates, iron ore and lead are the principal minerals, and oil in commercial quantities was found in 1964. Planning has been introduced into the economy and is under the direction of the Secretary of State for Planning and National Economy. A Ten-Year Plan 1962-71 aims to double the national income.

Transport and Communications

The total length of railways is 1,287 miles, of which 990 miles are State-owned. 9,650 miles of highways and roads connect all the major commercial centres. There are four major ports and a special petroleum port at La Skhirra. Air transport is provided by Tunis Air and several foreign lines.

Social Welfare

A state system of social security provides benefits for sickness, maternity and old age. Free health services are available to 80 per cent of the population. Regional committees for social security care for the aged, needy and orphaned.

Education

Primary education is free and in 1966-67 there were 1,941 primary schools with 770,000 pupils. There were 70,836 pupils attending Secondary schools, 27,345 pupils attending intermediate courses and 6,830 students at the University of Tunis.

Tourism

The main tourist attractions are sandy beaches, oriental architecture and remains of the Roman Empire.

Visas are not required to visit Tunisia by nationals of Algeria, Austria, Belgium, Chile, Denmark, Finland, France, German Federal Republic, Ghana, Greece, Guinea, Iceland, Ireland, Italy, Ivory Coast, Japan, Kuwait, Liberia, Mali, Mauritania, Morocco, Netherlands, Nigeria, Norway, Pakistan, Senegal, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey, United Kingdom and Colonies, U.S.A. and Yugoslavia.

Sport

Football, swimming and boxing are the most popular sports.

Public Holidays

1967: May 1 (Labour Day), June 1 (National Day), June 20 (Birthday of the Prophet), July 25 (Republic Day), August 3 (Birthday of President Bourguiba).

1968: January 1 (New Year's Day), January 2 (Id ul Fitr), January 18 (National Revolution Day), March 10 (Id ul Adha), March 20 (Independence Day), March 31 (Ras El Am Hejri).

Weights and Measures

The Metric System is in force.

Currency and Exchange Rate

The unit of currency is the Dinar of 1,000 Millimes. The Dinar was devalued in September 1964.

Coins: 1, 2, 5, 10, 20, 50, 100 Millimes.

Notes: $\frac{1}{2}$, 1, 5 Dinars.

Exchange rate: 1.45 Dinars = £1 sterling.

0.52 Dinars = $1 U.S.

THE CONSTITUTION

TUNISIA, which had been a French Protectorate since 1881, was given full internal autonomy in September 1955, and finally recognised as a fully independent sovereign State by the Protocol of Paris of March 20th, 1956, by which France abrogated the former treaties and conventions.

NATIONAL ASSEMBLY

The Constitution was proclaimed by the Constituent Assembly on June 1st, 1959. Tunisia is a free, independent and sovereign republic. Legislative power is exercised by the National Assembly which is elected (at the same time as the President) every five years by direct universal suffrage. Every citizen who has had Tunisian nationality for at least five years and who has attained twenty years of age has the vote. The National Assembly shall hold two sessions every year, each session lasting not more than three months. Additional meetings may be held at the demand of the President or of a majority of the deputies.

Note: A Republican Council, consisting of leading members of the Government and of the Destour Socialist Party, was established in March 1966 to advise the President and to designate an interim President in the event of a vacancy in the Presidency.

HEAD OF STATE

The President of the Republic is both Head of State and Head of the Executive. He must be not less than forty years of age and is not permitted to serve more than three terms consecutively. The President of the Republic is also the Commander-in-Chief of the army and makes both civil and military appointments.

COUNCIL OF STATE

Comprises two judicial bodies: (1) an administrative body dealing with legal disputes between individuals and State or public bodies; (2) an audit office to verify the accounts of the State and submit reports.

ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL COUNCIL

Deals with economic and social planning and studies projects submitted by the National Assembly. Members are grouped in seven categories representing various sections of the community.

UGANDA*

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Uganda is an equatorial country in East Africa bordered by Sudan to the north, Congo Democratic Republic to the west, Kenya to the east and Rwanda, Tanzania and Lake Victoria to the south. The climate is tropical with an average temperature of 71°F (22°C). Temperatures vary seasonally by only 20°F (7°C). The official language is English and there are many local languages, the most important of which is Luganda. More than half the population follow Christian beliefs. There is a small Muslim minority. The flag consists of six alternate horizontal stripes of black, yellow and red. The capital is Kampala.

Recent History

Formerly a British Protectorate, Uganda became independent in 1962. A ministerial form of government was inaugurated in 1955 and the first direct elections were held in a limited number of constituencies in 1958. Country-wide elections were held in 1961 and 1962. Difficulties over the status of the semi-independent Kingdom of Buganda were resolved at the London Conference of 1961 when Buganda was given a federal relationship with the rest of the country. In October 1963 Uganda became an independent sovereign state, with the Kabaka of Buganda as first President. In February 1966 the Prime Minister, Dr. Obote, assumed full powers of government and revised the Constitution. The Buganda Lukiko (Parliament) rejected the new constitution, but after a military attack on the Kabaka's Palace the central government's control was restored. Uganda is a member, with Tanzania and Kenya, of the East African Common Services Organization.

Government

Under the revised Constitution of 1966 Uganda is an independent sovereign state within the Commonwealth. Executive power is vested in the President. Legislation is carried out by the unicameral National Assembly of 82 Elected Members and nine Specially Elected Members. The four Kingdoms of Buganda, Bunyoro, Toro and Ankole each have their own Legislature, called the Lukiko, Rukurato, Rukurato and Eishengero respectively. The country is divided for administrative purposes into Buganda and the Northern, Eastern and Western Regions.

Defence

The defence forces consist of two battalions and total about 2,000 men. £1.5 million is to be spent on the recruitment and training of a third battalion and an air force.

Economic Affairs

The economy is agricultural with coffee and cotton as the principal plantation and export crops. The rearing of livestock, and fishing on local lakes and on Lake Victoria are being developed. Copper is mined at Kilembe and is an important export. The chief industries are building and construction, food and drink, manufactures and electricity. A Five-Year Plan 1967-71 aims to double national income.

Transport and Communications

There are 528 miles of railways, operated under the East African Common Services Organisation. The total length of made roads is 14,598 miles. Steamers ply on Lake Victoria linking Uganda ports with those in Kenya and Tanzania. Air transport from Entebbe air port is provided by East African Airways Corporation and twelve other lines.

Social Welfare

Benefits are available for industrial accidents, sickness and unemployment. There are 26 Government hospitals with 4,857 beds and a large teaching hospital was opened at Kampala in 1962.

Education

Education is sponsored by the Government and by Missions, most schools being Government-financed or aided. Although the educational policy is one of integration, the majority of schools are uni-racial. The University College of East Africa (Makerere College) forms part of the University of East Africa.

Tourism

The forests, lakes and mountains are the main tourist features. The River Nile has its source in Lake Victoria. There is a variety of wild life in the National Parks and Game Reserves and excellent opportunities exist for big game hunting and fishing.

Visas are not required to visit Uganda by nationals of Denmark, Finland, German Federal Republic, Iceland, Irish Republic, Italy, Norway, Rwanda, San Marino, Spain, Sudan, Sweden, Tunisia, Turkey and United Kingdom and Commonwealth.

Sport

Football is the most popular sport.

Public Holidays

1967: May 1 (Labour Day), July 10 (National Day), October 9 (Independence Day), December 25-26 (Christmas).

1968: January 1 (New Year's Day), April 12-15 (Easter).

Weights and Measures

The Imperial system is in force. It is planned to introduce the metric system.

Currency and Exchange Rates

The unit of currency is the Uganda Shilling of 100 Cents. The former currency, the East African Shilling, will cease to be legal tender in September 1967.

Coins: 5, 10, 20, 50 Cents; 1 Shilling, 2 Shillings.
Notes: 5, 10, 20, 100 Shillings.

Exchange rate: 20 Uganda Shillings = £1 sterling.
7.17 Uganda Shillings = $1 U.S.

THE CONSTITUTION

(Published April 15th, 1966)

Uganda became independent on October 9th, 1962. On the first anniversary of this date it became a republic within the Commonwealth. A revised Constitution was published in April 1966, strengthening the Central Government and giving executive powers to the President. The President is the party leader whose party commands a majority in the National Assembly after a general election. There is a National Assembly comprising a Speaker, 82 elected members and 9 specially elected members, who are elected by the whole Assembly. The Speaker may be elected from in or outside the Assembly by the members of the Assembly. Executive power is vested in the President, advised by the Cabinet. All the Ministers are drawn from the National Assembly, and the Cabinet is responsible to the Assembly.

REGIONAL GOVERNMENTS

Uganda is divided into four regions: Buganda, Western, Eastern and Northern Regions. Buganda is ruled by the Kabaka assisted by a Parliament, the Lukiko. There are special relationships between the Central Government and the Kingdoms of Buganda, Bunyoro, Toro and Ankole, each of which receives grants from Central Government funds. The entrenched privileges of Buganda were abolished in 1966.

UNITED ARAB REPUBLIC (EGYPT)

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The United Arab Republic occupies the north-eastern corner of Africa. It is bounded to the north by the Mediterranean, to the north-east by Israel, to the east by the Red Sea, to the south by the Sudan, and to the west by Libya. The River Nile runs through the country from south to north, emptying into the Mediterranean Sea. The climate is arid, with a maximum rainfall of only eight inches around Alexandria. More than ninety per cent of the country is desert. Summer temperatures reach a maximum of 110°F (43°C), and winters are mild. Arabic is the official language. Many educated Egyptians speak English or French. Over 90 per cent of the population are Moslems. The remainder are mainly Christians, over a million of whom are Copts. The flag is a horizontal tricolour, red, white, and black; the white stripe is charged with two green stars of five points. The capital is Cairo.

Recent History

In 1952 King Farouk of Egypt was overthrown and in the following year General Neguib became the first President of the Republic. Later in 1953 Colonel Nasser replaced General Neguib as President, which position he still holds. President Nasser swiftly established his authority with radical reforms at home and a bold foreign policy. In 1956 the Suez Canal was nationalised and in 1958 Egypt united with Syria to form the United Arab Republic. Syria seceded from the union in 1961, but Egypt continued to be called the United Arab Republic. Since 1962 Egyptian forces have been aiding Republican forces in the Yemen in their war against the forces of the Imam. In May 1964 a Joint Presidency Council was established with Iraq, and in December 1964 a unified political leadership was announced and the political parties were unified. In May 1967 President Nasser secured the withdrawal of the UN Emergency Force from the Gaza Strip and threatened to blockade the Gulf of Aqaba to Israeli shipping.

Government

The highest authority is the President, elected for a six-year term. He is assisted by a First Vice-President and various Vice-Presidents. The Executive Council consists of a Prime Minister, Deputy Prime Ministers and Ministers. Elections to the National Assembly were held in February and March 1964. Half the members must be workers or peasants. The Assembly has a five-year term.

Defence

The United Arab Republic has an army, navy and air force. There is a compulsory two year period of National Service. The President of the Republic is the Supreme Commander of the Armed Forces, and the Ministry of War and the General Command of the Armed Forces are responsible for administration and operation.

Economic Affairs

Most of the population are engaged in agriculture. The chief crops are cotton, wheat, maize, millet, rice and sugar-cane. The country depends very largely on the waters of the Nile for its fertility, and the completion of the Aswan High Dam in 1968 will increase the fertile land of Egypt by one third. The planned creation of a huge artificial lake in the Qattara depression would make further substantial increases in Egypt's hydro-electric power resources. A programme of socialism has been substantially accomplished. All banks and insurance companies and most industrial and trading concerns have been nationalised, and steps have been taken to re-distribute land to the poorer peasants. The co-operative movement has been greatly encouraged and in 1964 there were 4,752 production co-operatives and 1,182 consumer co-operatives. In 1965 Suez Canal dues, an important source of revenue, amounted to £86 million.

Transport and Communication

The area of the Nile Delta is well served by railways. Lines also run from Cairo southward along the Nile to Aswan, and westward along the coast to Sollum. Roads link the towns. The chief ports are Alexandria and Port Said. Over 21,000 vessels used the Suez Canal, linking the Mediterranean and the Red Sea, in 1965. The River Nile carries much domestic freight and there are long-distance passenger services. Cairo is an important air centre and United Arab Airlines have branches all over the world.

Social Welfare

Great progress has been made in social welfare services in the last five years. There are comprehensive state schemes for sickness benefits, pensions, health insurance and training. There is a maximum seven-hour day.

Education

Primary education is extended to all children between the ages of six and twelve, and is free and compulsory. Seventy-eight per cent of all children of primary school age now receive primary education. There are six universities.

Tourism

The United Arab Republic has always been a considerable tourist centre. Historical remains of ancient civilisations include the Pyramids and the temples at Abu Simbel. The River Nile is popular for cruises. Over 500,000 people visited the United Arab Republic in 1965.

Visas are not required for visits to the U.A.R. by nationals of Algeria, Iraq, Jordan, Kuwait, Lebanon and Syria.

Sport

The chief recreations are football, athletics, basketball, horse-racing, tennis and swimming.

THE CONSTITUTION

Summary of the new Interim Constitution issued in Cairo on March 25th, 1964.

CHAPTER I

The State

The United Arab Republic is a democratic socialist State based on the alliance of the working powers of the people.

The Egyptian people is part of the Arab nation. Islam is the religion of the State and Arabic is its official language.

CHAPTER 2

The Fundamental Elements of Society

Social solidarity is the basis of Egyptian society. The family is the foundation of society. The State ensures equality of opportunity for all Egyptians. The economy of the State is based on the socialist system, which prohibits any form of exploitation, thus securing the building of a socialist society based on sufficiency and justice. The entire national economy will be guided in accordance with the development plan set by the State. Natural wealth contained in the subsoil and the territorial waters and all its resources and substance belongs to the State which undertakes its proper exploitation. The people control all means of production and dispose of the surplus production according to the development plan set by the State to increase wealth and realise a constant rise in the living standard. Ownership takes one of the following forms:

- State Ownership: which is the ownership of the people and is achieved by creating a strong and effective public sector leading to progress in all fields and shouldering the main responsibility in the development plan.
- Co-operative Ownership: which is the ownership of all those participating in co-operatives.
- Private Ownership: which implies the private sector partaking in development within the framework of the development plan without exploitation. All three sectors should be under the people's control.

Private ownership is protected; its social function is to be stipulated by law. Ownership is not to be expropriated except for public interest and in return for an equitable compensation as stipulated by the law. The law defines the maximum limit of land ownership and determines means of protecting small land holdings. The State encourages co-operation and looks after all co-operative organisations in all their forms. The State ensures, in conformity with the law, the protection of the family. The State ensures all social insurance services. Egyptians have a right to aid in old age, sickness, incapacity for work or unemployment.

Work in the U.A.R. is the right, duty and honour of every able-bodied citizen. Public posts are an obligation for those holding them. Government officials in the performance of their work should have the service of the people as their aim. The Armed Forces of the U.A.R. belong to the people. Their mission is to protect the socialist gains of the people's struggle, to protect the country, the safety of its land and its security.

CHAPTER 3

Public Rights and Duties

Egyptians are equal before the law, being equal with regard to rights and public obligations without any distinction in that respect with regard to race, origin, language, religion or belief. No criminal indictment or punishment is valid except in conformity with the provisions of the law, nor is punishment permissible except for offences committed after the issue of the law incriminating such acts. No person shall be liable to arrest or imprisonment except in conformity with the provisions of the Law. The right of defence by the person himself or by proxy is guaranteed by law. An Egyptian shall not be deported from the country or banned from returning thereto. An Egyptian shall not be forbidden residence in any locality or forced to live in any specific place except in respect of conditions set forth by the law. The extradition of political refugees is prohibited. The sanctity of a home is inviolable nor can it be entered except in the circumstances specified by law and in the manner specified thereby.

Freedom of belief is absolute, the State ensuring the free practice of religious rites, in conformity with establishing customs, provided such practice does not violate public order or morals. Freedom of opinion and of scientific research is guaranteed, every individual having the right to express his opinion and diffuse it by written, oral or any other means within the limits of the law. The freedom of the Press, printing and publicity is guaranteed within the limits of the law. Egyptians have the right of assembly without giving advance notice provided they observe calm and carry no firearms.

All Egyptians are entitled to education to be provided by the State, establishing all categories of schools, universities, cultural and educational organisations and expanding them and attaching particular importance to the physical, mental and moral development of the country's youth. The State shall exercise control over public education, to be regulated by law and to be free in all its stages in schools and universities. The State ensures Egyptians equitable treatment in accordance with the work they perform, fixes working hours and rates of wages, providing social insurance, health insurance, insurance against unemployment and leaves of absence. The establishment of professional and labour unions is a guaranteed right and they are to be considered bodies corporate under the terms stipulated by law. Medical care is a right to be enjoyed by all Egyptians, through state action by the establishment and expansion of all kinds of hospitals and sanatoria. Defence of the homeland is a sacred duty and military service is an honour for all Egyptians, being also compulsory in conformity with the provisions of the law. Payment of taxes and fulfilment of public obligations is a duty in accordance with the law. Voting is a right for all Egyptians in the manner specified by law and their participation in public life is a patriotic duty incumbent upon them.

System of Government

Section I—Head of the State

The Head of the State is the President of the Republic and exercises his prerogatives in the manner prescribed in this Constitution.

Section II—The Legislative Authority

The National Assembly is the authority which exercises the legislative authority in the manner prescribed in this Constitution. It shall exercise control over the activities of the executive authority in the manner prescribed in this Constitution. It shall be formed of members to be chosen by general secret elections. The number of elected members and conditions of membership as well as the method of election and its rules shall be fixed by law. The President of the Republic has the right to appoint a number of members not exceeding ten. It is stipulated that at least half of the number of members of the National Assembly should be workers and farmers. The age of a member of the National Assembly on the date of election should not be less than 30 calendar years. The term of the National Assembly shall be five years from the date of its first meeting. Elections for the renewal of the Assembly shall take place during the 60 days preceding the end of its term. Should the seat of a member fall vacant before the end of his term a successor is to be chosen in the manner specified in the Constitution within 60 days from the date of the notification of the National Assembly of the seat falling vacant. The term of the new member lasts only until the end of his predecessor's term. The President of the Republic shall convene the National Assembly and terminate its session. The National Assembly shall be situated in the City of Cairo. In exceptional circumstances it may be convened in another locality at the request of the President of the Republic. The National Assembly shall be invited to convene for its annual session before the second Thursday in November. If it is not invited it shall convene by force of law on the date mentioned. The ordinary session shall be seven months at least. It cannot be terminated before approving the Budget. The President of the Republic shall convene the National Assembly to an extraordinary session in case of necessity or on a request to this effect signed by a majority of the members of the National Assembly. Every member of the National Assembly shall take the following oath before the Assembly at an open sitting before performing his duty:

"I swear by Almighty God to sincerely safeguard the Republican régime, look after the interests of the people and the safety of the nation and respect the Constitution and law."

It shall be the duty of the National Assembly to decide on the validity of the membership of its members. A Supreme Court to be appointed by law shall be concerned with making investigation into the authenticity of the protests submitted to the National Assembly upon the request of its Speaker. The result of the investigation is to be submitted to the National Assembly for it to take a definite decision on the protest. Membership shall not be invalid except by a decision declared taken by a majority of two-thirds of the number of members of the National Assembly. The sittings of National Assembly shall be open sittings. However, it will be possible to hold meetings in camera upon the request of the President of the Republic, the Government, the Speaker of the Assembly, or 20 of the members of the National Assembly. It remains to the Assembly to decide whether the subject of the debate should be debated in an open meeting or in camera.

The National Assembly shall not take any decisions unless the meeting is attended by the majority of its members or in cases where no particular majority is required. The decisions shall be issued according to the absolute majority of those present. When votes are equal, the subject of the debate shall be considered as rejected. Every draft law shall be referred to one of the Assembly's committees for examination and submission of a report on it. No law shall be issued unless it is approved by the National Assembly. No draft law shall be approved unless each of its articles are voted for one by one. No draft law, proposed by a member and rejected by the National Assembly, shall be submitted again at the same session of the Assembly.

The levying of general taxes, the amendment or the cancellation of such taxes, shall only be effected by means of a law. Nobody shall be exempted from paying taxes except in the cases indicated in the law. No one shall be asked to pay additional taxes and duties except within the limits of the law.

The Government shall not conclude any agreement for loans and shall not commit itself to any project entailing the expenditure of State funds in a future year or years, without the approval of the National Assembly.

The general budget estimates shall be submitted to the National Assembly at least two months prior to the end of the fiscal year for discussion and approval. Each item of the budget estimates shall be approved one after the other. The National Assembly shall not make any amendment to the budget estimates except by the approval of the Government. In case the approval of the new budget is not obtained before the beginning of the fiscal year, the old budget will be effective until the new one is approved. Separate budgets, supplementary budgets and their accounts shall be subject to the rules and regulations related to the general State Budget and its estimates.

After its appointment, the Government shall submit its programme to the National Assembly for approval. The National Assembly shall supervise the work performed by the Government. The Government and its members shall be held responsible for their work to the National Assembly. The National Assembly shall discuss the political reports of the members of the Government.

The National Assembly shall have the right to withdraw confidence from the Government or any of its members.

UNITED ARAB REPUBLIC—(THE CONSTITUTION)

The Prime Minister and the Ministers shall have the right to address the National Assembly or its committees whenever they wish to do so. They may seek the help of any of the leading civil servants whom they may also delegate to talk on their behalf. The vote of any Minister shall not be counted when any subject is put to the vote, unless the Minister is a member. Every member of the National Assembly shall have the right to direct questions or interpellations to the Prime Minister or the Ministers with regard to any question within their jurisdiction. The Prime Minister and the Ministers must give answers to members' questions. Any interpellation shall be debated at least seven days after the date of its submission except in urgent cases and with the agreement of the Government. Twenty members of the National Assembly shall have the right to ask for a debate on a general subject with a view to clarifying the Government's policy towards it, and to compare notes regarding it. The Prime Minister shall have the right to ask the National Assembly for a vote of confidence in the Government on the occasion of submitting his programme, or on the occasion of submitting any Government statement dealing with the general policy of the country. The Prime Minister shall have to submit the resignation of the Government to the President of the Republic in case the National Assembly withdraws confidence from it. If the National Assembly decides to withdraw confidence from any Minister, he shall have to resign.

The President of the Republic shall have the right to dissolve the Assembly. Any decision in this respect shall call the electors to hold new elections within a maximum period of 60 days, and shall fix a date for the meeting of the new Assembly within the ten days following the completion of the elections.

Except in the case of flagrante delicto, no criminal action may be taken against any member of the Assembly, when it is in session, except with permission of the Assembly. If any such action is taken when the Assembly is not in session, it should be notified to it. No action may be taken against members of the National Assembly for the views and opinions they express while carrying out their duties in the Assembly or in its committees. Membership can be withdrawn only by a decision of a two-thirds majority and at the request of 20 members if a member has lost the confidence of the Assembly or his civil status, has failed to carry out the duties of his membership, has lost the status of worker or farmer on the basis of which he was elected, or has not attended regularly the meetings of the National Assembly or its committees.

No member of the National Assembly may at the same time assume a public position in the Government or the units of local administration. Other posts which may not be occupied by a member of the Assembly may be defined by law. No member of the National Assembly may be appointed to an organisation or a company during the term of his membership except in the cases defined by law. No member of the National Assembly, during the term of his membership, may buy or rent any State property or sell, lease or barter to the State any of his property.

Sub-Section I—President of the Republic

It is stipulated that the person who is to be elected President of the Republic should be Egyptian of Egyptian parents, enjoying his civil and political rights and of an age not less than 35 calendar years. The National Assembly shall nominate the President of the Republic and the nomination shall be submitted to the country for referendum. The referendum shall be held in the National Assembly for the position of the President of the Republic upon the proposal of a third of its members at least. The candidate obtaining the majority of two-thirds of the members of the Assembly shall be introduced to the country for a referendum. Should no candidate obtain the majority referred to the nomination is to be repeated after two days from the date of the first voting. The candidate shall be considered President of the Republic by obtaining the absolute majority of those who cast their votes in the referendum. If the candidate has not obtained this majority another candidate is to be nominated by the Assembly and the same method is to be adopted in this respect.

The term of the Presidency is six calendar years beginning from the date of the announcement of the result of the referendum. The President shall take the following oath before exercising duties of his position:

"I swear by Almighty God to safeguard sincerely the Republican system, respect the Constitution and the law, look fully after the interests of the people and safeguard the independence of the nation and the safety of its territories."

The law shall fix the salary of the President of the Republic. An amendment of the salary during the Presidential term in which the amendment is made shall not apply. The President of the Republic is not to receive any other salary or remuneration. During his term of presidency, the President of the Republic shall not be allowed to exercise any liberal profession, any commercial, financial or industrial work, purchase or hire any State property, or rent, sell or barter such property to the State.

The President of the Republic shall have the right to appoint one or more Vice-Presidents, and also to dismiss them.

The measures for the election of a new President of the Republic shall be started 60 days before the expiration of the term of the President of the Republic. The election of the new President will have to be made at least a week before the expiration of the term of the President. If the term expires before the election of the new President for one reason or another, the former President shall continue to exercise the duties of his post until a successor is elected. If any temporary bar should prevent the President of the Republic from exercising his duties, he shall delegate the Vice-President to assume his jurisdiction. In case of the resignation of the President, his permanent disability or death, the first Vice-President of the Republic shall take over temporarily. The National Assembly, by the majority of two-thirds of its members, shall decide that the post of the President is vacant. The choice of the new President of the Republic shall be completed within a maximum period of 60 days from the date when the post falls vacant. In case the President resigns his post, he should submit his resignation to the National Assembly.

Charging the President of the Republic with high treason or disloyalty to the Republican system shall be effected in accordance with a proposal submitted by at least one-third of the members of the National Assembly. The bill of indictment shall only be issued by the majority of votes of the members of the Assembly. The President shall cease to perform his duties immediately after the issuance of the bill of indictment. The first Vice-President of the Republic shall take over temporarily. The President shall be referred for trial before a special court appointed by law. If he should be condemned, the President shall be dismissed without prejudice to other punishments.

The President of the Republic in collaboration with the Government draws up the general policy of the State as regards all the political, economic, social and administrative aspects, and supervises its execution. The President appoints and relieves the Prime Minister of his office. The President also appoints and relieves Cabinet Ministers of his office. The same rules apply to the appointment of Deputy Prime Ministers, Ministers of State and Deputy Ministers. The President of the Republic has the right to call for the meeting of the Cabinet, to attend its meetings and to preside over the meetings he attends. Also he has the right to ask for reports to be submitted by the Government and Cabinet Ministers.

The President of the Republic has the right to suggest, propose and protest against laws. If the President of the Republic objects to a bill, he returns it to the National Assembly within 30 days from the date of its notification to him. If the bill is not returned within that period, the bill is considered law and is promulgated. If the bill is returned to the Assembly within the above-mentioned period and is again supported by two-thirds of the members, it is considered law and is issued.

If during the recess of the National Assembly or when it is dissolved anything happens that necessitates immediate action, the President of the Republic is allowed to issue decisions having the force of law. These decisions must be submitted to the National Assembly within 15 days of their issue if the Assembly still stands; or at its first meeting if the Assembly has been dissolved. If these decisions are not submitted to the Assembly, they shall retroactively lose their power as law, without the need for a further decision to be taken. In the event of the decisions being submitted to and rejected by the Assembly, they shall lose their power as law with effect from the date of their rejection. The President of the Republic, in exceptional circumstances, upon the mandate of the National Assembly has the right to issue decisions having the force of law. The mandate should be for a limited period; the subjects and bases of these decisions have to be determined.

The President of the Republic issues all security regulations and the procedure for enforcing the laws. The President of the Republic is ex officio the Supreme Commander of the Armed Forces. The President of the Republic declares war after approval by the National Assembly. The President of the Republic ratifies treaties and refers them to the National Assembly with any appropriate comment. They shall have the power of law after their adoption, ratification and publication in conformity with established usage. However, treaties of peace, alliance, trade, navigation, as well as all treaties involving modification in the territory of the State, relating to sovereignty rights or entailing financial expenditure not allocated by the State budget, shall not be valid if not adopted by the National Assembly.

The President of the Republic has the right to commute a penalty or reduce it; but a full pardon is not granted except by the issue of a law.

The President of the Republic appoints members of the Civil Service and officers of the Armed Forces and discharges them; he also accredits the foreign diplomatic envoys.

The President may order a plebiscite in order to consult the people on important issues involving the higher interests of the State; the manner in which the plebiscite is to be carried out shall be determined by the law.

Sub-Section II—The Government

The Government consists of the Prime Minister, the Deputy Premiers and the Ministers. The Prime Minister administers Government affairs and presides at the meetings of the Council of Ministers. The Government exercises the following functions:

1. Guiding, co-ordinating and revising the Ministers' work as well as that of the general organisations and authorities.

2. Issuing the administrative and executive decisions according to the laws and decrees and checking their implementation.
3. Preparing draft laws and resolutions.
4. Appointing and dismissing employees according to the law.
5. Preparing the draft of the general budget of the State.
6. Preparing the draft of the State's general plan for the development of the national economy and taking all necessary measures to ensure its execution.
7. Supervising the organisation and administration of the currency and credit systems, and of insurance operations.
8. Contracting and extending loans within the limits of the State's general policy.
9. Supervising all the general organisations.
10. Supervising the enforcement of laws, preserving the security of the State and protecting the rights of the citizens and the interests of the State.

The Government controls the work of the Ministries, as well as that of the local and general departments and authorities. It has the right to cancel or modify decisions which prove to be unsuitable in the light of the law. The control and inspection authorities are directly responsible to the Prime Minister.

Anyone who is to be appointed as Minister must be an Egyptian who is at least 30 years of age and who enjoys all civil and political rights.

The President and the National Assembly have the right to put a Minister on trial for any offences he may commit while conducting his duties. A National Assembly decision to level an accusation against a Minister should be at the request of at least five members. The accusation decision is not to be passed unless it obtains the support of two-thirds of the Assembly's members. The accused Minister will be suspended until his case is decided. The law appoints the authority which would undertake the trial of Ministers. It also provides for the accusation and trial procedures.

The Cabinet Ministers and the Deputy Ministers may be members of the National Assembly. Members of the National Assembly may be appointed Under-Secretaries of State for National Assembly Affairs. The law defines the rules relating to them.

Sub-Section III—National Defence

(a) Council of National Defence: A Council shall be set up to be called "Council of National Defence". The President of the Republic shall assume its command. The Council of National Defence is concerned with considering affairs relating to the means of safeguarding the country and its safety. The other jurisdiction is prescribed by the law.

(b) The Armed Forces: It is the State that raises the Armed Forces. No body or group is permitted to form any military or quasi-military formations. The State, in compliance with the law, organises the military training of youth, and regulates the National Guard. General mobilization will be organised in compliance with the law.

Sub-Section IV—Local Administration

The United Arab Republic is divided into administrative units. It is permissible for each or some of them to have corporate personality in compliance with the law.

The bodies representing the administrative units participate in the implementation of the general plan of the State. They are entitled to establish and administer public utilities and economic, social and health projects as prescribed by the law.

UNITED ARAB REPUBLIC—(THE CONSTITUTION, U.A.R.—IRAQ PRESIDENCY COUNCIL)

CHAPTER 5

The Judicial Authority

Judges are independent, with no power above them in making judgments except the law. It is not permissible for any authority to interfere in cases or in the affairs of justice. The court sittings are public unless the court decides to make them closed in the interests of public order and morality.

Judges are not subject to dismissal except as prescribed in the law. The law organises the function and jurisdiction of the Public Prosecution and its relation with the judiciary. The appointment of members of the Public Prosecution department, taking any disciplinary action against them or their dismissal are effected in compliance with the conditions approved by the law. The law organises the arrangement of the State Security Courts, and determines their jurisdiction and the qualifications of those who sit in judgment in these courts.

CHAPTER 6

General Provisions

The City of Cairo is the capital of the United Arab Republic.

The law prescribes the national flag and the provisions relative thereto.

The provisions of laws shall be applicable from the dates of their enforcement, and shall not be effective with respect to acts having taken place prior to these dates. However, in non-criminal provisions, laws may stipulate otherwise with the approval of the majority of the National Assembly members. Laws shall be published in the "Official Journal" within a fortnight from the day of their promulgation.

The President of the Republic and the National Assembly shall have the power to demand the amendment of one or more articles of the Constitution. The demand for amendment must show the articles required to be amended and the reasons for such amendments. In the case of the demand for amendment being made by the National Assembly, it shall be signed by at least one-third of the members of the Assembly. In all cases, the Assembly shall debate the principle of the amendment, passing its decision by a majority of votes. If the demand is rejected, another demand for the amendment of the same articles may not be put forward before the lapse of one year following the rejection. If the National Assembly approves the principle of the amendment, it shall, after two months of the approval, debate the articles required to be amended. The amendment shall become effective if two-thirds of the members of the Assembly approve it.

All provisions contained in laws, decrees, orders and regulations prior to the issue of this Constitution shall remain in force. Notwithstanding such laws, decrees, orders and regulations may be rescinded or amended in accordance with the principles and procedures laid down by this Constitution.

CHAPTER 7

Transitional Provisions

The term of office of the present President of the Republic shall end on March 26th, 1971.

The application of the Provisional Constitution issued on March 5th, 1958, and the Constitutional Declaration on the political organisation of the higher authorities of the State, issued on September 27th, 1962, shall lapse.

U.A.R.—IRAQ PRESIDENCY COUNCIL

(Established May 26, 1964)

An agreement was signed in Cairo on May 26th, 1964, setting up a joint Presidency Council for the two countries. The text of the agreement is given below:

PREAMBLE

Believing in the unity of the Arab nation as a unity springing from the common language and history and from the common Arab struggle and destiny, and realising the forgery of the artificial scheme reflected in the current political divisions on the Arab soil and which had been imposed by colonialism in accordance with its interests in exploitation and domination, the Arab nation finds itself bound by its unity stemming from historical facts and from experience. The aspirations of the Arab nation were embodied in a pioneering experience, namely that of the rise of the United Arab Republic between Syria and Egypt, to prove to the whole world that the slogan of unity was not a hope difficult to achieve but a fact which can be established in reality.

The elements of evil in co-operation with imperialism and reaction carried out the crime of secession. But the lesson of secession left behind a rich experience which in itself constitutes a shield protecting the future of and boosting the vigilance over unity. The banners of unity continued to rise, and the unity slogans continued to be repeated in the heart of every Arab in spite of the rash attempts to obstruct them. Then came the agreement of April 17th, 1963, to fulfil the unity between Syria, Egypt and Iraq. However, the lack of goodwill on the part of some also destroyed this attempt and the experience proved that the mere slogans of unity are not enough for the fulfilment of unity itself. Popular organisations aware of unity must be founded. Popular organisations must be united on the national level so they may have common and clear concepts. Unity of mind leads to unity of action, which must be based on realism and carried out in a revolutionary manner so it may render a chance for fulfilment of an all-embracing unity.

The revolutionary concept of unity is based on unity of peoples, unity of the working popular forces which have the interest and right in revolution. It is the unity of the Arab socialist society, the society of sufficiency and justice which seeks Arab social struggle so Arab unity may have a social framework to go hand in hand with its political framework, in expression of the Arab people's determination to establish a new and free tomorrow for the free Arab human being.

Moving from these principles, and on behalf of the people and Governments of the U.A.R. and Iraqi Republic, President Abdal Salam Muhammad Aref, President of the Iraqi Republic, and President Gamal Abdel Nasser, President of the United Arab Republic, have agreed on the following:

AGREEMENT

Article 1. A Joint Presidency Council of the United Arab Republic and the Iraqi Republic shall be formed of the President of the United Arab Republic, the President of the Iraqi Republic and a number of members.

Article 2. (a) The Council shall meet once every three months, and shall also meet under necessary circumstances as per agreement of the Presidents of the signatory countries.

UNITED ARAB REPUBLIC—(PRESIDENCY AND CO-ORDINATING COUNCILS)

(b) Cairo is the centre of the Joint Presidency Council; the Council can be invited to meet somewhere else by the agreement of the two Presidents.

Article 3. Resolutions of the Joint Presidency Council are binding and shall be in effect on ratification by the Council; this excludes the resolutions which require issuance of laws; this shall be carried out after their ratification in accordance with the constitutional procedures applied in each one of the two countries.

Article 4. Action in the Presidency Council shall be in accordance with the by-laws to be laid down by the Council and which shall be in effect upon ratification by the Council.

Article 5. The Presidency Council shall:

(a) Study and carry out the necessary steps for the establishment of unity between the two countries.

(b) Plan and co-ordinate policy of the two countries in the political, military, economic, social and cultural affairs and in the field of information.

(c) Fulfil unity of thought between the peoples of the United Arab Republic and the Iraqi Republic through the two popular organisations inside the two countries, and seek unity of the two organisations in future.

Article 6. (a) Each Government shall appoint their representatives in the Presidency Council according to the following manner: (1) Three full-time members with the ranks of Minister; (2) Three attending members from members of the Government.

(b) Full-time members shall follow-up the implementation of resolutions of the Presidency Council, shall co-ordinate work of the joint committees and shall submit studies and recommendations to the Presidency Council when it meets.

(c) The Presidency Council or the joint committees can invite technicians from both countries to attend the meetings if this is deemed necessary.

Article 7. The following organisations shall be established:

(a) The Political Committee,

(b) The Military Command,

(c) The Economic Committee,

(d) The Cultural and Information Committee,

(e) Committee for Socialist Thought,

(f) The Committee for Popular Organisation,

(g) Other committees the establishments of which may be deemed necessary.

These Committees shall study and prepare the various subjects for the purpose of fulfilment of this agreement, and shall also study the subjects referred to them by the Presidency Council.

Article 8. (a) The Joint Military Command shall co-ordinate armament, training and equipping the armed forces of the two countries, and shall lay down operation plans and movement of the armed forces, and shall assume their command in time of war.

(b) The Joint Command shall take the necessary measures to face a state of war or danger of war, and any aggression or threat of aggression against either one of the countries is directed against the other.

Article 9. The Presidency Council shall have a Secretariat-General with headquarters in Cairo. It shall be headed by a Secretary-General with the rank of Minister, and shall practice the following:

(a) Issue invitations for meetings of Presidency Council

(b) Prepare subjects for discussion by the Council;

(c) Register minutes of meetings of the Presidency Council and the joint committees, and publish the Resolutions after their ratification according to procedures in practice in both countries;

(d) Prepare budgets of the Presidency Council, the Secretariat-General, and the joint committees listed in Article 7.

Article 10. (a) Budget of the Presidency Council and the joint committees shall be shared equally by the two countries.

(b) Each country shall alone bear the salaries and remunerations of members and officials appointed by her, in accordance with its own fiscal regulations.

Article 11. There is nothing in rules of this agreement that infringe on rights and obligations borne by the two states under the UN Charter, nor do the aforementioned rules violate rules of any agreement signed within the framework of the Arab League.

Article 12. This agreement shall remain in effect until the necessary arrangements have been made to establish the union.

Article 13. This agreement shall be considered standing when ratified in accordance with the constitutional procedures in practice in both countries.

NATIONAL ASSEMBLY

Elections to a new National Assembly were held in February 1964 and the first session was in March 1964. Three hundred and fifty members, two from each of 175 electoral districts, were elected for a five-year term. One half of the members must be workers or farmers, or of comparable status.

President of the Assembly: ANWAR EL SADAT.

POLITICAL ORGANIZATION

There are no political parties in the ordinary sense, the old parties having been dissolved in January 1953. In November 1957, President Nasser established an organisation in Egypt known as the National Union. The aims of the Union were to realise the objectives of the 1952 revolution and to establish a socialist, democratic and co-operative society. In 1961 this Union was re-formed as the Arab Socialist Union, with President Nasser as Chairman of the Supreme Executive Committee. There were about 5 million members of the Arab Socialist Union in August 1964. It was agreed to merge the Egyptian and Iraqi Arab Socialist Unions in October 1964.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

The Courts of Law in the United Arab Republic are basically divided into four categories as follows:

1. The Supreme Court (Called The Court of Cassation)
2. The Courts of Appeal
3. The Primary Tribunals
4. The Summary Tribunals

Each Court contains criminal and civil chambers.

1. The Supreme Court

The highest Court of Law in the United Arab Republic. Its sessions are held at Cairo and its jurisdiction covers the whole United Arab Republic territory.

Final judgements rendered in criminal and civil matters may be referred to the Supreme Court—by the accused or the Public Prosecution in criminal matters, and by any of the litigants in civil matters—in cases of misapplications or misinterpretations of the law as applied by the competent court in final judgement, as well as in case of irregularity in the form of the judgement or the procedures having effect on that judgement.

The Supreme Court is composed of the Chief Justice, four Deputy-Chief Justices and thirty-six Justices.

Chief Justice: FOUAD GABER.

2. Courts of Appeal

There are six Courts of Appeal situated in the more important Governorates of the United Arab Republic: Cairo, Alexandria, Asyut, Mansura, Tanta, and Beni-Suef. Each of these courts contains a criminal chamber, The Assize Court, to try cases of felonies, and a civil chamber to hear appeals filed by any of the litigants in civil matters against a judgement rendered by the primary tribunal, where the law so permits.

President in Cairo: M. MAHMOUD ABD-EL-LATIF.

3. Primary Tribunals

In each Governorate, there is a Primary Tribunal, each of which contains several chambers. Each chamber is composed of three Judges. Some of these chambers try criminal cases, whilst others hear civil litigations.

Primary Tribunals sit as Courts of Appeal in certain cases, according to certain details.

4. Summary Tribunals

Summary Tribunals are branches of the Primary Tribunals and are situated in the different districts of the Republic. Each of these tribunals is composed of a single Judge.

Summary Tribunals hear civil and criminal matters of minor importance according to certain details.

The Sharia Courts or courts of Islamic Law, and the religious courts maintained by non-muslim minorities have been abolished since 1955.

The Public Prosecution

The Public Prosecution is headed by the Attorney-General and consists of a large number of Attorneys, Chief Prosecutors and Prosecutors; who are distributed among the various districts of the Republic. The Public Prosecution is represented at all criminal Courts and also at litigation in certain civil matters. Furthermore, the enforcement of judgement rendered in criminal cases is controlled and supervised by the Public Prosecution.

Attorney-General: AHMAD MUSA.

The Supreme Judicial Council

This Council exists to guarantee the independence of the judicial system from outside interference. Under the presidency of the Chief Justice, the Supreme Judicial Council contains the following members:

- the Chief Justice
- two Deputy Chief Justices
- the Under-Secretary of State for the Ministry of Justice
- the Attorney-General
- the President of the Court of Appeal in Cairo
- the President of the Primary Tribunal in Cairo.

All matters concerning the promotion, discipline or otherwise of the members of the judicial system are referred to this Council.

An Arbitration Bureau was set up in 1966 to investigate cases between state and public sector organizations.

RELIGION

Over 90 per cent of Egyptians are Muslims, and almost all of these follow Sunni tenets. Amongst the villages there are persistences of non-Islamic fertility rites, and to certain groups of Muslims in other countries Egyptian liking for ornamentation in the building of mosques, and broadness of religious outlook are matters for some mis-giving. The Coptic Church in Egypt claims descent from converts of St. Mark's mission to Egypt in the first century and it has been an independent monophysite Church since the fifth century. Its members number over a million, forming the largest religious minority; there is no discrimination of any kind against them, and they have contributed greatly to the cultural life of Egypt. Besides the Copts there are other Christian minorities, numbering about a quarter of a million and consisting of Orthodox Greeks, Roman Catholics, Armenians and Protestants. There is also a small Jewish minority.

CAIRO

Grand Sheikh of Al Azhar: HASSAN MAMOUN.

Mufti of Egypt: Sheikh AHMAD HOREIDI.

Coptic Orthodox Church: Azbakia, Cairo; f. 61 A.D.; Patriarch KYRILLOS VI.

Coptic Catholic Church: Patriarch Cardinal STEPHANOS I SIDAROUS, 34 Sh. Ibn Sandar, Koubbeh Bridge; 4 dioceses; 100,000 mems.; publ. Al Salah.

Greek Catholic Church: 16 rue Daher, Cairo; Patriarch of Antioch, of Alexandria and of Jerusalem H.E. Cardinal MAXIMOS IV SAIGH; 440,000 mems.

Greek Orthodox Church: Patriarch CHRISTOPHOROS II.

Armenian Orthodox Church: 179 Ramses Ave., Cairo; Archbishop MAMPRE SIROUNIAN.

Armenian Catholic Patriarchate: 36 Mohammed Sabri Abou Alam Street, Cairo; Archbishop RAPHAEL BAYAN.

Maronite Church: Archbishop PIERRE DIB.

Jewish Community: Office of the Chief Rabbi, Rabbi HAIM DOUEK; 13 Sebil-el-Khazindar Street, Abbassia.

THE PRESS

By Presidential Decree, May 1960, private newspapers and magazines were taken over by the State.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The United States of America occupies the North American continent between Canada and Mexico. Alaska to the north-west of Canada, and Hawaii in the central Pacific are two of the 50 States of the U.S. The climate is continental inland, temperate at the coasts (New York ranging from 0° to 90°F (-18° to 32°C)) but subtropical conditions prevail in the south. Much of Texas and Arizona is desert. The language is English, and Christianity is the predominant religion. Nearly all the 20 million negroes are Christians. There are five and a half million Jews. The flag is the Stars and Stripes, 13 alternating red and white stripes with 50 white stars on a rectangular blue field in the upper hoist. The capital is Washington.

Recent History

The U.S. entered World War Two in December 1941. By means of gigantic programmes of aid, including the re-habilitation of Japan and the Marshall Plan for Europe, America has financed the post-war recovery of much of the world. From 1950 to 1953 the U.S. provided large supplies of men, money and materials to support the United Nations forces in the Korean War. The U.S. has not yet recognised the People's Republic of China established in 1949 and gives recognition and much help to the island Republic of China (Taiwan). Since the death of Stalin, there has been some amelioration of the cold war between the U.S.A. and the U.S.S.R. although a point of crisis was reached in 1962 when President Kennedy successfully demanded the dismantling of the nuclear rocket sites erected by the U.S.S.R. on the island of Cuba. In November 1963 President Kennedy was assassinated in Dallas, Texas. His successor, President Johnson, has carried through Congress a wide programme of Federal intervention on behalf of under-privileged sectors of the community, though racial friction remains a potential source of domestic tension. Abroad, President Johnson has committed huge quantities of military and financial aid to the Republican Government in Viet-Nam. The U.S. space research programme in 1965-66 included a successful rendezvous in orbit between two craft, and high-resolution photographs of the Moon and Mars. In January 1967 the U.S., United Kingdom and U.S.S.R. signed a treaty for the peaceful use of outer space.

Government

The U.S.A. is a federal republic. Each of the fifty member states exercises a measure of internal self-government. Defence, foreign affairs, coinage, posts, the higher levels of justice, and internal security are the responsibility of the Federal Government. The President is head of the executive and is elected for a four-year term by a college of representatives elected directly from each state. The President nominates the other members of the executive. The Congress is the seat of legislative power and consists of the Senate and the House of Representatives. Two Senators are chosen by the Legislature of each state, to serve a six-year term, and one third of the membership is renewable every two years. Representatives are elected by direct and universal suffrage for a two-year term. Judicial power is vested in the Supreme Court of the United States.

Defence

In 1966 United States active forces comprised 1,159,043 Army, 854,498 Air Force, 723,723 Navy and 250,079 Marine Corps. The Strategic Air Command and Polaris nuclear submarines are equipped with nuclear weapons. The defences of the United States are organised on a global basis. It is a member of the NATO, SEATO and ANZUS Pact defensive organisations and co-operates closely with the Central Treaty Organisation (CENTO).

Economic Affairs

The United States of America is the world's leading economic power. Its chief imports are petroleum, non-ferrous metals, coffee, machinery, textiles and newsprint. In most other materials the country is self-supporting. This is reflected in the extreme diversification of the economy. Leading industries include steel, motor vehicles, aerospace industries, telecommunications, chemicals, electronics and all kinds of consumer goods. There are more than 30 million employed in services: clerks, shopkeepers, salesmen and professional men. The chief agricultural products are cereals, cotton and tobacco. Part of the large farm surpluses are given away to poor countries. The United States produces oil, coal, copper, iron, uranium, silver and many other minerals.

Transport and Communications

There is a comprehensive but diminishing network of railways operated by private companies. Long-distance buses provide swift and cheap travel to all parts of the country. Water transport is used on the Mississippi and other rivers and on the Great Lakes. Major ports include New York, Boston, Baltimore, New Orleans, Galveston, San Diego, San Francisco and Seattle. Chicago at the head of Lake Michigan handles large quantities of agricultural freight. Domestic air services are widely used and very frequent international services are provided by a large number of home and foreign companies.

Social Welfare

The Federal Social Insurance Act of 1935 provides for insurance to cover unemployment, old age, survivors and disability. Public assistance is granted by the fifty states. The 89th Congress laid the legislative foundations for the most far-reaching expansion of welfare services since the 'New Deal' of the 1930's. The Medicare Bill provides health-care insurance for the over-65s and increased social security pensions; millions of people are protected by private or company schemes. A special Bill passed in 1965 will enable redevelopment of the depressed Appalachia hill region.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA—(INTRODUCTORY SURVEY)

Education

Education is still largely the concern of individual states, but the Education Bill passed in April 1965 makes federal funds available, for the first time, for general improvement of primary and secondary schools. All states have elementary, junior high, and high schools and most states have kindergartens. Education is free except at private schools. The period of education varies from state to state, but in 37 states attendance until the age of sixteen years is compulsory, and in four this limit is eighteen years. There are over 1,600 universities and colleges.

Tourism

The U.S. affords every kind of interest to tourists from winter sports to tropical beaches. The natural marvels include the Grand Canyon, Niagara Falls and the large protected parks of the north-west. Modern architecture, museums and art galleries, night life in the big cities, these are only a few of the innumerable attractions. The U.S. has now begun to arrange inexpensive all-in tours for foreign visitors.

Visas are not required to visit the U.S. by nationals of Canada.

Sport

The most popular sports are baseball, American football, basketball and volleyball. Athletics, golf, tennis, boxing and horse racing are also widely followed and there are facilities for many other sports.

Public Holidays

1967: July 4 (Independence Day), September 4 (Labor Day), November 11 (Veterans' or Armistice Day), November 27 (Thanksgiving), December 25 (Christmas).

1968: January 1, January 20 (Inauguration Day), February 12 (Lincoln's Birthday), February 22 (Washington's Birthday), April 12 (Good Friday).

Weights and Measures

With certain exceptions, the Imperial system is in force. One U.S. billion equals one thousand million; one U.S. cwt. equals 100 lbs.; long ton equals 2,240 lbs.; short ton equals 2,000 lbs.

Currency and Exchange Rates

The unit of currency is the Dollar, divided into one hundred cents.

Coins: 1, 5, 10, 25, 50 cents; $1.

Notes: 1, 2, 5, 10, 20, 50, 100, 500, 1,000, 5,000 and 10,000 Dollars.

Exchange rate: $1 = 7s. 2d. sterling.

THE CONSTITUTION

The form of Government set up during the American Revolution by the thirteen original States which declared their independence in 1776 soon proved inadequate. After several earlier attempts to reform these "Articles of Confederation" the thirteen States finally sent delegates to a Convention which met at Philadelphia in 1787, and which framed the Constitution of the United States. This Constitution was ratified by the requisite number of States in 1789 and remains in force to the present day. Although the federal nature of the Government that was being set up was made quite clear, Article VI of the Constitution declared it to be the "supreme law of the land", and the central authority was given the right to raise taxes, pay debts and provide defences and to "make all laws necessary and proper to this end". The Constitution was created for a population of under 4,000,000 in a mere 100,000 miles of inhabited territory. It confines itself to laying down general principles and is often lacking in precision, but has for this reason been capable of adaptation, by interpretation and by amendment, to the conditions of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries.

TEXT OF THE CONSTITUTION

Preamble

WE, the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect Union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquillity, provide for the common defence, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America.

Article I

Section 1

All legislative powers herein granted shall be vested in a Congress of the United States, which shall consist of a Senate and House of Representatives.

Section 2

1. The House of Representatives shall be composed of members chosen every second year by the people of the several States and the electors in each State shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the State Legislature.

2. No person shall be a Representative who shall not have attained to the age of twenty-five years and been seven years a citizen of the United States and who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of that State in which he shall be chosen.

3. Representatives and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several States which may be included within this Union according to their respective numbers, which shall be determined by adding to the whole number of free persons, including those bound to service for a term of years, and excluding Indians not taxed, three-fifths of all other persons. The actual enumeration shall be made within three years after the first meeting of the Congress of the United States, and within every subsequent term of ten years, in such manner as they shall by law direct. The number of Representatives shall not exceed one for every thirty thousand, but each State shall have at least one Representative; and until such enumeration shall be made, the State of New Hampshire shall be entitled to choose 3; Massachusetts 8; Rhode Island and Providence Plantations 1; Connecticut 5; New York 6; New Jersey 4; Pennsylvania 8; Delaware 1; Maryland 6; Virginia 10; North Carolina 5; South Carolina 5, and Georgia 3.*

4. When vacancies happen in the representation from any State, the Executive Authority thereof shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies.

5. The House of Representatives shall choose their Speaker and other officers and shall have the sole power of impeachment.

Section 3

1. The Senate of the United States shall be composed of two Senators from each State, chosen by the Legislature thereof, for six years; and each Senator shall have one vote.

2. Immediately after they shall be assembled in consequence of the first election, they shall be divided as equally as may be into three classes. The seats of the Senators of the first class shall be vacated at the expiration of the second year, of the second class at the expiration of the fourth year, and of the third class at the expiration of the sixth year, so that one-third may be chosen every second year; and if vacancies happen by resignation or otherwise, during the recess of the Legislature or of any State, the Executive thereof may make temporary appointment until the next meeting of the Legislature, which shall then fill such vacancies.

3. No person shall be a Senator who shall not have attained to the age of thirty years, and been nine years a citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of that State for which he shall be chosen.

4. The Vice-President of the United States shall be President of the Senate, but shall have no vote unless they be equally divided.

5. The Senate shall choose their other officers, and also a President pro tempore, in the absence of the Vice-President, or when he shall exercise the office of the President of the United States.

6. The Senate shall have the sole power to try all impeachments. When sitting for that purpose, they shall be on oath or affirmation. When the President of the United States is tried, the Chief Justice shall preside; and no person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the members present.

7. Judgment of cases of impeachment shall not extend further than to removal from office, and disqualification to hold and enjoy any office of honour, trust, or profit under the United States; but the party convicted shall nevertheless be liable and subject to indictment, trial, judgment and punishment, according to law.

* See Article XIV Amendments.

Section 4

1. The times, places and manner of holding elections for Senators and Representatives shall be prescribed in each State by the Legislature thereof; but the Congress may at any time by law make or alter such regulations, except as to places of choosing Senators.

2. The Congress shall assemble at least once in every year, and such meeting shall be on the first Monday in December, unless they shall by law appoint a different day.

Section 5

1. Each House shall be the judge of the elections, returns, and qualifications of its own members, and a majority of each shall constitute a quorum to do business; but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day, and may be authorised to compel the attendance of absent members in such manner and under such penalties as each House may provide.

2. Each House may determine the rules of its proceedings, punish its members for disorderly behaviour, and with the concurrence of two-thirds, expel a member.

3. Each House shall keep a journal of its proceedings, and from time to time publish the same, excepting such parts as may in their judgment require secrecy; and the yeas and nays of the members of either House on any question shall, at the desire of one-fifth of those present, be entered on the journal.

4. Neither House, during the session of Congress shall, without the consent of the other, adjourn for more than three days, nor to any other place than that in which the two Houses shall be sitting.

Section 6

1. The Senators and Representatives shall receive a compensation for their services to be ascertained by law, and paid out of the Treasury of the United States. They shall in all cases, except treason, felony, and breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance at the session of their respective Houses, and in going to and returning from the same; and for any speech or debate in either House they shall not be questioned in any other place.

2. No Senator or Representative shall, during the time for which he was elected, be appointed to any civil office under the authority of the United States which shall have been created, or the emoluments whereof shall have been increased during such time; and no person holding any office under the United States shall be a member of either House during his continuance in office.

Section 7

1. All bills for raising revenue shall originate in the House of Representatives, but the Senate may propose or concur with amendments, as on other bills.

2. Every bill which shall have passed the House of Representatives and the Senate shall, before it becomes a law, be presented to the President of the United States; if he approve, he shall sign it, but if not he shall return it, with his objections, to that House in which it shall have originated, who shall enter the objections at large on their journal and proceed to reconsider it. If after such reconsideration two-thirds of that House shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other House, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered; and if approved by two-thirds of that House it shall become a law. But in all such cases the votes of both Houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the persons voting for and against the bill shall be entered on the journal of each House respectively. If any bill shall not be returned by the President within ten days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the Congress by their adjournment prevent its return; in which case it shall not be a law.

3. Every order, resolution, or vote to which the concurrence of the Senate and House of Representatives may be necessary (except on a question of adjournment) shall be presented to the President of the United States, and before the same shall take effect shall be approved by him, or being disapproved by him shall be repassed by two-thirds of the Senate and the House of Representatives, according to the rules and limitations prescribed in the case of a bill.

Section 8

1. The Congress shall have power:

To lay and collect taxes, duties, imposts, and excises, to pay the debts and provide for the common defence and general welfare of the United States; but all duties, imposts, and excises shall be uniform throughout the United States.

2. To borrow money on the credit of the United States.

3. To regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several States and with the Indian tribes.

4. To establish a uniform rule of naturalisation and uniform laws on the subject of bankruptcies throughout the United States.

5. To coin money, regulate the value thereof, and of foreign coin, and fix the standard of weights and measures.

6. To provide for the punishment of counterfeiting the securities and current coin of the United States.

7. To establish post-offices and post-roads.

8. To promote the progress of science and useful arts by securing for limited times to authors and inventors the exclusive rights to their respective writings and discoveries.

9. To constitute tribunals inferior to the Supreme Court.

10. To define and punish piracies and felonies committed on the high seas, and offences against the law of nations.

11. To declare war, grant letters of marque and reprisal, and make rules concerning captures on land and water.

12. To raise and support armies, but no appropriation of money to that use shall be for a longer term than two years.

13. To provide and maintain a navy.

14. To make rules for the government and regulation of the land and naval forces.

15. To provide for calling forth the militia to execute the laws of the Union, suppress insurrections, and repel invasions.

16. To provide for organising, arming, and disciplining the militia, and for governing such part of them as may be employed in the service of the United States, reserving to the States respectively the appointment of the officers, and the authority of training the militia according to the discipline prescribed by Congress.

17. To exercise exclusive legislation in all cases whatsoever over such district (not exceeding ten miles square) as may, by cession of particular States and the acceptance of Congress, become the seat of Government of the United States, and to exercise like authority over all places purchased by the consent of the Legislature of the State in which the same shall be, for the erection of forts, magazines, arsenals, dry-docks, and other needful buildings.

18. To make all laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into execution the foregoing powers and all other powers vested by this Constitution in the Government of the United States, or in any department or officer thereof.

Section 9

1. The migration or importation of such persons as any of the States now existing shall think proper to admit shall not be prohibited by the Congress prior to the year one thousand eight hundred and eight, but a tax or duty may be imposed on such importations, not exceeding ten dollars for each person.

2. The privilege of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended, unless when in cases of rebellion or invasion he public safety may require it.

3. No bill or attainder or ex post facto law shall be passed.

4. No capitation or other direct tax shall be laid, unless in proportion to the census or enumeration hereinbefore directed to be taken.

5. No tax or duty shall be laid on articles exported from any State.

6. No preference shall be given by any regulation of commerce or revenue to the ports of one State over those of another, nor shall vessels bound to or from one State be obliged to enter, clear, or pay duties to another.

7. No money shall be drawn from the Treasury but in consequence of appropriations made by law; and a regular statement and account of the receipts and expenditures of all public money shall be published from time to time.

8. No title of nobility shall be granted by the United States. And no person holding any office of profit or trust under them shall, without the consent of the Congress, accept of any present, emolument, office, or title of any kind whatever from any king, prince, or foreign state.

Section 10

1. No State shall enter into any treaty, alliance or confederation, grant letters of marque and reprisal, coin money, emit bills of credit, make anything but gold and silver coin a tender in payment of debts, pass any bill of attainder, ex post facto law, or law impairing the obligation of contracts, or grant any title of nobility.

2. No State shall, without the consent of the Congress, lay any impost or duties on imports or exports, except what may be absolutely necessary for executing its inspection laws, and the net produce of all duties and imposts, laid by any State on imports or exports, shall be for the use of the Treasury of the United States; and all such laws shall be subject to the revision and control of the Congress.

3. No State shall, without the consent of Congress, lay any duty of tonnage, keep troops or ships of war in time of peace, enter into agreement or compact with another State, or with a foreign power, or engage in war, unless actually invaded, or in such imminent damage as will not admit of delay.

Article II

Section 1

1. The Executive power shall be vested in a President of the United States of America. He shall hold his office during the term of four years, and, together with the Vice-President chosen for the same term, be elected as follows:

2. Each State shall appoint, in such manner as the Legislature thereof may direct, a number of electors equal to the whole number of Senators and Representatives to which the State may be entitled in the Congress; but no Senator or Representative or person holding an office of trust or profit under the United States shall be appointed an elector.

3. The electors shall meet in their respective States and vote by ballot for two persons, of whom one at least shall not be an inhabitant of the same State with themselves. And they shall make a list of all the persons voted for, and of the number of votes for each, which list they shall sign and certify and transmit, sealed, to the seat of the Government of the United States, directed to the President of the Senate. The President of the Senate shall, in the presence of the Senate and House of Representatives, open all the certificates, and the votes shall then be counted. The person having the greatest number of votes shall be the President, if such number be a majority of the whole number of electors appointed, and if there be more than one who have such a majority, and have an equal number of votes, then the House of Representatives shall immediately choose by ballot one of them for President; and if no person have a majority, then from the five highest on the list the said House shall in like manner choose the President. But in choosing the President, the vote shall be taken by States, the representation from each State having one vote. A quorum, for this purpose, shall consist of a member or members from two-thirds of the States, and a majority of all the States shall be necessary to a choice. In every case, after the choice of the President, the person having the greatest number of votes of the electors shall be the Vice-President. But if there should remain two or more who have equal votes, the Senate shall choose from them by ballot the Vice-President.*

4. The Congress may determine the time of choosing the electors and the day on which they shall give their votes, which day shall be the same throughout the United States

5. No person except a natural born citizen, or a citizen of the United States, at the time of the adoption of the Constitution, shall be eligible to the office of President; neither shall any person be eligible to that office who shall not have attained to the age of thirty-five years and been fourteen years a resident within the United States.

6. In case of the removal of the President from office, or of his death, resignation, or inability to discharge the powers and duties of the said office, the same shall devolve on the Vice-President, and the Congress may by law provide for the case of removal, death, resignation, or inability, both of the President and Vice-President, declaring what officer shall then act as President, and such officer shall act accordingly until the disability be removed or a President shall be elected.

7. The President shall, at stated times, receive for his services a compensation which shall neither be increased nor diminished during the period for which he shall have been elected, and he shall not receive within that period any other emolument from the United States, or any of them.

8. Before he enter on the execution of his office he shall take the following oath or affirmation:

"I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully execute the office of President of the United States, and will, to the best of my ability, preserve, protect, and defend the Constitution of the United States."

Section 2

1. The President shall be Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy of the United States, and of the militia of the several States when called into the actual service of the United States; he may require the opinion, in writing, of the principal officer in each of the executive departments upon any subject relating to the duties of their respective offices, and he shall have power to grant reprieves and pardons for offences against the United States except in cases of impeachment.

2. He shall have power by and with the advice and consent of the Senate to make treaties, provided two-thirds of the Senators present concur; and he shall nominate and by and with the advice and consent of the Senate shall appoint ambassadors, other public ministers and consuls, judges of the Supreme Court, and all other officers of the United States whose appointments are not herein otherwise provided for, and which shall be established by law; but the Congress may by law vest the appointment of such inferior officers as they think proper in the President alone, in the courts of law, or in the heads of departments.

* This clause is amended by Article XII and Article XX, Amendments.

3. The President shall have power to fill up all vacancies that may happen during the recess of the Senate by granting commissions, which shall expire at the end of their next session.

Section 3

He shall from time to time give to the Congress information of the state of the Union, and recommend to their consideration such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient; he may, on extraordinary occasions, convene both Houses, or either of them, and in case of disagreement between them with respect to the time of adjournment, he may adjourn them to such time as he shall think proper; he shall receive ambassadors and other public ministers; he shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed, and shall commission all the officers of the United States.

Section 4

The President, Vice-President, and all civil officers of the United States shall be removed from office on impeachment for and conviction of treason, bribery or other high crimes and misdemeanours.

Article III

Section 1

The judicial power of the United States shall be vested in one Supreme Court, and in such inferior courts as the Congress may from time to time ordain and establish. The judges, both of the Supreme and inferior courts, shall hold their offices during good behaviour, and shall at stated times receive for their services a compensation which shall not be diminished during their continuance in office.

Section 2

1. The judicial power shall extend to all cases in law and equity arising under this Constitution, the laws of the United States, and treaties made, or which shall be made, under their authority; to all cases affecting ambassadors, other public ministers and consuls; to all cases of admiralty and maritime jurisdiction; to controversies to which the United States shall be a party; to controversies between two or more States, between a State and citizens of another State, between citizens of different States, between citizens of the same State claiming lands under grants of different States, and between a State, or the citizens thereof, and foreign States, citizens, or subjects.

2. In all cases affecting ambassadors, other public ministers, and consuls, and those in which a State shall be party, the Supreme Court shall have original jurisdiction. In all the other cases before mentioned the Supreme Court shall have appellate jurisdiction both as to law and fact, with such exceptions and under such regulations as the Congress shall make.

3. The trial of all crimes, except in cases of impeachment, shall be by jury, and such trials shall be held in the State where the said crimes shall have been committed; but when not committed within any State the trial shall be at such place or places as the Congress may by law have directed.

Section 3

1. Treason against the United States shall consist only in levying war against them, or in adhering to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort. No person shall be convicted of treason unless on the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act, or on confession in open court.

2. The Congress shall have power to declare the punishment of treason, but no attainder of treason shall work corruption of blood or forfeiture except during the life of the person attained.

Article IV

Section 1

Full faith and credit shall be given in each State to the public acts, records, and judicial proceedings of every other State. And the Congress may by general laws prescribe the manner in which such acts, records, and proceedings shall be proved, and the effect thereof.

Section 2

1. The citizens of each State shall be entitled to all privileges and immunities of citizens in the several States.

2. A person charged in any State with treason, felony, or other crime, who shall flee from justice, and be found in another State, shall, on demand of the Executive authority of the State from which he fled, be delivered up, to be removed to the State having jurisdiction of the crime.

3. No person held to service or labour in one State, under the laws thereof, escaping into another shall in consequence of any law or regulation therein, be discharged from such service or labour, but shall be delivered up on claim of the party to whom such service or labour may be due.

Section 3

1. New States may be admitted by the Congress into this Union; but no new State shall be formed or erected within the jurisdiction of any other State, nor any State be formed by the junction of two or more States, or parts of States, without the consent of the Legislatures of the States concerned, as well as of the Congress.

2. The Congress shall have power to dispose of and make all needful rules and regulations respecting the territory or other property belonging to the United States; and nothing in this Constitution shall be so construed as to prejudice any claims of the United States, or of any particular State.

Section 4

The United States shall guarantee to every State in this Union a Republican form of government, and shall protect each of them against invasion, and on application of the Legislature, or of the Executive (when the Legislature cannot be convened) against domestic violence.

Article V

The Congress, whenever two-thirds of both Houses shall deem it necessary, shall propose amendments to this Constitution, or, on the application of the Legislatures of two-thirds of the several States, shall call a convention for proposing amendments, which in either case, shall be valid to all intents and purposes, as part of this Constitution, when ratified by the Legislatures of three-fourths of the several States, or by conventions in three-fourths thereof, as the one or the other mode of ratification may be proposed by the Congress, provided that no amendment which may be made prior to the year one thousand eight hundred and eight shall in any manner affect the first and fourth clauses in the Ninth Section of the First Article; and that no State, without its consent, shall be deprived of its equal suffrage in the Senate.

Article VI

1. All debts contracted and engagements entered into before the adoption of this Constitution shall be as valid against the United States under this Constitution as under the Confederation.

2. This Constitution and the laws of the United States which shall be made in pursuance thereof and all treaties made, or which shall be made, under the authority of the

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA—(AMENDMENTS TO THE CONSTITUTION)

United States, shall be the supreme law of the land, and the judges in every State shall be bound thereby, anything in the Constitution or laws of any State to the contrary notwithstanding.

3. The Senators and Representatives before mentioned, and the members of the several State Legislatures, and all executives and judicial officers, both of the United States and of the several States, shall be bound by oath or affirmation to support this Constitution; but no religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States.

Article VII

The ratification of the Conventions of nine States shall be sufficient for the establishment of this Constitution between the States so ratifying the same.

AMENDMENTS TO THE CONSTITUTION

Ten Original Amendments, in force December 15th, 1791

Article I

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech or of the Press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

Article II

A well-regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed.

Article III

No soldier shall, in time of peace, be quartered in any house without the consent of the owner, nor in time of war but in a manner to be prescribed by law.

Article IV

The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no warrants shall issue but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized.

Article V

No person shall be held to answer for a capital or other infamous crime unless on a presentment or indictment of a Grand Jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the militia, when in actual service, in time of war or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offense to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use without just compensation.

Article VI

In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury of the State and district wherein the crime shall have been committed, which districts shall have been previously ascertained by law, and to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation; to be confronted with the witnesses against him; to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favour, and to have the assistance of counsel for his defense.

Article VII

In suits at common law, where the value in controversy shall exceed twenty dollars, the right of trial by jury shall be preserved, and no fact tried by a jury shall be otherwise re-examined in any court of the United States than according to the rules of the common law.

Article VIII

Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishments inflicted.

Article IX

The enumeration in the Constitution of certain rights shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people.

Article X

The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people.

Article XI, became part of the Constitution February 1795

The judicial power of the United States shall not be construed to extend to any suit in law or equity, commenced or prosecuted against one of the United States, by citizens of another State, or by citizens or subjects of any foreign State.

Article XII, ratified September 1804

The Electors shall meet in their respective States, and vote by ballot for President and Vice-President, one of whom at least shall not be an inhabitant of the same State with themselves; they shall name in their ballots the person voted for as President, and in distinct ballots the person voted for as Vice-President; and they shall make distinct list of all persons voted for as President, and of all persons voted for as Vice-President, and of the number of votes for each, which list they shall sign and certify, and transmit, sealed, to the seat of the Government of the United States, directed to the President of the Senate; the President of the Senate shall, in the presence of the Senate and House of Representatives, open all the certificates and the votes shall then be counted; the person having the greatest number of votes for President shall be the President, if such number be a majority of the whole number of Electors appointed; and if no person have such majority, then from the persons having the highest number, not exceeding three, on the list of those voted for as President, the House of Representatives shall choose immediately, by ballot, the President. But in choosing the President, the votes shall be taken by States, the representation from each State having one vote; a quorum for this purpose shall consist of a member or members from two-thirds of the States, and a majority of all the States shall be necessary to a choice. And if the House of Representatives shall not choose a President, whenever the right of choice shall devolve upon them, before the fourth day of March next following, then the Vice-President shall act as President, as in the case of the death or other constitutional disability of the President. The person having the greatest number of votes as Vice-President shall be the Vice-President if such number be a majority of the whole number of Electors appointed, and if no person have a majority, then, from the two highest numbers on the list the Senate shall choose the Vice-President; a quorum for the purpose shall consist of two-thirds of the whole number of Senators, and a majority of the whole number shall be necessary to a choice. But no person constitutionally ineligible to the office of President shall be eligible to that of Vice-President of the United States.

Article XIII, ratified December 1865

1. Neither slavery nor involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime whereof the party shall have been duly convicted, shall exist within the United States, or any place subject to their jurisdiction.

2. Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

Article XIV, ratified July 1868

1. All persons born or naturalised in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside. No State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States, nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty, or property without due process of law, nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.

2. Representatives shall be apportioned among the several States according to their respective numbers, counting the whole number of persons in each State excluding Indians not taxed. But when the right to vote at any election for the choice of Electors for President and Vice-President of the United States, Representatives in Congress, the executive and judicial officers of a State, or the members of the Legislature thereof, is denied to any of the male inhabitants of such State, being twenty-one years of age, and citizens of the United States, or in any way abridged, except for participation in rebellion, or other crime, the basis of representation therein shall be reduced in the proportion which the number of such male citizens shall bear to the whole number of male citizens twenty-one years of age in such State.

3. No person shall be a Senator or Representative in Congress, or Elector of President and Vice-President or hold any office, civil or military, under the United States, or under any State, who, having previously taken an oath as member of Congress or as an officer of the United States, or as a member of any State Legislature, or as an executive or judicial officer of any State, to support the Constitution of the United States, shall have engaged in insurrection or rebellion against the same, or given aid and comfort to the enemies thereof. But Congress may, by a vote of two-thirds of each House, remove such disability.

4. The validity of the public debt of the United States, authorised by law, including debts incurred for payment of pensions and bounties for services in suppressing insurrection and rebellion, shall not be questioned. But neither the United States nor any State shall assume or pay any debt or obligation incurred in aid of insurrection or rebellion against the United States, or any claim for the loss or emancipation of any slave; but all such debts, obligations, and claims shall be held illegal and void.

5. The Congress shall have power to enforce by appropriate legislation the provisions of this article.

Article XV, ratified March 1870

1. The right of the citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of race, colour, or previous condition of servitude.

2. The Congress shall have power to enforce the provisions of this article by appropriate legislation.

Article XVI, ratified February 1913

The Congress shall have power to lay and collect taxes on incomes, from whatever sources derived, without apportionment among the several States, and without regard to any census or enumeration.

Article XVII, ratified May 1913

1. The Senate of the United States shall be composed of two Senators from each State, elected by the people thereof, for six years; and each Senator shall have one vote. The electors in each State shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the State Legislature.

2. When vacancies happen in the representation of any State in the Senate, the executive authority of such State shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies: Provided that the Legislature of any State may empower the Executive thereof to make temporary appointment until the people fill the vacancies by election as the Legislature may direct.

3. This amendment shall not be so construed as to affect the election or term of any Senator chosen before it becomes valid as part of the Constitution.

Article XVIII, in effect January 1920*

1. After one year from the ratification of this article the manufacture, sale, or transportation of intoxicating liquors within, the importation thereof into, or the exportation thereof from the United States, and all territory subject to the jurisdiction thereof for beverage purposes is hereby prohibited.

2. The Congress and the several States shall have concurrent power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

3. This article shall be inoperative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the Constitution by the Legislatures of the several States, as provided in the Constitution, within seven years from the date of the submission hereof to the States by the Congress.

Article XIX, in effect August 1920

1. The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex.

2. Congress shall have power, by appropriate legislation, to enforce the provisions of this article.

Article XX, in effect February 1933

Section 1

The terms of the President and Vice-President shall end at noon on the 20th day of January, and the terms of Senators and Representatives at noon on the 3rd day of January, of the years in which such terms would have ended if this article had not been ratified; and the terms of their successors shall then begin.

Section 2

The Congress shall assemble at least once in every year, and such meeting shall begin at noon on the third day of January, unless they shall by law appoint a different day.

Section 3

If, at the time fixed for the beginning of the term of the President, the President elect shall have died, the Vice-President elect shall become President. If a President shall not have been chosen before the time fixed for the beginning of his term, or if the President elect shall have failed to qualify, then the Vice-President elect shall act

* Repealed by Article XXI.

as President until a President shall have qualified; and the Congress may by law provide for the case wherein neither a President elect nor a Vice-President elect shall have qualified, declaring who shall then act as President, or the manner in which one who is to act shall be selected, and such person shall act accordingly until a President or Vice-President shall have qualified.

Section 4

The Congress may by law provide for the case of the death of any of the persons from whom the House of Representatives may choose a President whenever the right of choice shall have devolved upon them, and for the case of the death of any of the persons from whom the Senate may choose a Vice-President whenever the right of choice shall have devolved upon them.

Section 5

Sections 1 and 2 shall take effect on the 15th day of October following the ratification of this article.

Section 6

This article shall be inoperative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the Constitution by the legislature of three-fourths of the several States within seven years from the date of its submission.

Article XXI, in effect December 1933

Section 1

The eighteenth article of amendment to the Constitution of the United States is hereby repealed.

Section 2

The transportation or importation into any State, Territory or Possession of the United States for delivery or use therein of intoxicating liquors, in violation of the laws thereof, is hereby prohibited.

Section 3

This article shall be inoperative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the Constitution by conventions in the several States, as provided in the Constitution, within seven years from the date of the submission hereof to the States by the Congress.

Article XXII, in effect February 1951

No person shall be elected to the office of President more than twice, and no person who has held the office of President, or acted as President, for more than two years of a term to which some other person was elected President shall be elected to the office of President more than once. But this article shall not apply to any person holding the office of President when this Article was proposed by Congress, and shall not prevent any person who may be holding the office of President, or acting as President, during the term within which this Article becomes operative from holding the office of President or acting as President during the remainder of such term.

Article XXIII, in effect April 1961

Section 1

The District constituting the seat of Government of the United States shall appoint in such manner as the Congress may direct:

A number of electors of President and Vice-President equal to the whole number of Senators and Representatives in Congress to which the District would be entitled if it were a State, but in no event more than the least populous State; they shall be in addition to those appointed by the States, but they shall be considered, for the purposes of the election of President and Vice-President, to be electors appointed by a State; and they shall meet in the District and perform such duties as provided by the twelfth article of amendment.

Section 2

The Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

Article XXIV, in effect February 1964

Section 1

The right of citizens of the United States to vote in any primary or other election for President or Vice-President, for electors for President or Vice-President, or for Senator or Representative in Congress, shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or any State by reason of failure to pay any poll tax or other tax.

Section 2

The Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

Article XXV, in effect February 1967

Section 1

In the case of the removal of the President from office or of his death or resignation, the Vice-President shall become President.

Section 2

Whenever there is a vacancy in the office of the Vice-President, the President shall nominate a Vice-President who shall take office upon confirmation by a majority vote of both Houses of Congress.

Section 3

Whenever the President transmits to the President pro tempore of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives his written declaration that he is unable to discharge the powers and duties of his office, and until he transmits to them a written declaration to the contrary, such powers and duties shall be discharged by the Vice-President as Acting President.

Section 4

Whenever the Vice-President and a majority of either the principal officers of the executive departments or of such other body as Congress may by law provide, transmit to the President pro tempore of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives their written declaration that the President is unable to discharge the powers and duties of his office, the Vice-President shall immediately assume the powers and duties of the office as Acting President.

Thereafter, when the President transmits to the President pro tempore of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives his written declaration that no inability exists, he shall resume the powers and duties of his office unless the Vice-President and a majority of either the principal officers of the executive department or of such other body as Congress may by law provide, transmit within four days to the President pro tempore of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives their written declaration that the President is unable to discharge the powers and duties of his office. Thereupon Congress shall decide the issue, assembling within forty-eight hours for that purpose if not in session. If the Congress, within twenty-one days after receipt of the latter written declaration, or, if Congress is not in session, within twenty-one days after Congress is required to assemble, determines by two-thirds vote of both Houses that the President is unable to discharge the powers and duties of his office, the Vice-President shall continue to discharge the same as Acting President; otherwise, the President shall resume the powers and duties of his office.

NOTE: By Article IV, Section 3 of the Constitution, implemented by vote of Congress and referendum in the territory concerned, Alaska was admitted into the United States on January 3rd, 1959, and Hawaii on August 1st, 1959.

PROTESTANT AND EASTERN ORTHODOX

National Council of the Churches of Christ in the United States of America: National Offices: 475 Riverside Drive, New York, N.Y. 10027.

Thirty-four denominations—Protestant and Eastern—working together, carry on more than 80 church programmes through the National Council in those matters which they prefer to do unitedly rather than separately. It embraces a constituency of over 145,000 local churches and 42,000,000 Americans. In addition, co-operating with one or more units of the Council are 39 other U.S. denominations with 15,000,000 members (plus 4 Canadian denominations).

The Council is supervised and governed by a General Assembly of 800 members, which meets every three years, and a General Board of about 250 members which meets three times a year as the interim supervisory body responsible for the policies and programmes of the Council. The members of the General Assembly and General Board are appointed by the thirty denominations constituent to the Council.

The work is carried on through four main divisions: Christian Education, Christian Life and Mission, Christian Unity, and Overseas Ministries. Each programme is directed by a committee which includes denominational representatives carrying corresponding responsibilities within their denominations. Programmes include such diverse projects as teaching people of many different tongues to read; ministry to migrant workers, hospitals, prisons, armed forces; publishing of Sunday church school outlines, carrying on foreign relief and resettlement of displaced persons.

President Dr. ARTHUR S. FLEMMING (Methodist Church); First Vice-President Rev. EDWIN H. TULLER (American Baptist Convention); Treasurer DAVID B. CASSAT (United Presbyterian Church in America); Recording Sec. Rev. MARION DE VELDER (Reformed Church in America); Vice-Presidents for Divisions: Christian Life and Mission, Rev. TRUMAN B. THE PRESS

The famous tradition of press freedom in the U.S. is grounded in the First Amendment to the Constitution which declares that "Congress shall make no law . . . abridging the freedom of speech or of the Press . . ." and confirmed in the legislations of many states which prohibit any kind of legal restriction on the dissemination of news.

Legislation affecting the Press is both state, as in the case of laws relating to libel and to business practice, and Federal. A source of controversy between the Press and the courts has been the threat of the encroachment by judicial decrees on the area of courtroom and criminal trial coverage. For example, the Californian Judicial Court Rule No. 980 prohibits the use of cameras in the courtroom; similarly, since 1963 an average of 35 per cent of congressional committee meetings in Washington have been held in secret. Other legislative items infringing press freedom to differing degrees include the New York State Law of 1955 penalizing publications liable to corrupt young people, and the State Security Law of 1954 which requires the registration of all printing equipment belonging to organizations regarded as suspect by the Attorney-General. On the other hand, the journalist is favoured by legislation in several states giving him the right to refuse to disclose his sources. The accuracy of the claims of advertisers using the Press is examined by the Federal Trade Commission and the Food and Drug Administration.

The U.S. publishes more newspapers and periodicals than any other country. The average circulation of daily newspapers is 32.7 thousand. National and international news is easily available by means of the huge ramified wire services, although most dailies give a greater emphasis to local news because of the strong interest in local and regional affairs and the decentralized structure of many government services. These factors, together with the distribution problem inherent in the size of the country, are responsible for the paucity of national newspapers.

In 1966 there were 11,355 newspapers, of which 1,846 with a total aggregate circulation of 60.4 million copies were dailies, comprising 358 morning papers with total circulation of 24.1 million, 1,476 evening papers at 35.7 million, and 12 all-day papers at 0.52 million. The 8,958 weekly papers had a total circulation of 48.3 million. Of the 9,102 periodicals, 1,799 were weekly, 4,230 were monthly, and 1,036 quarterly. Not included in these figures are special categories of papers, including approximately 100 dailies in some 38 foreign languages and 155 papers (75 dailies) catering specifically for the Negro readership.

In recent years, increased prices and the competition of radio and television have subjected the industry to considerable economic strain, resulting in mergers and take-overs, a great decline in competition between dailies in the same city, and the appearance of inter-city dailies catering for two or more adjoining centres. Suburban dailies have thrived at the expense of the large city dailies.

The non-metropolitan weekly press is far more extensive than the daily press, as the respective figures 8,958 and 1,846 show, and almost every small township has its own paper. Some 550 weeklies constitute the famous Sunday press, whose total circulation is now 48.3 million. Their popular appeal and frequently large syndicated supplements make them a distinctive feature on the U.S. press scene.

The aggregate circulation of the 9,010 periodicals is approximately 200 million. Some 100 of them have a national readership. The periodical press, particularly the widest-circulating magazines most dependent on advertising, are faced by economic problems, but though the larger magazines have declined in numbers since the war some 40 smaller new ones have appeared.

All newspapers subscribe to the Associated Press (AP) co-operative news agency, the United Press International (UPI), or the Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service, which, while giving access to a large quantity of news, limit the variety of presentation.

There are some 150 syndicates which supply a wide range of press material to subscribers, including photographs, cartoons, light articles on all topics and political commentary by national experts. Much of it is sold in English and other languages outside the United States. In 1956 the largest syndicate, King Features Ltd., claimed sales to 2,700 newspapers, making up 40 per cent of all syndicated material used in the U.S.

One consequence of modern economic trends has been the steady growth of newspaper groups or chains, of which there are now some 163 controlling 750 dailies. This figure represents an increase of twenty groups since 1962 when 188 of the group-owned dailies had an aggregate circulation of 27.4 million, or just less than half of the total for all dailies. The four largest groups are the following:

Newhouse Newspapers Group (Pres. SAMUEL IRVING NEWHOUSE): New York City; owns twenty-nine newspapers, two-thirds of them in New York, of which twenty-two are dailies, including Cleveland Plain Dealer (377,000), Long Island Daily Press (339,064), and St. Louis Globe Democrat (305,904), the total circulation being over 6 million; also two large magazine chains, one French and one Italian magazine; and part-owns four other newspapers.

Scripps-Howard Newspapers Group (Pres. JACK R. HOWARD; Chair of Board CHARLES E. SCRIPPS): owns sixteen dailies, including Cleveland Press (370,759), and Pittsburg Press (353,727).

Hearst Newspapers Group (Editor-in-Chief WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST, JR.): owns ten dailies, including Los Angeles Herald Examiner (718,221), and Boston Record American (431,023); two Sunday papers, including Boston Sunday Advertiser; and thirteen magazines, three of which in the U.K.; a large comics syndicate and a syndicated Sunday supplement.

Chicago Tribune Group (Pres. of Tribune Co. H. F. GRUMHOUSE): owns seven dailies, including Chicago Tribune (840,746), Chicago's American (428,852) and New York Daily News (2,097,578).

Other major newspaper groups are Knight Newspapers, Frank E. Gannett Newspapers and Ridder Publications.

Time-Life Group (Pres. JAMES A. LINEN): the largest of the magazine chains, and includes Life (U.S. edition 7.4m., International edition 550,000, Life en Español 430,000), Time (U.S. edition 3.3m., Canada edition 330,000, Atlantic edition 280,000, and Latin America, Asia, South Pacific and Military editions), Sports Illustrated (1,150,000), Fortune (450,000), Panorama in Argentina (144,160, Spanish) and President in Japan (24,000, Japanese).

Owing to the regionalism mentioned above there is no truly national press corresponding to major West European dailies. Most influential and highly respected among the few newspapers which may claim a national distribution are United Church of Christ: 297 Park Avenue, South New York City, N.Y. 10010; f. 1957 by the union of the General Council of Congregational Christian Churches and the Evangelical and Reformed Church; Moderator Dr. HOLLIS F. The International Herald Tribune printed in Paris, which recently absorbed the European edition of New York Times, has an important following in Europe.

Some thirty daily papers have circulations of over 300,000 copies, including five in New York, four in Chicago and two each in Cleveland, Detroit, Kansas City, Los Angeles, Philadelphia and Washington. The largest of these, in order of daily circulation, are New York Daily News (2,097,578 daily, 3,070,836 Sunday), Wall Street Journal (887,723 total of four editions), New York Times (869,000), Chicago Tribune (840,746), Los Angeles Times

Of the large weekly news magazines Time (3.3m.) and Newsweek (1.7m.), with a world distribution, provide a serious, comprehensive coverage of current affairs; the New Yorker (468,419) also includes fiction, while Life's (7.4m.) news treatment is lighter. Among the larger monthly periodicals Harper's Magazine (286,755) and Fortune (430,000) are widely respected for their treatment of literary topics and business and industrial affairs respectively; the lighter and more varied Reader's Digest (14.5m.) and National Geographic Magazine (4.4m.) have the distinction of world distribution; women's interests are catered for by Ladies' Home Journal (6.7m.) and Harper's Bazaar (465,058), while Playboy (3.3m.) and Esquire (955,876) appeal specifically to men, and Ebony (763,389) is directed particularly to a Negro readership.

BANKING

(Washington, D.C. 20551)

BOARD OF GOVERNORS

Chair.: WM. MCC. MARTIN, JR.Vice-Chair.: J. L. ROBERTSON.Governors: GEORGE W. MITCHELL, J. DEWEY DAANE, SHERMAN J. MAISEL, ANDREW F. BRIMMER, WILLIAM W. SHERRILL.Senior Adviser to the Board: RALPH A. YOUNG.Advisers to the Board: ROBERT C. HOLLAND, ROBERT SOLOMON.Assistant to the Board: CHARLES MOLONY.Legislative Counsel: ROBERT L. CARDON.Assistant to the Board: CLARKE L. FAUVER.Secretary: MERRITT SHERMAN.General Counsel: HOWARD H. HACKLEY.Director, Division of Research and Statistics: DANIEL H. BRILL.Director, Division of International Finance: RALPH A. YOUNG.

The Federal Reserve System comprises the Board of Governors, the Federal Open Market Committee, the Federal Advisory Council, the 12 Federal Reserve Banks with 24 branches, and the member banks. Founded 1913.

The Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, with headquarters in Washington, D.C., is composed of seven members appointed by the President of the United States with the advice and consent of the Senate. The Board has important responsibilities in the areas of monetary policy and supervision.

The Reserve Banks are empowered to issue Federal Reserve notes fully secured by the following assets, alone or in any combination: (1) Gold certificates; (2) U.S. Government securities; (3) Eligible paper as described by statute. Each Reserve Bank must have gold certificate reserves of not less than 25 per cent of its Federal Reserve Notes in circulation. The Reserve Banks may discount paper for member banks and make properly secured advances to member banks. At the direction of the Federal Open Market Committee the Federal Reserve Banks engage in open market operations, chiefly concerned with U.S. Government securities; the Reserve Banks function as collectors and clearing houses for member banks and act as fiscal agents of the United States Government.

All national banks are members of the Federal Reserve

System, and State-chartered banks may apply for membership and be admitted upon qualification.

The Controller of the Currency has primary supervisory authority over national banks, and the banking supervisors of the States have similar jurisdiction over banks organized under State laws. State member banks are examined by the Federal Reserve, and all member banks are subject to regulations issued by the Board of Governors.

Every member of the Federal Reserve System must subscribe to stock in the Federal Reserve Bank of its district in an amount equal to 6 per cent of its paid-up capital and surplus. One half of the subscribed stock is paid upon admission to membership, the other half being subject to call by the Board of Governors.

Any State bank or trust company may withdraw from the Federal Reserve System on six months' written notice to the Board.

Every member bank of the Federal Reserve System must take part in a Federal deposit insurance fund, under which its deposits are insured to the extent of $10,000 for each depositor. Non-member banks may be accepted for deposit insurance. The fund is administered by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, established by the Banking Act of 1933.

CULTURAL ORGANIZATIONS

National Foundation on the Arts and the Humanities: 1800 G St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20506; f. 1965 to develop and promote national support for the arts and humanities in the U.S.; consists of the following bodies:

National Endowment for the Arts: supports the development and growth of the arts by giving matched grants to non-profit organizations, and unmatched grants to individuals; Chair. ROGER L. STEVENS.

National Endowment for the Humanities: supports research, teaching and improved university curricula to encourage development of the humanities; Chair. BARNABY KEELER.

National Council on the Arts and National Council on the Humanities: advise the respective endowment Chairmen on policies and procedures; each Council has 26 members chosen by the President.

Federal Council on the Arts and the Humanities: co-ordinates the activities of the Endowments with the work of other Federal agencies; Chair. S. DILLON RIPLEY.

The Federal Government grants aid to the arts under the following programmes: literary and music programmes of the Library of Congress and the National Gallery, the Office of Education (Arts and Humanities Branch), John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts. Direct aid to the arts is also granted as an incidental part of wider programmes, such as the Cultural Presentations Program, the cultural exchange agreements with the U.S.S.R., the Urban Renewal Program.

Most states organize their own arts councils, which play a significant role in giving official support to the arts, notably in the states of New York, North Carolina and California. City and county governments have also developed a variety of channels for economic aid to the arts. Private donations—from individuals, foundations and corporations—totalled about $300 million for civic and cultural purposes in 1963.

U.S. EXTERNAL TERRITORIES—U.S. VIRGIN ISLANDS

THE CONSTITUTION

The government of the U.S. Virgin Islands is organized under the provisions of the Revised Organic Act of the Virgin Islands, enacted by the Congress of the United States on July 22nd, 1954. Executive power is vested in a Governor, appointed by the President of the United States with the advice and consent of the Senate. The Governor appoints, with the advice and consent of the Legislature, the heads of the eleven executive Departments and may also appoint administrative assistants as his representatives on St. John and St. Croix. Legislative power is vested in the Legislature of the Virgin Islands, a unicameral body composed of fifteen Senators elected by popular vote. Legislation is subject to the approval of the Governor. Bills disapproved by the Governor may be passed over his veto by a two-thirds majority, but if a bill is vetoed twice by the Governor, it must be sent to the President of the United States for final approval or disapproval. All residents of the islands, who are citizens of the United States and aged over 21, have the right to vote in local elections. They do not send representatives to the Federal Congress nor participate in national elections.

THE CONSTITUTION

The Territory of the Pacific Islands is a United Nations Trusteeship administered by the United States of America. Executive and legislative authority is exercised by a High Commissioner, appointed by and subject to the direction of the Secretary of the Interior. The High Commissioner is represented in each district by a District Administrator and has his headquarters at Saipan, Mariana Islands.

Normal legislative authority is vested in the bicameral legislature, consisting of the Senate and the House of Representatives. There are twelve Senators, two elected at large from each of the six districts for a term of four years. The House of Representatives has twenty-one members elected for two-year terms from single-member election districts of approximately equal population. The present apportionment of Representatives is: Mariana Islands District, three; Marshall Islands District, four; Palau District, three; Ponape District, four; Truk District, five; and Yap District, two. The next general election is due in November 1968.

The Mariana Islands, Marshall Islands, Palau, Ponape, Truk, and Yap Districts have formally constituted legislatures. Local governmental units are municipalities and villages. Elected Magistrates and Councils govern the municipalities. Village government is largely traditional.

THE GOVERNMENT

High Commissioner: W. R. NORWOOD.

Deputy High Commissioner: MARTIN P. MANGAN.

District Administrators: PETER T. COLEMAN (Mariana Islands), DWIGHT HEINE (Marshall Islands), J. BOYD MACKENZIE (Palau), ROBERT HALVORSEN (Ponape), ALAN M. MACQUARRIE (Truk), WILLIAM C. WHITE (Yap).

UPPER VOLTA

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Upper Volta is a landlocked state in West Africa surrounded by Mali, Niger, Dahomey, Togo, Ghana and the Ivory Coast. The climate is hot and mainly dry with temperatures averaging 83°F (27°C); humidity reaches 80 per cent in the south during the rainy season June–October. French is the official language and there are three principal native tongues with many dialects. About 75 per cent of the population follow animist beliefs, some 20 per cent are Muslims and the remainder are Christians, chiefly Roman Catholics. The flag consists of horizontal stripes of black, white and red. The capital is Ouagadougou.

Recent History

Formerly a province of French West Africa, Upper Volta became a self-governing Republic within the French Community in 1958, achieving full independence in 1960. In January 1966 Lieut.-Col. Sangoule Lamizana deposed President Yaméogo, dissolved the National Assembly, suspended the constitution and assumed the position of Chief of State at the head of a new cabinet. Upper Volta is a member of the Conseil de l'Entente and the Organisation Commune Africaine et Malgache (OCAM).

Government

Upper Volta is a Republic, ruled by military decree. Local administration is through five "Départements" divided into 44 districts.

Defence

Upper Volta is a member of the Common Defence Pact of OCAM which has its headquarters in Ouagadougou. Military service is compulsory and lasts for eighteen months. Liability for service lasts for twenty-eight years. Armed Forces number 1,500 with 1,800 Police and Security Forces.

Economic Affairs

The economy is agricultural and most of the population are farmers or livestock-raising nomads. Settled agriculture is confined to the river valleys and oases and efforts are being made to extend the area of irrigated land. The chief crops are sorghum, millet, yams, beans, and maize. Livestock, meat, poultry, gold, beans and Karité nuts and butter are the principal exports. Industry is limited to local handicrafts.

Transport and Communications

The Abidjan-Ouagadougou railway, jointly operated with the Ivory Coast, is the only line in Upper Volta. There are some 16,000 kilometres of roads of which nearly 5,000 kilometres are open all the year round. The airports at Ouagadougou and Bobo-Dioulasso can take the largest conventional aircraft. There are 33 airfields used for internal flights. International air transport is provided by Air Afrique and three other lines.

Social Welfare

The Government provides hospitals and rural medical services. A special medical service for schools is in operation. There are three hospitals, 30 medical centres, 71 maternity clinics and 257 dispensaries. An old-age and veterans' pension system was established in 1960. New workers' insurance schemes were introduced in 1967.

Education

Education is free but not compulsory with about 7 per cent of children receiving some schooling. Government grants are available for higher education in France and Senegal.

Tourism

The principal tourist attraction is big game hunting in the East and South West and along the river banks of the Black Volta. There is a wide variety of wild animals in the game reserves. Native dancing and traditional crafts are also of interest.

Visas are not required to visit Upper Volta by nationals of France.

Sport

There is little organised sport but football and basketball are popular.

Public Holidays

January 1 (New Year's Day), May 1 (Labour Day), August 25 (Independence Day), December 25 (Christmas Day).

Weights and Measures

The Metric System is in force.

Currency and Exchange Rates

The unit of currency is the Franc Communauté Financière Africaine (Franc CFA).

Coins: 1, 2, 5, 10, 25 Francs CFA.

THE CONSTITUTION

(Established November 1960; suspended January 1966)

Preamble: The Republic of Upper Volta is a democratic, and socialist state, in which sovereignty is vested in the people, who exercise it through their representatives. There is universal, adult and secret suffrage.

Head of State: The Head of State is the President, elected for a five-year term of office by direct suffrage, and is eligible for re-election. The President is head of the Executive and Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces.

Executive Power: is vested in the President, who appoints a Council of Ministers. These Ministers are directly responsible to the President and may not be members of the National Assembly.

Legislative Power: The Legislative body is the National Assembly, consisting of 75 members elected for five years at the same time as the President. Two ordinary sessions are held each year but an extraordinary session may be held at the request of the President or of a majority of the members.

Judicial Power: is vested in the Supreme Court, consisting of four chambers. The independence of the judges, who are nominated by the President of the Council, is guaranteed by the Superior Judiciary Council. A High Court of Justice, composed of deputies chosen from and by the National Assembly has power to try the President or Ministers who have been impeached by the National Assembly.

Conseil de l'Entente: in May 1959, Upper Volta joined with the Ivory Coast, Dahomey and Niger to form the Conseil de l'Entente.

URUGUAY

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Uruguay is the smallest of the South American republics. It lies on the north bank of the estuary of the River Plate with Brazil to the north and Argentina to the west and south. The climate is temperate with an average temperature of 61°F (16°C). The language is Spanish. There is no state religion but Roman Catholicism is predominant with Protestant minorities. The flag consists of four blue stripes on a white field charged with a golden sun in a white canton next to the staff. The capital is Montevideo.

Recent History

The Presidency set up in 1934 was abolished in 1951 and the new Constitution of 1951 provided for a collegiate system of government. The two main political parties have long been the Colorados (Liberals) and the Blancos (Conservatives) who were returned to power in 1958 after 93 years in opposition. In 1959 vast tracts of land were inundated by the flooding of the Rivers Uruguay and Rio Negro, but a programme of dam construction and rebuilding should eliminate this in future. There was serious labour unrest during 1965 which twice led to the suspension of constitutional guarantees. In November 1966 the country voted to return to a Presidential system of Government. A new constitution was approved and General Oscar Gestido was elected President and took up his duties in March 1967, bringing the Colorados back to power.

Government

Executive power is exercised by the President and a council of eleven ministers elected every five years. The legislative body is the bi-cameral General Assembly consisting of the Senate of 30 members plus its President who is also Vice-President of the Republic and the Chamber of Deputies of 99 members. Elections are held every five years by universal suffrage of citizens of eighteen years of age and over. For administrative purposes the country is divided into 19 Departments each under a council of five members, except for Montevideo, where the number of members is seven.

Defence

The Army consists of volunteers between the ages of eighteen and forty-five who contract for one or two years of service. There is a small Navy, and an Air Force is being built up with U.S. assistance.

Economic Affairs

The raising of livestock, particularly cattle and sheep, is the chief source of wealth, 60 per cent of the area of the country being used for this purpose. The principal agricultural products are wheat, maize, linseed and oats. Industries include meat-packing, textiles and wine-making. Trade is mainly with the U.S.A. and the United Kingdom, the principal exports being wool and meat. Agricultural production was seriously hampered by a prolonged drought, which was relieved by heavy rainfalls in February 1965. The Ten-Year Plan of Economic Development 1965-74 aims to increase the GNP at an annual rate of 5.2 per cent.

Transport and Communications

The railways are state-owned and there are 1,866 miles of track. The total length of roads is some 30,000 miles, of which 5,500 miles are state-maintained. Inland waterways are an important means of transport and cargo and passenger services operate on the rivers Plate, Uruguay and Paraná, which are navigable for 775 miles. Internal air services link the principal towns and international services are provided by two Uruguayan and eighteen foreign airlines.

Social Welfare

Uruguay is noted for its advanced scheme of social welfare, which covers professional accidents, industrial diseases, sickness, old age, maternity and child welfare. Employment guarantees are in force and Government subsidies are available for workers. Grants for families are provided by the Family Subsidies Fund.

Education

All education, including university education, is free and primary schooling is compulsory. In 1960 there were 2,147 primary schools with 313,891 pupils. Secondary schools numbered 77 with 10,469 pupils. There is one general and one technical university.

Tourism

The sandy beaches and lagoons on the coast and the forests of the interior with their variety of wild life and vegetation provide the main tourist attractions. Tourism is administered by the Comisión Nacional de Turismo.

Visas are not required to visit Uruguay for up to three months by nationals of Argentina, Austria, Belgium, Brazil, Canada, Chile, Denmark, Ecuador, Finland, France, German Federal Republic, Greece, Israel, Italy, Liechtenstein, Luxembourg, Netherlands, Norway, Paraguay, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, United Kingdom and Dependent Territories and United States. Citizens of the American Republics do not, as a rule, need a visa when proceeding to Uruguay direct from their own country.

Sport

Football is the most popular sport, followed by horse-racing, basketball and volleyball.

Public Holidays

1967: May 1 (Labour Day), May 18 (Battle of Las Piedras), June 19 (Birth of General Artigas), July 18 (Constitution Day), August 25 (National Independence Day), October 12 (Discovery of America), November 2 (All Souls' Day), December 8 (Blessing of the Waters), December 25 (Christmas Day).

1968: January 1 (New Year's Day), January 6 (Epiphany), February 26-27 (Carnival), April 8-13 (Holy Week), April 19 (Landing of the 33 patriots).

THE CONSTITUTION

THE present constitution of Uruguay was ratified by plebiscite on November 27th, 1966, when the country voted to return to the presidential form of government after fifteen years of "collegiate" government. The main items of the Constitution are as follows:

General Provisions

Uruguay shall have a democratic republican form of Government, sovereignty being exercised directly by the Electoral Body in cases of election, by initiative or by referendum, and indirectly by representative powers established by the constitution, according to the rules set out therein.

There shall be freedom of religion; there is no state religion; property shall be inviolable; there shall be freedom of thought. Anyone may enter Uruguay. There are two forms of citizenship: natural, being persons born in Uruguay or of Uruguayan parents, and legal, being people established in Uruguay with at least three years' residence in the case of those with family, and five years' for those without family. Every citizen has the right and obligation to vote.

Elections for both houses of the General Assembly, the President and Vice-President and for all state organizations shall take place every five years on the last Sunday in November, those elected to take office the following year.

Administration is by a central civil service, autonomous bodies and decentralized services.

Legislature

Legislative power is vested in the General Assembly, made up of two houses, which may act separately or together according to the dispositions of the constitution.

It is responsible for drawing up laws, establishing tribunals, arranging administration of justice and administrative litigation; expediting laws relating to the independence, security, peace and decorum of the Republic; laws relating to the protection of individual rights and development of agricultural, industrial and commercial life; it establishes fiscal contributions and the method of collection; it must approve accounts presented by the Executive Power, authorize the National Debt, regulate public credit; it may declare war and approve or reject, by absolute majority, peace treaties and all international agreements made by the Executive; it has jurisdiction over the size of the armed force; it can create new Departments, by a two-thirds majority in each house; it can create or suppress public appointments; concede monopolies, by a two-thirds majority (absolute in the case of government departments).

It elects in joint session the members of the Supreme Court of Justice, of the Electoral Court, Tribunals, Administrative Litigation and the Accounts Tribunal.

Elections for both houses, the President and the Vice-President and all Boards of state organizations shall take place every five years on the last Sunday in November; Sessions of the Assembly begin on March 15th each year and last until December 15th (October 15th in election years, in which case the new Assembly takes office on February 15th). Extraordinary sessions can only be called in cases of extreme urgency.

The Chamber of Representatives has 99 members elected by direct suffrage by the people according to the system of proportional representation, with at least two representatives to each Department. The number of representatives can be altered by law by a two-thirds majority in both houses. Their term of office is five years and they must be over 25 and natural citizens or legal citizens with 5 years' exercise of their citizenship. The members have the right to bring accusations against any member of the government or judiciary for violation of the Constitution or any other serious offence.

The Senate is made up of 30 members, elected directly by the people by proportional representation on the same lists as the representatives, for a term of 5 years. They must be natural citizens or legal citizens with seven years' exercise of their rights, and be over 30 years of age. The Senate is responsible for hearing any cases brought by the representatives and can deprive a guilty person of his post by a two-thirds majority.

The representatives and senators may not take any other paid state employment. The President and members of the Electoral Tribunal may not engage in party political activities. Any change in the civil or electoral registers requires a two-thirds majority in both Houses; any other changes require only a simple majority.

A permanent commission consisting of 4 senators and 7 representatives elected by proportional representation shall be set up to watch over the observance of the Constitution and laws of the land.

The Executive

Executive power is exercised by the President and the Council of Ministers. There shall be a Vice-President, who shall also be President of the General Assembly and of the Senate. The President and Vice-President are elected by simple majority of the people by means of the system of double simultaneous vote, and remain in office for five years. They must be over 35 and natural citizens of Uruguay.

The Council of Ministers is made up of the office holders in the 11 ministries or their deputies, and is responsible for all acts of government and administration. It is presided over by the President of the Republic who has a vote.

Autonomous Bodies and Decentralized Services administer the industrial and commercial aspects of the country. A National Economy Council may be set up.

There shall be an Accounts Tribunal of 7 members, fulfilling the same qualifications as senators, designated by the General Assembly by a two-thirds majority. It shall be responsible to the General Assembly—both houses meeting together—for all matters connected with accounts of the State, Government Departments, Autonomous Bodies and Decentralized Services.

The Judiciary

Judicial Power shall be exercised by the Supreme Court of 5 members and by Tribunals and local courts; members of the Supreme Court must be over 40, natural citizens, or legal citizens with 10 years' exercise and 25 years' residence, and must be lawyers of 10 years' standing, 8 of them in public or fiscal ministry or judiciary. Members serve for 10 years and can be re-elected after a break of 5 years. The Court nominates all other judges and judicial officials.

Administration

All government administration and services in the Departments except public security are in the hands of Departmental Juntas, consisting of 31 members, headed by a Municipal Intendant. Junta members must be over 23 years of age, natural citizens or legal with 3 years' exercise, and be a native of or resident in the Department for at least 3 years. They hold office for 5 years and election is by direct public vote. Intendants are elected under the same conditions as Senators and hold office for 5 years, and may be re-elected once more, provided they resign at least three months before the elections. The Intendant represents the Department in its relations with the state powers and with other Departmental governments.

URUGUAY—(CONSTITUTION, THE GOVERNMENT, DIPLOMATIC REPRESENTATION ETC.)

There are also local Juntas, with five members, in towns outside the departmental capitals.

There shall be an Administrative Litigation Tribunal, made up of 5 members; its jurisdiction is over all definitive administrative acts emanating from state and government bodies.

There shall be an Electoral Court, with direct jurisdiction over all electoral matters. It is made up of 9 members, 5 designated by the General Assembly by a two-thirds majority and 4 designated as party members from the two most popular lists by double simultaneous vote of the General Assembly.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY

President of the General Assembly and of the Senate: JORGE PACHECO ARECO.

ELECTIONS, NOVEMBER 27TH, 1966
(Provisional results)

PARTY	TOTAL VOTE	SEATS IN SENATE	SEATS IN CHAMBER
Partido Colorado	528,069	16	50
Partido Nacional	419,653	13	41
Frente Izquierda de Liberación	60,541	1	5
Partido Demócrata Cristiano	31,946	—	3
Partido Socialista	10,936	—	—

POLITICAL PARTIES

The names of the two principal parties derive from the flags of the civil war of 1836, namely Blanco and Colorado. By tradition the Blanco Party is conservative and the Colorado Party more liberal.

Partido Colorado: The Party, which depends for its support largely on the urban area, controlled the executive for 93 years until the elections of 1958. It regained control in 1966 when Gen. GESTIDO became President under the new Constitution. Like the Blancos, it is itself divided into a number of factions: the Gestidistas, led by Gen. OSCAR D. GESTIDO, the Batillista faction, led by JORGE BATTLE, and the Lealtad y Unidad, led by ZELMAR MICHELINI and RENÁN RODRÍGUEZ. There are also the Lista 99 and Quincismo groups led by VASCONCELLOS and JIMÉNEZ DE ARECHAGA.

Partido Nacional (Blanco): The Party, with its substantially rural support, won the 1958 and 1962 elections but lost in 1966. Within the party there are four main factions: the Herrevistas, led by MARTÍN ECHEGOYEN, and the Ruralistas, formerly led by BENITO NARDONE, who together formed the "Axis" group in the 1962 elections; and the "Orthodox" Herreristas, led by EDUARDO VÍCTOR HAEDO, and the Unión Blanca Democrática which was led by the late DANIEL FERNÁNDEZ CRESPO, who together formed the "Ubedoxo" group in the 1962 elections. Each group drew up its own list of election candidates.

Partido Demócrata Cristiano (PDC): formerly Unión Cívica del Uruguay; f. 1962; Pres. GELSI. This party again split in 1966 to form the:

Movimiento Cívico Cristiano: Leader Dr. JUAN VICENTE CHIARINO.

Partido Socialista: obtained 1 per cent of the total vote in 1966 elections; Leaders CARDOSO and FRUGONI.

Unión Popular (UP): Rondeau 1598, Montevideo; f. 1962; breakaway group from Partido Socialista and other minority and local parties; Leader ENRIQUE R. ERRO.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

The Supreme Court of Justice has original jurisdiction in constitutional, international and admiralty cases and is the court of cassation for cases in which the decision has been altered or modified in lower appeal courts. It consists of five judges elected by the General Assembly. These hold office for ten years, and can be re-elected only after a five-year interval.

Supreme Court of Justice: Calle Ibicuy 1310, Montevideo; Pres. (1967) Dr. HAMLET REYES.

There are four Courts of Appeal, each with three judges.

In Montevideo there are seven commercial and civil, and three financial courts, as well as two criminal and six correctional courts.

Throughout the country there are Departmental Courts in the capitals of each of the nineteen Departments; Justices of the Peace in each of the 226 judicial sections; and District Judges in the districts into which the sections are subdivided.

RELIGION

Under the Constitution, the Church and the State were declared separate and toleration for all forms of worship was proclaimed. Roman Catholicism predominates.

RAILWAYS

A.F.E. (Administración de los Ferrocarriles del Estado): Casilla 203 and 419, Montevideo; Uruguayan State Railways; Pres. Dr. FRANCISCO GILMET; Gen. Man. Ing. DELFINO FROS TORRES.

The system was created by the Act of September 1952 and covers 1,866 miles of standard gauge track, including the four former British-owned lines. There are connections with the Brazilian narrow gauge lines at Rivera Rio Branco and Cuareim.

ROADS

Uruguay has 3,100 miles of good paved roads, among the best in South America, which connect Montevideo with Colonia and Mercedes on the Rio Negro, with the interior of the country as far as Paso Toros, and go eastwards, through Minas and Treinta y Tres, almost to the Brazilian frontier. Another road connects the watering places, starting at Montevideo and ending at Punta del Este. The international bridge of the Yaguaron River, connecting the city of Yaguaron (Uruguay) with Rio Branco (Brazil), is open. Long-distance motor buses and lorries ply in certain areas in competition with the trains. During 1962 loans upwards of $23m. (U.S.) were made by the Inter-American Development Bank and the World Bank for the maintenance of the main highways. There are 1,759 miles of unpaved main roads and 21,000 miles of other roads.

A public works programme recently passed by Congress approved expenditure of 318m. pesos on road works, involving the construction or improvement of 1,619 km. of paved roads, 396 km. of improved roads and 6,912 km. of other roads.

VENEZUELA

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Venezuela lies on the north coast of South America and is bordered by Colombia to the west, Guyana to the east and Brazil to the south. The climate varies with altitude from tropical to cool, the average temperature at Caracas being 69°F (21°C). The language is Spanish. There is no state religion, but most of the population are Roman Catholics. The flag consists of horizontal stripes of yellow, blue and red, the central blue stripe being charged with seven stars and the yellow stripe with the national coat of arms. The capital is Caracas.

Recent History

President Pérez Jiménez seized power in 1948 and remained in office until 1958 when he was overthrown by a military junta under Admiral Wolfgang Larrazabal. The next President, Romulo Betancourt, was elected in the same year. His Government was greatly harassed and in 1960 there were serious left-wing riots. He became the first Venezuelan President to complete his term of office when President Raúl Leoni was elected in December 1963. A new constitution, the twenty-sixth in the country's history, was promulgated in 1961. Venezuela was accepted as a member of the Latin American Free Trade Association (LAFTA) in 1965, and ratified her acceptance in October 1966.

Government

Venezuela is a Federal Republic consisting of 20 states, a Federal District and two Federal Territories, each under a Governor. Executive power is vested in the President who is elected for a five-year term by universal suffrage and has wide powers. The legislative organ is Congress, consisting of a Senate and House of Representatives. Both Houses of Congress are elected by universal suffrage.

Defence

Military service is compulsory for two years between eighteen and forty-five. The strength of the Army is about 15,000 men and there are a small Navy (including a body of Marines) and Air Force.

Economic Affairs

Oil, of which Venezuela is one of the world's leading producers, is the predominant factor in the economy. Concessions are held by foreign interests and 67 per cent of oil revenue goes to the Government. Production in 1966 was 3.37 million barrels a day. Other minerals include iron ore, bauxite, gold and coal. The chief crops are maize, coffee, coca, rice and cotton. Livestock raising is important and production of meat and milk is growing. Industries include cement, food and drink, textiles and tyres.

The National Plan, 1965-68, envisages expenditure of some 37,350 million bolívares and aims to raise the G.D.P. by 7.2 per cent per annum. Emphasis will be laid on increasing productivity, particularly in agriculture and the meat processing industry and improving transport and communications.

The first stage of the Guri dam project, begun in 1964, is due for completion in 1968 and will have an output of 525,000 kW. When the project is finally completed towards 1990, it will have an output of 6 million kW from 24 generators and will be one of the largest in the world; the cost is estimated at U.S.$73 million.

In 1966 the Bolívar was accepted as a medium for international payments.

Transport and Communications

The length of railway track is 291 miles and a 20-year National Railway Plan was inaugurated in 1950. There are 19,375 miles of all-weather roads. The river Orinoco is navigable for about 700 miles and there are steamer services on Lake Maracaibo. Internal air services are well-developed and international air transport is provided by four national and sixteen foreign lines.

Social Welfare

Labour legislation protects workers and there are benefits for accidents, sickness and old age. A modified insurance scheme was introduced in 1967, entitling insured workers and their dependents to medical assistance, pensions etc., and granting aid to survivors.

Education

Primary education is free and compulsory between the ages of seven and fourteen. In 1966 there were 10,837 primary schools with 1,421,959 pupils. Secondary education lasts for four years with a further year for admission to higher education. There are five state and two private universities.

Tourism

The mountain peaks and the many forests and lakes form the main tourist attractions. Angel Waterfalls (3,212 feet) are reputed to be the highest in the world. In 1962 a state organisation, FOMTUR, was set up to promote tourism.

Visas are required by all visitors to Venezuela.

Sport

Football, tennis, golf, baseball and basketball are the most popular sports. Bullfighting also has a large following.

Public Holidays

1967: May 1 (Labour Day), May 4 (Ascension Day), May 25 (Corpus Christi), June 24 (Battle of Carabobo), June 29 (St. Peter and St. Paul), July 5 (Independence Day), July 24 (Birth of the Liberator, Simon Bolívar), August 15 (Assumption), October 12 (Discovery of America), November 1 (All Saints' Day), December 8 (Immaculate Conception), December 25 (Christmas Day).

THE CONSTITUTION

(January 1961)

The Federal Republic of Venezuela is divided into States, a Federal District, Federal Territories and Federal Dependencies. The States are autonomous but must comply with the laws and constitution of the Republic.

The Legislative Power is exercised by Congress, divided into two Chambers: the Senate and the Chamber of Deputies.

Senators are elected by universal suffrage, two to represent each State, and two to represent the Federal District. There are in addition other Senators, their number being determined by law, who are selected on the principle of minority representation. Ex-Presidents of the Republic are also members of the Senate. Deputies are elected by universal suffrage, the number representing each State being at least two and for the Federal District one. Ordinary sessions of both Chambers shall commence on the second day of March of each year, and continue until the sixth day of the following July; thereafter, sessions are renewed from the first day of October to the thirtieth day of November, both dates inclusive. The Chamber of Deputies is empowered to initiate legislation. Congress also elects a Controller-General to preside over the Audit Office (Contraloría de la Nación), which investigates Treasury income and expenditure, and the finances of the autonomous institutes.

The Executive Power is vested in a President of the Republic elected by universal suffrage every five years; he may not serve two consecutive terms. The President is empowered to discharge the Constitution and the laws, to nominate or remove Ministers, to take supreme command of the Armed Forces, to direct foreign relations of the State, to declare a state of emergency and withdraw the civil guarantees laid down in the Constitution, to convene extraordinary sessions of Congress, to administer national finance and to nominate and remove Governors of the Federal District and the Federal Territories. The President also appoints an Attorney General to act as a legal arbiter for the state.

The Judicial Power is exercised by the Supreme Court of Justice and by the Tribunals. The Supreme Court forms the highest Tribunal of the Republic and the Magistrates of the Supreme Court are elected by both Chambers in joint session.

A National Railway Plan was inaugurated in 1950 envisaging the construction of 1,515 miles of main line standard gauge in the first 10-year phase and 1,125 miles of branch line in the second:

Ferrocarril Puerto Cabello—Barquisimeto: Barquisimeto; 109 miles open; Superintendent Ing. VIRGILIO VIVAS.

VENEZUELA—(TRANSPORT)

Ferrocarril Guanta-Naricual: to serve Ciudad Bolívar.

Ferrocarril Encontrados-La Fría: 65 miles open; 3 ft. 6 in. gauge.

There are also two privately owned railways used to take iron ore to the Orinoco River ports.

Plans are under way for building an underground railway in Caracas.

ROADS

There are about 31,000 km. of highways which may be used at all seasons of the year. Approximately 14,000 km. of these are paved or improved. In addition, there is a fairly large network of roads which are open to traffic during the dry season.

Of the three great highways the first (600 miles) runs from Caracas to Ciudad Bolívar. The second, the Pan-American Highway (800 miles), runs from Caracas to the Colombian frontier and is continued as far as Cúcuta. A branch runs from Valencia to Puerto Cabello. The third highway runs southwards from Coro, through Trujillo and Mérida, to San Cristóbal, branching at Carora, through Barquisimeto, to join the National highway at Acarigua. This third highway has now been connected with La Ceiba, on the Lake of Maracaibo. In 1962 a 5½-mile bridge connecting the two shores of Lake Maracaibo was completed, thereby greatly improving communications between Caracas and Maracaibo. Nearly 200 million bolívares were spent on extensions to the road system of the industrial area of Guayana in 1963-64.

Present plans include the building of 2,320 miles of new highway to complete the major highway network by 1968, 5,024 miles of existing roads are to be paved and 5,000 improved at a total cost of nearly 3,000 million bolívares.

DEMOCRATIC REPUBLIC OF VIET-NAM

(NORTH VIET-NAM)

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The Democratic Republic of Viet-Nam forms the northern part of the former state of Viet-Nam, previously an associate member of the French Union. The 17th parallel separates the Democratic Republic from the southern part, now called the Republic of Viet-Nam. To the north is China, to the west Laos and to the east the South China Sea. The climate is hot and wet with a monsoon season from May to October. The principal language is Vietnamese. Most of the people are Buddhists, but there are groups of Christians, Cao-Daists and Hoa-Hao. The flag bears a yellow five-pointed star on a red background. The capital is Hanoi.

Recent History

The 1954 Geneva Agreement ended an eight-year war between the communist Vietminh of the north and French forces. Viet-Nam was divided into two states, the Democratic Republic and the Republic. The two states remain formally divided. Since 1964 the Democratic Republic has been subject to frequent air attacks by American and South Viet-Namese planes in reprisal for communist military activity in the Republic of Viet-Nam.

Government

Legislative power is vested in the National Assembly elected for a four-year term by universal adult suffrage. The Assembly elects the President of the Republic for a similar period. Executive power is exercised by the Council of Ministers which is responsible to the National Assembly. There are seventeen provinces.

Defence

The defence forces consist of a strong army, an air force and a navy equipped with coastal patrol vessels. Considerable military aid has been received both from China and the Soviet Union.

Economic Affairs

The economy is governed by a five-year plan. About 85 per cent of agriculture is collectivised. The chief crops are rice (the staple crop), wheat, maize, sugar, coffee, tea, fruit, tobacco, cotton, rubber and jute. The vast forests yield bamboo and teak. There are coal deposits scattered over 750 square miles and producing about 2,500,000 tons annually, increasing to 3,200,000 in 1964. Other minerals mined are tin, zinc, copper, chromium, iron, silver, mercury, gold and, most important, apatite. The sea, rivers and lakes are rich in fish. Industry is confined mainly to cement production and textile manufacture. Few statistics have been issued since the intensification of war in 1964.

Transport and Communications

There are 937 miles of railways based on Hanoi. Roads, badly damaged during hostilities, are being rebuilt and now extend for some 8,400 miles. Rivers are much used for transport. The first ship, a medium-sized sea-going vessel, July 20, was launched in 1965. The main port is Haiphong. There are internal air services and a direct line to Peking.

Social Welfare

The state operates a system of social security. Hospitals, dispensaries and sanatoria number 373. Mobile medical teams treat trachoma, malaria and other diseases.

Education

There is compulsory education, where possible, for 10 years. Pupils number about 3,410,000 (1967). There is one university, at Hanoi.

Tourism

There are mountain and seaside resorts but few foreign visitors.

Sport

The state encourages team games and athletics.

Weights and Measures

The Metric System is in force.

Currency and Exchange Rates

The monetary unit is the Dong = 10 Hào = 100 Xu.

Coins: 1, 2, 5 Xu.

Notes: 1, 2, 5 Hào; 1, 2, 5, 10 Dong.

Exchange rate: 10 Dong = £1 sterling
3.5 Dong = $1 U.S.

THE CONSTITUTION

The Geneva Agreement of 1954 divided Viet-Nam into two states—North Viet-Nam (Democratic Republic of Viet-Nam) and South Viet-Nam (Republic of Viet-Nam). The Seventeenth Parallel was fixed as the dividing line between the two states.

The original constitution of the Democratic Republic was replaced by a revised constitution, adopted in 1960.

Main provisions:

Unity of Viet-Nam: The territory of Viet-Nam is an indivisible whole.

Economic Principles: The economy is directed by a plan, and the state relies on the organs of state, the trade unions and the co-operative sector to assist in fulfilling the plan. In the present transitional period, ownership of the means of production may be by the state, by the co-operative sector, by individuals or by national capitalists.

President: elected for four years. He is responsible for most senior appointments, and promulgates laws and decrees. He represents the country in external affairs, and is the supreme commander of the armed forces.

DEMOCRATIC REPUBLIC OF VIET-NAM—(THE CONSTITUTION, THE GOVERNMENT, ETC.)

Council of Ministers: consists of the Prime Minister (President), the Vice-Premiers, the Heads of State Commissions and the Director-General of the National Bank. The Council is responsible to the National Assembly.

Special Political Conference: ad hoc executive body convened to make important political decisions. The President of the state takes the chair.

National Assembly: elected for the same period as the President. The Assembly is to meet twice a year, or for extraordinary sessions. It elects a President of the Assembly, the President and Vice-President of the state, the Prime Minister and other officials. It discusses economic plans, and, among other functions, examines and approves the budget.

Standing Committee of the National Assembly: permanent executive body of the Assembly, and elected by it. It consists of a Chairman, Vice-Chairman, Secretary-General, and members. It is responsible to the National Assembly, and decides questions of election and franchise, and most appointments. It also supervises local government.

Local Government: the country is divided into provinces, and subdivided into districts, cities and towns. There are People's Courts at all these levels, elected locally.

Judicial System: consists of the Supreme People's Court, local People's Courts, and military courts. There are also People's Organs of Control, under the Supreme People's Organ of Control, to secure observance of the laws.

REPUBLIC OF VIET-NAM (SOUTH VIET-NAM)

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The Republic of Viet-Nam is situated in the eastern part of south-east Asia with the Democratic Republic of Viet-Nam to the north of the 17th parallel and Cambodia to the west. The China Sea lies to the east. The climate is warm and humid with a monsoon season from May to October. The language is Vietnamese. Taoism (ancestor worship) is the religion of most of the population. There are sizeable groups of Buddhists, Cao-Daists, Confucians and Roman Catholics. The flag is yellow with three horizontal red stripes. The capital is Saigon.

Recent History

The 1954 Geneva Agreement divided Viet-Nam, previously a province of the French colonial empire, into two states. In 1955, following a referendum, the Emperor Bao Dai was deposed and a republican constitution promulgated. In November 1963 a military junta seized power in a coup d'état, and the dictatorship of President Diem was replaced by a Council of the Armed Forces. In May 1965, the Council of the Armed Forces was dissolved, but in June 1965 the Army again took over the government. Air Vice-Marshal Nguyen Cao Ky became Prime Minister and General Nguyen Van Thieu Head of State. Elections to a constituent Assembly were held in September 1966, and in March 1967 a new constitution was adopted, allowing for a return to civilian rule in the autumn of 1967.

Government

Supreme power is in the hands of a National Leadership Committee, representing both civilian and military interests. The Committee appoints the Prime Minister and Cabinet. Under the terms of the 1967 Constitution, elections to the Presidency and to a two-chamber National Assembly will be held in September 1967. Pending these elections the Constituent Assembly which drew up the new Constitution is the chief legislative body.

Defence

The Army, totalling about 600,000, is commanded by Viet-Namese officers and trained under U.S. supervision. It is supported by strong U.S. military forces, estimated at 418,000 men in March 1967, and 55,000 troops of other nationalities. Many of the villages have been fortified to resist guerilla penetration. Vietcong forces were estimated at 280,000 in May 1967.

Economic Affairs

The principal activity is agriculture and the chief products are rice and rubber. Maize, sugar cane, ground-nuts and copra are also grown. Fishing provides a valuable supplement to the diet. Industry is confined to food processing, light machinery assembly, beverages and textiles. As a result of the war situation the economy has declined, and in 1966 300,000 tons of rice were imported. The country has received massive U.S. aid.

Transport and Communications

There are approximately 937 miles of railways and 12,520 miles of motorable roads. Inland waterways total 2,750 miles, of which 1,350 are canals. Air Viet-Nam maintains internal services and flights to Cambodia, Laos, Thailand, Hong Kong, Singapore, Taiwan and Malaysia. Saigon is one of the largest ports in south-east Asia.

Social Welfare

Hospital accommodation in 1965 totalled 26,138 beds in 1,559 institutions. In addition there are 615 village maternity clinics. There is a pension scheme for state workers.

Education

In 1964 there were 5,788 primary schools, half of them privately owned, and 587 secondary schools. There are four universities.

Tourism

The main centres of tourism are Saigon, the old city of Hué in the north-east and Dalat, a mountain resort. There is abundant wild game, which attracts many hunters.

Visas are required by all visitors, unless staying under 72 hours.

Sport

Football is the most popular game.

Public Holidays

January 1 (New Year's Day), May 1 (Labour Day), Ascension Day, August 15 (The Assumption), September 28 (Confucian Day), November 1 (National Day), November 2 (All Saints' Day), December 25 (Christmas).

Lunar Calendar Festivals: Lunar New Year (January-February), Women's Day (sixth of the second lunar month), Buddha's Birth (15th of the fourth lunar month), Tran-Hung-Dao-National Hero (20th of the eighth lunar month).

Weights and Measures

The Metric System is in force.

Currency and Exchange Rates

The monetary unit is the Piastre = 100 Centimes; the currency was devalued from 35.35 Piastres = $1 to 80 Piastres = $1 in June 1966.

Coins: 10, 20, 50 Centimes; 1, 5, 10 Piastre.

Notes: 1, 5, 10, 20, 50, 100, 200, 500 Piastres.

Exchange rate: 226 Piastres = £1 sterling
80 Piastres = $1 U.S.

THE CONSTITUTION

On March 18th, 1967, the Constituent Assembly approved a new draft Constitution, the main points of which are given below.

BASIC PROVISIONS, CITIZENS' RIGHTS

Viet-Nam is a territorially indivisible, unified and independent Republic, with sovereignty residing in the people. The State recognizes and guarantees the basic rights of all citizens. It will comply with those provisions of international law which are not contrary to its national sovereignty and will contribute to the maintenance of international peace and security.

All citizens are equal before the law, which will protect human rights and the lives, property and honour of every citizen.

The private life, home and correspondence of every citizen shall be respected; he is guaranteed the freedom to worship, pursue the kind of education suited to him, meet and form associations; the State recognizes the freedom of thought, speech and the press. It will strive to improve the social security system, being bound to establish regulations providing for assistance to the old, sick, disabled, orphans, widows and the victims of natural disasters and public misfortune.

Every citizen has the duty to defend the country and the Republic; to defend the constitution and respect the law; to fulfil his military obligations as prescribed by law and to pay taxes in proportion to his means and in accordance with the provisions of the law.

THE LEGISLATURE

Legislative authority is vested by the people in the National Assembly which is made up of the Senate and the House of Representatives.

The Senate consists of between 30 and 50 members, popularly elected from interprovince constituencies by direct and secret ballot, running as individual candidates. Candidates must be 30 years old, enjoy the full rights of citizenship, have fulfilled military obligations and meet all the conditions prescribed in the Senatorial electoral law. Senators are elected for a period of six years, half of the Senate being re-elected every three years; they may be re-elected.

The House of Representatives consists of between 120 and 200 representatives, popularly elected from separate constituencies by direct and secret ballot; they will run as individual candidates. Candidates must be at least 25 years of age, enjoy the full rights of citizenship, have fulfilled military obligations and meet other conditions as specified in the electoral law. Representatives will serve for four years. They may be re-elected.

The Senate and the House of Representatives have the authority to vote legislation, approve treaties and international agreements, determine declarations of war and the holding of peace talks, determine declaration of a state of emergency, imposition of curfew over all or part of the territory of Viet-Nam, control national policy, propose the removal of part or all of the Government, pass on the validation of Senators and Representatives and decide territorial problems.

The National Assembly is empowered to investigate government agencies or officials at the central or local levels, and may propose the dismissal of ministers, secretaries, the Prime Minister or the entire Government by a two-thirds majority vote of the total membership of each house, with the condition that the Minister, Secretary or entire Government has been in office more than one year.

The Senate approves the appointment of Supreme Court of Justice Judges, Chiefs of Diplomatic Missions and University Rectors, and the appointment and promotion of General Officers. Authority not specifically vested in the Senate will fall to the House of Representatives.

Representatives and Senators cannot be prosecuted, pursued, arrested or sentenced for any statement or vote in the National Assembly or its committees except in cases of flagrant violation of the law.

Bills may be introduced by Representatives, Senators or the President and must be submitted to the Office of the House of Representatives.

The National Assembly shall meet each year in two regular sessions, the first beginning on the first Monday in April, the second on the first Monday in October, each session lasting a maximum of 90 days. Special sessions may be called by request of the President or one third of the total membership of either house. Each house will elect its own Chairman and permanent officers.

SPECIAL COURT

During each of its terms the National Assembly will elect five Senators and five Representatives to form a Special Court, chaired by the President of the Supreme Court; this Court will be empowered to judge the President and the Vice-President of the Republic, the Prime Minister, Ministers, Secretaries, Generals and the President of the the Supreme Court (when the Chairman of the Senate presides) when charges of treason or high crimes are brought against them. Charges will be brought by a motion signed by more than half of the total membership of both the Senate and the House of Representatives, and that motion must be approved by a two-thirds majority of the total membership of both houses.

INSPECTORATE

An Inspectorate will be established by law, composed of three representatives, three senators and three Supreme Court Justices. The Inspectorate has full competency of a judicial investigating organ and is empowered to investigate or may be charged by the Senate or the House of Representatives to investigate civil servants of all ranks, including the President of the Republic, representatives and Senators, the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court or any citizen regarding corruption, speculation or acts harmful to the national interest. It must report on its activities to the House of Representatives.

THE EXECUTIVE

Executive authority is vested by the people in the President.

The President and Vice-President will run on one list and will be elected by the entire nation in a secret and direct ballot. Their term of office is four years. To run for the Presidency a candidate must have Vietnamese citizenship from birth and continuous residence in Viet-Nam for ten years prior to the date of the election; he must be at least 35 years of age, have fulfilled military obligations, enjoy full rights of citizenship and be introduced by ten Representatives or Senators or by a political party.

The President promulgates legislation; laws will be promulgated within thirty days from the time the President receives bills approved by the National Assembly.

He appoints the Prime Minister, and on the latter's proposal the Ministers, Secretaries and Under-Secretaries. He may reorganize part or all of the Government. The President, with the approval of the Senate, will appoint Justices of the Supreme Court, Chiefs of Diplomatic Missions, Rectors of Universities and will appoint and promote General Officers.

The President represents the Nation in international relations, and receives letters of accreditation of diplomatic envoys. With the approval of the National Assembly he shall declare war and ratify peace treaties. He is the Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces of the Republic; Chairman of the National Assembly Council. He shall prescribe national policy and with the assistance of the Vice-President, Prime Minister and Cabinet Ministers he shall carry out national policy and laws.

LOCAL ADMINISTRATION

Local separation of power is recognized for legal regional entities: Villages, Provinces, Cities and the Capital. The deliberative bodies of local administrative units shall be designated as Village Councils, with a Village Chief as the executive organ; Provincial Councils, with a Province Chief; City Councils with a Mayor and the Capital City Council with a Mayor.

THE JUDICIARY

The Judiciary is an independent branch of the Government, equal in status with the Executive and Legislative. Judicial power will be entrusted to judges and directed by the Supreme Court and lower courts; every court has to be established and organized according to law with an element which judges and an element which prosecutes. All courts are under the control of the Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court will consist of fifteen judges, nine of them nominated by the High Judicial Council with the consent of the National Assembly and then appointed by the President; two will be nominated by the Senate and four by the House of Representatives for appointment by the President. The High Judicial Council will nominate 18 candidates for the Supreme Court, from which nine will be selected by the National Assembly. The members of the Supreme Court nominated by the High Judicial Council will hold office until they reach the statutory retirement age; those nominated by the Senate and the House of Representatives will serve for the same term as they would have in the respective houses. The President and Vice-President of the Supreme Court will be elected by its members.

The Supreme Court can review decisions by any lower court, but only in matters concerning the application of the law; it is empowered to decide on the validity of the Presidential and Vice-Presidential elections and proclaim their results. It will hold sessions to review the constitutionality of laws and decree laws, the constitutionality and legality of decrees and decisions issued by the Executive, to interpret the constitution in cases of conflict between Government agencies as to their responsibility and competence and to discuss the dissolution of a political organization.

The Supreme Court will have an autonomous budget and the right to determine its internal organization and procedures governing the management of the Judiciary; its organization and procedures will be determined by law.

The High Judicial Court will consist of one member of the Supreme Court, the Presiding Judges of the Courts of Appeal, one representative of the Ministry of Justice, the leader of the Association of Lawyers, and a number of elected members. The President and Vice-President will be elected by the Council's entire membership. It will have jurisdiction in promotions and disciplinary measures involving judges, the review of appointments and transfers of all judges, the nomination of certain judges for the Supreme Court, and advising the Government as well as the Supreme Court on all judicial matters.

COUNCILS

A Culture and Education Council will be established to assist and stimulate the Government in carrying out an educational policy in keeping with the criteria set out in the constitution; one-third of the members will be appointed by the President and two-thirds will represent public and private cultural and educational organizations, parents and student associations and youth organizations from throughout the country; their term of office shall be six years, one-third of the membership being renewed every two years.

The Economic and Social Council has the mission of initiating and developing ideas on economic and social matters in order to establish a self-sufficient and prosperous economy; all relevant bills, programmes and plans of the National Assembly must be referred to it for review. One third of the members will be chosen by the President from among experts in the field of economics and sociology and two thirds will be elected separately by economic, commercial and industrial organizations; their term of office is for four years.

The Ethnic Minority Council, representing the ethnic minorities living on Vietnamese territory, has the mission of advising the Government on all matters affecting ethnic minorities, with the purpose of helping them to develop politically, economically, culturally and socially. It is composed of one third members appointed by the President from people knowledgeable about minority affairs, and two thirds elected by ethnic minority groups; its term of office will be four years.

POLITICAL PARTIES AND OPPOSITION

Political parties can be freely established and operate openly in the spirit of the law and non-violence; they must respect the constitution, the law and national sovereignty. The State will facilitate their establishment and progress and encourage and assist progress towards a two-party system. The State recognizes the principle of formalizing political opposition.

The President or an absolute majority of either the Senators or the Representatives may propose amendment of the constitution; no amendment may be made affecting the republican regime, the unity and the territorial integrity decided by the constitution.

There will be a transitional period before the new constitution comes entirely into force; the Constituent Assembly elected in September 1966 will assume the legislative powers established by this constitution until a constitutional government and the first National Assembly have been established. The Assembly will be responsible for drafting a law governing elections, regulations governing the press, political parties and opposition.

PARLIAMENT

In September 1966 elections were held in all government-controlled areas to a Constituent Assembly of 117 members, which drafted a new Constitution for the Republic. The Assembly will continue to sit as the legislative body until elections are held for the new bi-cameral Assembly. The great majority of members were elected as independents.

Dean: NGUYỄN BA LUONG.

Chairman: PHAN KHAC SUU.

POLITICAL PARTIES

There are a great number of small political parties in the Republic of Viet-Nam. Within the Constituent Assembly the members have formed three groups:

Democratic Alliance: links Hoa Hao and Cao Dai religious representatives, some nationalists and some Roman Catholic members.

Greater People's Bloc: includes military representatives, Dai Viet Nationalist Party members, and professional men.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

The Judicial System is based on the French Judicial System. Under the new Constitution the judiciary will consist of the Supreme Court of 15 judges (nine nominated by the High Judicial Council, two by the Senate and four by the House of Representatives), the High Judicial Court, Courts of Appeal and Lower Courts. The present system will continue for up to one year from the inauguration of the first President.

The Special Court of Justice is a court competent to judge the most high-ranking persons in the Republic, including the President of the Court of Cassation and the President of the Constitutional Court in cases where charges of treason or high crimes are brought against them. The President of the Court of Cassation presides unless he is himself the accused. Fifteen Deputies elected by the National Assembly act as jury.

The Constitutional Court ascertains the constitutionality of Laws, Decrees and Administrative Regulations. Consists of a President, four high-ranking Judges and four Deputies elected by the National Assembly; Pres. VUONG-QUANG-NHUONG.

The Court of Cassation: the chief Judicial authority. It hears appeals from the Military Tribunals and Courts of Appeals of Saigon and Hué. Pres. of the Court of Cassation: VÔ-THIÊN-TUÂN.

The Courts of Appeal: there are two Courts of Appeal based in Saigon and Hué. These courts are divided into two Chambers, civil and criminal; Pres. Saigon: DUONG DUC THUY; Pres. Hué NGUYEN HUU CUNG.

Tribunals of First Instance: there are seven Tribunals of First Instance based in Saigon, Hué, Mytho, Vinhlong, Quang Nam, Bien-Hoa and Khanh Hoa; these hear civil, criminal and commercial cases.

(Another Tribunal has been set up in Binh Dinh, but is not yet working).

Justices of the Peace are scattered all over the country. All small complaints are sorted out by them before they go to the Tribunal of First Instance.

RELIGION

Taoism—Ancestor Worship: A belief that the living and the dead of the same clan are indissolubly bound together. Its principal manifestation is the maintenance and worship of tombs.

Buddhism: Became the official religion under the Ly dynasty (1010-1214). There are many sects.

Buddhist Unified Church: Saigon; leaders THICH TRI QUANG, THICH THIEN MINH.

Jetavana Vihara: Ven. NAGA MAHA THERA, 610 Phan-Dinh-Phung, Saigon; 10,000 mems.

Candailism: Has attracted a substantial following in the last forty years and (by 1960) claimed nearly one and a half million adherents. Candailism is a synthesis of Buddhism, Confucianism, Taoism and Christianity, preaching that the principal founders of religion are the successive reincarnation of the Supreme God. Tay Ninh at the foot of Mount Ba Den is the principal shrine.

Confucianism: Introduced from China during the era of Chinese domination.

Christianity: The first missionaries arrived in the sixteenth century. There are two million Catholics and many schools and hospitals are operated by Catholics.

Archbishop of Saigon: Most Rev. PAUL NGUYEN VAN BINH.

Archbishop of Hué: Most Rev. P. M. NGO-DINH-THUC (exiled).

WEST INDIES ASSOCIATED STATES

ANTIGUA

ST. CHRISTOPHER-NEVIS-ANGUILLA

DOMINICA

GRENADA

ST. LUCIA

ST. VINCENT

A group of Caribbean islands sharing a common relationship with Britain and participating in regional co-operative organizations.

INTRODUCTION

Associate Status: During 1966 the British Government and each of the Windward and Leeward Islands, except Montserrat, concluded a number of agreements establishing a new non-colonial relationship between the United Kingdom and the following former colonies (dates of association in brackets): Antigua (February 27th, 1967), St. Christopher-Nevis-Anguilla (February 27th, 1967), Dominica (March 1st, 1967), Grenada (March 3rd, 1967), St. Lucia (March 1st, 1967), and St. Vincent (June 1967). The association is free and voluntary and can be terminated unilaterally by either party.

Defence and External Affairs: The British Government retains responsibility for defence and external affairs and there is a British Government Representative for the six islands to supervise this aspect of the arrangements. External affairs and defence policy are conducted in close consultation with the governments of the Associated States, to whom authority may be delegated in the following affairs: membership of international organizations of which the United Kingdom is a member, trade agreements, agreements of local concern negotiated with Caribbean members of the Commonwealth, agreements of a financial, cultural or scientific nature with any Commonwealth member or with the U.S.A., and agreements relating to migration. The Associated States are to provide any defence facilities that might be requested by the British Government.

British Government Representative: C. S. ROBERTS, St. Lucia.

Internal Government: Each State exercises full internal self-government. The Queen is Head of State and is represented in each case by a Governor, who replaces the former Administrator. The structure of internal government is regulated by separate constitutions for each island. Dominica, St. Kitts, St. Lucia and St. Vincent have unicameral parliaments of 10, 10, 11 and 13 members respectively, with three nominated members and one ex-officio member. Antigua and Grenada have bicameral legislatures, consisting of an Upper and a Lower House.

The life of parliament is five years in each case. The Premier and Cabinet of each State are responsible to the parliament.

Constitutional Amendments: The association agreements may be terminated at any time, either by an Associated State, after necessary legislation has been passed, or by the British Government, which may declare the State independent. Legislation terminating the association requires a two-thirds majority in the Lower House and a two-thirds majority in a referendum, except if the association is terminated for the purpose of joining a federation, union or association with an independent Commonwealth country in the Caribbean. Constitutional amendments may take place only in the territory concerned. Amendments involving basic clauses of the Constitutions (e.g. fundamental freedoms) would require approval of two-thirds of the members of the parliament or of two-thirds of the electorate. In the case of Antigua, both provisions would need to be satisfied before such an amendment could be passed.

Judicial System: A Regional Supreme Court of Judicature has been established for the six Associated States and is composed of a High Court of Justice and a Court of Appeal, the latter replacing the Eastern Caribbean Court of Appeal. The jurisdiction of the High Court includes fundamental rights and freedoms, membership of the parliaments, and matters concerning the interpretation of the constitutions of the Associated States.

Citizenship: Citizens of the Associated States continue to be citizens of the United Kingdom and colonies. Should the association be terminated, separate citizenship for each State will become operative, and will apply to those born in the territory, those whose fathers were citizens of the territory, and women married to citizens of the territory.

Other Provisions: The association arrangements also provide for the establishment of Police and Public Service Commissions, entrenched constitutional clauses on Human Rights, the continuation of British policies on trade, aid and immigration in the Associated States, and the prospect of future regional co-operation in the Caribbean area.

REGIONAL COMMON SERVICES

COUNCIL OF MINISTERS

Bridge St., Castries, St. Lucia

The Council of Ministers was set up in September 1966, in anticipation of the accession to independence of Barbados, and replaces the former Regional Council of Ministers embracing Barbados, the Leeward Islands and the Windward Islands. It is composed of the Premiers of the Associated States and the Chief Minister of Montserrat, and is responsible for such regional undertakings as broadcasting, seismological surveys, etc., and the initiation of further co-operative projects. A committee of the Council, appointed to define development priorities, has advocated the establishment of a Regional Development Agency and a Regional Development Bank. Other recommendations include tourist development, the development and co-ordination of industry, agriculture and fisheries, the establishment of joint marketing boards and joint commercial bodies.

The Council meets regularly, the chairmanship rotating annually, and decisions are taken by a majority vote.

Chairman (1967): Hon. V. C. BIRD (Antigua).

The Secretariat is responsible for convening meetings, the transmission of Council decisions to member governments, the surveillance of the development of regional projects, and the administration of the overseas offices of the Council in London and Canada.

Secretary (acting): L. M. MASON.

SUPREME COURT OF JUDICATURE

St. George's, Grenada.

Composed of a High Court of Justice, which replaces the former Supreme Court of the Windward Islands and the Leeward Islands, and a Court of Appeal, replacing the British Caribbean Court of Appeal. The High Court is composed of the Chief Justice and six Puisne Judges. The Court of Appeal is presided over by the Chief Justice and includes two other High Court Judges. Jurisdiction of the High Court includes the general supervision of justice in the Associated States, Montserrat and the British Virgin Islands, fundamental rights and freedoms, membership of the parliaments, and matters concerning the interpretation of the constitutions of the Associated States. (See below: Judicial System.)

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

The West Indies Associated States Supreme Court was established by Order in Council in 1967, and is composed of a High Court of Justice and a Court of Appeal. The Supreme Court's jurisdiction extends to the six Associated States, Montserrat and the British Virgin Islands. The High Court of Justice, which replaces the former Supreme Court of the Windward and Leeward Islands, is presided over by the Chief Justice and there are six Puisne Judges. As well as summary jurisdiction in cases referred to it, the competence of the Court extends to such matters as the membership of the island parliaments, disputes over the interpretation of the constitutions of the Associated States, and the fundamental rights and freedoms of the subjects of the States. Appeals from this Court lie to the Court of Appeal, situated in St. George's, Grenada, which is composed of the Chief Justice, sitting as President, and two Judges of the High Court of Justice. The jurisdiction of this Court replaces that of both the Court of Appeal of the Windward and Leeward Islands and the British Caribbean Court of Appeal. Appeals from this Court lie to the Privy Council.

There are also courts of summary jurisdiction in each of the islands, presided over, in most cases, by a stipendiary magistrate who is a qualified legal practitioner. In general, summary jurisdiction in criminal matters is limited by statute to cases where the subject-matter is £10 or below, and in civil matters to £52 or under.

Chief Justice: The Hon. A. M. LEWIS; Justices of Appeal: The Hons. KEITH L. GORDON, P. CECIL LEWIS; Puisne Judges: The Hons. ST. BERNARD, LOUISY, BISHOP, GLISSOP; Chief Registrar: E. C. WILKINSON.

RELIGION

CHURCH OF ENGLAND

ST. CHRISTOPHER-NEVIS- ANGUILLA

St. Christopher

Commonly known as St. Kitts, this island is about 65 sq. miles in extent, 28 miles long and 5 miles wide.

The economy of the island is based mainly on sugar. There is one sugar factory located in Basseterre. Sea Island Cotton is also grown.

The chief port and capital of the island is Basseterre.

Nevis

This lies but three miles to the south-east of St. Kitts and is 36 sq. miles in area.

Cultivation is confined to very small farms which once prospered exclusively on sugar. But because of competition from St. Kitts, Sea Island cotton and coconuts have become the staple crops, though some sugar is still produced.

Anguilla

Some 35 sq. miles in extent, Anguilla lies to the north of St. Kitts. A subsistence agrarian economy is practised.

DOMINICA

About one-fourth of the total area of the island is under cultivation—exploitation being limited to the volcanic soils. The chief agricultural pursuit is the growing of bananas, followed closely by citrus fruit, particularly the lime, which besides producing edible fruit and juices, also yields various essential oils which are of value in pharmaceutical products. Oranges, cocoa, vanilla and coconuts are other crops. Production is mainly carried on from small holdings owned and worked by peasant farmers, who supply both home needs and an export trade.

THE CONSTITUTION

(January 1962)

RECENT HISTORY

Western Samoa, formerly a United Nations Trust Territory under New Zealand's administration, became independent on 1st January 1962. The present Constitution came into force on that date.

HEAD OF STATE

The office of Head of State is held by His Highness Malietoa Tanumafili. He and His Highness Tupua Tama-sese Meaole held this post jointly from 1st January, 1962, until the latter's death on 5th April, 1963. His Highness Malietoa Tanumafili II will hold this post for life. After that the Head of State will be elected by the Legislative Assembly for a term of five years.

EXECUTIVE POWER

Executive power lies with the Cabinet, consisting of a Prime Minister, supported by the majority in the Legislative Assembly, and eight Ministers selected by the Prime Minister. Cabinet decisions are subject to review by the Executive Council, which is made up of the Head of State and the Cabinet.

LEGISLATIVE POWER

Since the General Election of 4th April, 1964, the Legislative Assembly has consisted of 47 members, two of whom are Europeans. It has a three year term and the Speaker is elected from among the members. Samoans and Europeans have separate electoral rolls; the Europeans are elected by universal adult suffrage and the Samoans by the Matai (elected family leaders).

A regular fortnightly service to New Zealand via Fiji, Tonga and Niue. A thrice-weekly service links Apia and Pago Pago in American Samoa. Also regular shipping connections with Australia, and "Direct Line" service with United Kingdom approximately once every three months, and with Japan and Pacific coast of U.S.A. once per month.

CIVIL AVIATION

Polynesian Airlines Ltd.: P.O.B. 473, Apia; two daily air services to Pago Pago (capital of American Samoa) connect with weekly service to Fiji, New Zealand, the U.S.A. and Australia; twice weekly service to Nandi (Fiji), Nuku'alofa (Tonga), and Wallis Island.

THE YEMEN

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The Yemen is situated in the south-west corner of the Arabian Peninsular, bounded to the north and east by Saudi Arabia, to the west by the Red Sea, and to the south and east by the Federation of South Arabia (Aden). The climate in the semi-desert coastal strip is hot, with high humidity; inland, the climate is somewhat less hot, with heavy rainfall. The eastern plateau slopes into desert. The language is Arabic. The population is almost entirely Moslem. The royalist flag is red with a white star and scimitar in the centre and a star in each corner. The republican flag consists of three black, white and red horizontal stripes, with a green star on the white stripe. The capital is Sana'a now held (May 1967) by the republicans.

Recent History

Imam Ahmed of the Yemen died in September 1962. He was succeeded by his son, Imam Mohammed, but a week later, after a coup d'état by Colonel Abdullah Sallal, the Imam withdrew from the capital, rallying his supporters in the mountains to the north-east. The Imam's followers were supported by Saudi Arabia and those of Colonel (now Major-General and President) Sallal by the United Arab Republic. Major-General Sallal is believed to be in control of the greater part of the Yemen and his Government has been recognised by the majority of countries and the United Nations. In the remoter parts of the country the Imam continues to rule and in May 1967 his régime was still recognised by the United Kingdom and about 20 other states. Sporadic fighting between the two groups still continues, no settlement acceptable to all parties having been achieved.

Government

The 1964 Republic constitution provided for executive government by a President and a Cabinet headed by a Prime Minister. The supreme legislative organ is the Legislative Council, to be elected every three years. No elections have been held since the Revolution.

The Royalist Government is based on religious concepts of rule. The Imam must be a descendant of the Prophet Mohammed. Day-to-day rule is in the hands of a small Cabinet appointed by the Imam. Many of the Sheikhs recognise allegiance to the royalist régime.

Defence

The republican government has set up a National Defence Council to control all defence matters. Military service is compulsory. The republican forces control all the big towns.

Royalist troops are organized on a guerrilla basis and some of the supplies for the royalist government forces come from ambushes of republican convoys.

Both sides have received considerable external aid, not all of it openly.

Economic Affairs

Agriculture is the principal activity. In the highlands the land is terraced and irrigated and quite fertile. The chief crops are millet, maize, sorghum and oats. Oranges, plums, apricots, apples, bananas, quinces and lemons are grown, and dates are produced in low lying areas. High quality Moka coffee is the principal export crop. There is a little light industry.

Transport and Communications

There are no railways in the Yemen. Roads are being developed with Chinese, American and Russian assistance. There are highways from Hodeida to Sana'a and from Moka to Taiz and Sana'a. Hodeida port has been considerably extended with Soviet aid. The Yemeni Airline Co. operates internal services and services to Cairo, and Sana'a airport is equipped for jet aircraft.

Social Welfare

Under the Imamate there was little provision for social welfare. The Republicans intend to bring about a social revolution on the lines of that achieved in the United Arab Republic.

Education

Education before the revolution was in private hands. The Republican Government is establishing new schools run by the state.

Tourism

Tourism is undeveloped.

Sport

The chief sports are football, hunting and hawking.

Public Holidays

The month of Ramadan is observed as a religious month, and the feasts at the beginning and the end of the month (approximately December-January) are observed as public holidays.

Weights and Measures

Local weights and measures are used, and vary according to location.

Currency and Exchange Rates

The principal unit of currency is the Yemeni rial of 40 bagsha. The Indian Rupee also circulates.

Coins: $\frac{1}{2}$, 1, 2, 4 bagshas; $\frac{1}{16}$, $\frac{1}{8}$, $\frac{1}{4}$, $\frac{1}{2}$, 1 rial.
Notes 1, 5, 10 riyals.

Exchange rate: 3.00 riyals = £1 sterling
1.1 riyals = $1 U.S.

ROYALIST CONSTITUTION

The King, or Imam, of the Yemen is both the temporal and spiritual leader of his people. He is head of the Zaidi sect and is chosen by the heads of all religious sects as specified in Islamic law concerning the conditions of Khalifah. The Imam must be a descendant of the prophet Mohammed. In practice succession is governed by primogeniture.

The Imam is assisted in his administration by a Council of Ministers appointed by himself. In theory the country is divided into Lewas, at the head of each of which is a Nayeb, and subdivided into districts (qadas) at the head of which is an Amil or Governor. Each district also has its Hakim or judge who ranks below the Amil in the administrative hierarchy. In practice the country is divided into military regions within which the Royalist Armies operate.

ROYALIST CHARTER

A National Charter for the Yemen was issued by the Royalist authorities in Aden on January 31st, 1965.

The Charter states that the Mutawakilita Kingdom of the Yemen is an independent state within its natural recognized boundaries, and its territory is indivisible. The system of government is Islamic, consultative and decentralised, in accordance with Koranic precepts and the teachings of the Prophet.

After the death of the Imam, scholars, sheikhs, members of the Consultative Assembly and other notables will elect the new Imam. The Imam will head a ten-man Imamic Council. There will also be an appointed Consultative Assembly and an executive council of ministers.

All Yemenis shall have equality before the law in rights and duties, and all the basic rights of man shall be respected.

The Charter also states that no solution of the Yemen problem is possible until the withdrawal of Egyptian forces has taken place.

Civil Aviation: Yemeni Airline Co. operates internal services and services to Saudi Arabia. Ethiopian Airlines operate to and from the Yemen and Ethiopia. Since 1963 Sana'a airport has been equipped to take jet aircraft.

ZAMBIA

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Zambia, in southern central Africa, is divided from (Southern) Rhodesia by the Zambesi River and Lake Kariba. To the east lie Mozambique and Malawi, to the north Tanzania, and to the south and west Bechuanaland and Angola, while the country is almost split in half by an arm of Congo (Léopoldville) territory in the north-west. The climate is tropical, modified by altitude with average temperatures of 65° to 75°F (18°–24°C). The official language is English; the African peoples speak Bantu dialects. Most Africans follow traditional beliefs. Christians make up about 20 per cent of the population, including all Europeans, and are roughly divided between Protestants and Roman Catholics. Asians are mostly Moslems, with a few Hindus. The flag consists of orange, black and red vertical stripes on a green background with an eagle in the upper left hand corner. The capital is Lusaka.

Recent History

Under the name of Northern Rhodesia, Zambia had British Protectorate status at the inauguration of the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland in 1953. After constitutional revisions in 1959 and 1962, and following the Victoria Falls Conference in 1963, when dissolution of the Federation was agreed, further discussion between the Colonial Secretary and African leaders resulted in a new franchise in January 1964. Independence was achieved in October 1964 and the country adopted its African name, Zambia. In 1965-66, after the unilateral seizure of independence by Rhodesia, oil supplies for Zambia were flown in by U.S., Canadian and British transport aircraft, pending completion of sufficient land transport arrangements.

Government

Zambia is an independent Republic within the Commonwealth. Executive power is vested in a President and a Cabinet, appointed by the President from among the members of the National Assembly. The National Assembly has 75 seats of which 65 represent main roll constituencies and 10 represent reserved roll constituencies. In addition, the President may nominate up to 5 special members to the Assembly. An advisory House of Chiefs voices the interests of provincial chiefs. The former British Protectorate of Barotseland was incorporated within the Republic of Zambia at the assumption of independence in October 1964.

Defence

The Zambian Defence Force is centred on an Army Headquarters and a Brigade Headquarters; there are three regular infantry battalions and two territorial battalions, a battery of Artillery and squadrons of armoured cars and Engineers. The Zambia Air Force Headquarters administers transport aircraft in close co-operation with the Army. The total strength of armed forces is just over 3,000.

Economic Affairs

The basis of Zambian wealth is mining in the rich Copperbelt whose mines employ over 50,000 people. Zinc, cobalt, lead, manganese and limited amounts of coal are also mined. Smelting and refining works have grown up around the mines and industry is developing swiftly. The majority of the population are still agriculturalists, however. The chief cash products are maize, cattle, groundnuts and tobacco. On the European farms tobacco is grown for export. Community development schemes are improving the quality of farming over most of the country. In May 1966 the discovery of a large coalfield at Sinkandoba was announced, which was expected to make Zambia self-sufficient in coal for several years. The 1966-70 Development Plan aims at increasing the G.D.P. by 11 per cent per year. Total expenditure will be of £428.6 million and the Plan aims at diversifying the economy, increasing non-copper exports and developing import substitution industries, and creating 100,000 new jobs by 1970. Plans are well advanced to build a dam and hydro-electric scheme at Kafue, thus lessening Zambia's dependence on the Kariba system shared with Rhodesia.

Transport and Communications

Rhodesia Railways connect Lusaka and the Copperbelt towns, Ndola and Kitwe, to Rhodesia and South African and Portuguese ports, to the Congo (Léopoldville) rail system and the Benguela railway in Southern Angola, and (by lake service) with East African Railways. Since Rhodesia's declaration of independence, Zambia has sought to develop alternative routes. A great deal of road traffic goes along the Great North Road to Tanzania and Dar es Salaam and greater use is made of the road link to Salima in Malawi and thence by rail to Beira, Mozambique. Agreement has been reached for the construction of a £16 million oil pipeline from Dar es Salaam to the copperbelt, due for completion in late 1968. A new international airport was opened at Lusaka in 1967 and work is in progress to extend other airports. Zambia aims to split up the railway company and airline at present jointly owned with Rhodesia and Malawi.

Social Welfare

The Department of Welfare and Probation services was established in 1952. It is responsible for relief of distress, care of the aged, protection of children, adoption and probation services. It gives grants for group welfare services including voluntary schemes. A form of pension is granted to aged residents with less than £300 annual income.

Education

In 1965 there were over 410,000 pupils at primary schools and over 33,700 at secondary schools. There are Teacher-Training Colleges and Technical Colleges and the University of Zambia accepted its first students in 1966. Agricultural research for Central Africa is centred at Mount Makulu near Lusaka, while veterinary research is carried on at Mazabuka Research Station.

Tourism

The numerous Lakes, Victoria Falls, Kafue and Luangwa Valley Game Reserves, to say nothing of the climate attract an ever-increasing tourist traffic. Game-watching, camping, fishing and water-sports are available, while there are a number of excellent hotels and motels.

ZAMBIA—(STATISTICAL SURVEY)

Visas are not required to visit Zambia by nationals of Commonwealth countries.

Sport

There are facilities for almost every kind of sport in Zambia. Athletic and football events are the subject of keen interest and competition. Many touring teams visit Lusaka.

Public Holidays

1967: May 1 (Labour Day), May 15 (Whit Monday), May 24 (Commonwealth Day), May 25 (Africa Freedom Day), June 12 (Queen's Birthday), July 3 (Heroes' Day), July 4 (Unity Day), August Bank Holiday, October 14 (Independence), December 25 and 26 (Christmas).

1968: January 1 (New Year), April 12-16 (Easter).

Weights and Measures

The Imperial system is in use.

Currency and Exchange Rates

The principal unit of currency is the pound (£) which is divided into 20 shillings(s.) and 240 pence (d.).

Notes: 10s, £1, £5.

Coins: 6d., 1s., 2s.

Exchange Rate: £1 Zambian = £1 Sterling.

7s. 2d. = $1 U.S.

A new decimal coinage is to be introduced in 1968, based on the Kwacha, a unit at par with 10s. sterling.

THE CONSTITUTION

In the late nineteenth century North-Western and North-Eastern Rhodesia were included in a Charter granted to the British South Africa Company, whose administration was officially recognised by two Orders-in-Council in 1899 and 1900. In 1911 the two territories were amalgamated under the name of Northern Rhodesia, which continued to be administered by the Company until 1924, when it was taken over by the Crown. In the same year Orders-in-Council created the office of Governor of Northern Rhodesia, constituted an Executive Council, and made provision for the constitution of a Legislative Council. In 1935 the capital was moved from Livingstone to Lusaka.

In 1953 Northern Rhodesia became part of the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland, but its Protectorate status and separate government were preserved and retained. Following the Victoria Falls Conference of July 1963, at which the dissolution of the Federation was agreed, a new constitution came into effect on January 3rd, 1964, immediately after the dissolution of the Federation on 31st December, 1963.

In October 1964, Northern Rhodesia became an independent Republic within the Commonwealth and adopted the name of Zambia. The Constitution of January 1964, was amended to include the following provisions:

The President: The President of the Republic of Zambia will be Head of State and Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces. A candidate for the Presidency must be a Zambian citizen, a qualified voter, and at least thirty years old. Election of the President will take place at the same time as that of members to the National Assembly. Each candidate for election to the National Assembly will declare in advance which presidential candidate he supports. Each voter will thus simultaneously vote for parliamentary and presidential candidates.

The Vice-President: Appointment will be by the President; the Vice-President will be leader of the National Assembly.

The Cabinet: The Chairman will normally be the President. The Cabinet will also include the Vice-President and not more than 14 members, appointed by the President from among the members of the National Assembly and removable by the President.

Legislature: Parliament will consist of the President and a National Assembly of 75 elected members. The President will have power to nominate up to five additional persons as special members of the National Assembly. Though not a member of the National Assembly, the President will have power to address it at any time. The normal life of parliament is five years, though the National Assembly has power to vary this in special circumstances. To become law, a Bill will require presidential assent. If the President returns a Bill, it shall not again be presented for assent within six months unless it has the support of two-thirds of all members. If this occurs the President shall either dissolve Parliament or give his assent within 21 days.

The Judiciary: The Chief Justice and all other Judges will be appointed by the President.

House of Chiefs: The Constitution provides for a House of Chiefs numbering 26 provincial chiefs. The President will assume the powers, formerly vested in the Governor.

Citizenship: Automatic citizenship shall be granted to people born in Zambia and to former British-protected persons who were born in Zambia immediately before independence day. Commonwealth or Irish Republic citizens, or citizens of African countries which grant citizenship by a comparable process to Zambians may become citizens by registration.

Bill of Rights: A Bill of Rights will safeguard the rights of individuals and the interests of minorities.
